When Knighthood Was In Flower

Mary's vanity was delighted with her elopement trousseau, for of course it was of the finest. Not that the quality was better than her usual wear, but doublet and hose were so different on her. She paraded for an hour or so before Jane, and as she became accustomed to the new garb and to the steel reflected a most beautiful image she determined to show herself to Brandon and me. She said she wanted to become accustomed to being seen in her doublet and hose and would begin with us. She thought if she could not bear our gaze she would surely make a dismal failure on shipboard among so many strange men. There was some good reasoning in this, and it, together with her vanity, overruled her modesty and prompted her to come to see us in her character of young nobleman. Jane made some of her mighty protests, so infinitely disproportionate in size to her little ladyship, but the self willed princess would not listen to her and was for coming alone if Jane would not come with her. Once having determined on a course of action, she wasted no time about it, but, throwing a long cloak over her shoulders, started for our rooms in a hot hurry, weeping, protesting Jane at her heels.

When I heard the knock, I was sure it was the girls, for though Mary had promised Brandon she would not under any circumstances attempt another visit I knew as well as my own inability to combat her desire and her reckless disregard of danger where there was a motive sufficient to furnish the nerve tension that I was sure she would come or try to come again.

I admitted the girls, and when the door was shut Mary unclasped the brooch at her throat, and the great cloak fell to her heels. Out she stepped, with a little laugh of delight, clothed in doublet, hose and confusion, the prettiest picture mortal eye ever rested on. Her hat, something on the broad, flat style with a single white plume encircling the crown, was of purple velvet trimmed in gold braid and touched here and there with precious stones. Her doublet was of the same purple velvet as her hat, trimmed in lace and gold braid. Her short trunks were of heavy black silk slashed by yellow satin, with hose of lavender silk, and her little shoes were of russet French leather. Quite a rainbow, you will say, but such a rainbow!

Brandon and I were struck dumb with admiration and could not keep from showing it. This disconcerted the girl and increased her embarrassment until we could not tell which was the prettiest, the garments, the girl or the confusion, but this I know—the whole picture was as sweet and beautiful as the eyes of man could behold.

Fine feathers will not make fine birds, and Mary's masculine attire could no more make her look like a man than harness can disguise the graces of a gazelle. Nothing could conceal her intense, exquisite womanhood. With our looks of astonishment and admiration Mary's blushes deepened.

"What is the matter? Is anything wrong?" she asked.

"Nothing is wrong," answered Brandon, smiling in spite of himself. "Nothing on earth is wrong with you, you may be sure. You are perfect—that is, for a woman—and one who thinks there is anything wrong about a perfect woman is hard to please. But if you flatter yourself that you in any way resemble a man or that your dress in the faintest degree conceals your sex you are mistaken. It makes it only more apparent."

"How can that be?" asked Mary in comical irritation. "Is not this a man's doublet and hose, and this hat—is it not a man's hat? They are all for a man. Then why do I not look like one, I ask? Tell me what is wrong. Oh, I thought I looked just like a man. I thought the disguise was perfect."

"Well," returned Brandon, "if you will permit me to say so, you are entirely too symmetrical and slightly ever to pass for a man."

The flaming color was in her cheeks as Brandon went on: "Your feet are too small, even for a boy's feet. I don't think you could be made to look like a man if you worked from now till doomsday."

Brandon spoke in a troubled tone, for he was beginning to see in Mary's perfect and irrepressible womanhood an insurmountable difficulty right across his path.

"As to your feet, you might find larger shoes, or, better still, jack boots. As to your hands, you must not wear a longer trunks, but what to do about the elbow is a realization of the situation seemed to dawn upon her.

"Oh, I wish I had not come! But I wanted to grow accustomed, so that I could wear them before others. I believe I could bear it more easily with any one else. I did not think of it in that way." And she cast herself her cloak from where it had fallen on the floor and threw it around her.

"Don't go away, Mary!" asked Brandon gently and receiving no answer. "But you will have to bear my looking at you all the time I am with you."

"I don't believe I can do it."

"No, no," answered he, bravely attempting cheerfulness; "we may as well give it up. I have had no hope from the first. I knew it could not be done, and it should not. I was both insane and criminal to think of permitting you to try it."

Brandon's forced cheerfulness died out with his words, and he sank into a chair, with his elbows on his knees and his face in his hands. Not a word to him at once. There had been a little moment of faltering, but there was no real surrender in her.

Dropping on her knee beside him, she said coaxingly: "Don't give up. You are a man; you must not surrender and let me, a girl, prove the stronger. Shame upon you when I look up to you so much and expect you to help me be brave! I will go. I will arrange myself in some way. Oh, why am I not different? I wish I were as straight as the queen." And for that first time in her life she bewailed her beauty because it stood between her and Brandon.

She soon coaxed him out of his despondency, and we began again to plan the matter in detail.

The girls left on Brandon's cloak and he and I on the camp stool and a box.

Mary's time was well occupied in vain attempts to keep herself covered with the cloak, which seemed to have a right good will toward Brandon and me, but she kept track of our plans, which, in brief, were as follows: As to her costume, we would substitute long trunks and jack boots for shoes and hose, and, as to doublet, Mary laughed and blushingly said she had a plan which she would secretly impart to Jane, but would not tell us. She whispered it to Jane, who, as serious as the lord chancellor, gave judgment and "thought it would do." We hoped so, but were full of doubts.

This is all time enough to write and read about, but I can tell you it was sufficiently exciting at the time. Three of us at least were playing with that comical fellow, Death, and he gave the game interest and point to our hearts' content.

As to the elopement, it was determined that Brandon should leave London the following day for Bristol and make all arrangements along the line. He would carry with him two bundles, his own and Mary's clothing, and leave them to be taken up when they should go a-shipboard. Eight horses would be procured, four to be left at a relay at an inn between Berkeley castle and Bristol and four to be kept at the rendezvous some two leagues the other side of Berkeley for the use of Brandon, Mary and the two men from Bristol who were to act as an escort on the eventful night. There was one disagreeable little feature that we could not provide against nor entirely eliminate. It was the fact that Jane and I should be suspected as accomplices before the fact of Mary's elopement, and, as you know, to assist in the abduction of a princess is treason, for which there is but one remedy. I thought I had a plan to keep ourselves safe if I could only stifle for the once Jane's troublesome and vigorous tendency to preach the truth to all people upon all subjects and at all times and places. She promised to tell the story I should drill into her, but I knew the truth would seep out in a thousand ways. She could no more hold it than a sieve can hold water. We were playing for great stakes, which, if I do say it, none but the bravest hearts, told and daring as the most knightly of chivalry, would think of trying for—nothing less than the running away with the first princess of the first blood royal of the world. Think of it! It appalls me even now. Discovery meant death to one of us surely, Brandon possibly to two others, Jane and me, certainly if Jane's truthfulness should become unmanageable, as it was apt to do.

After we had settled everything we could think of the girls took their leave. Mary slyly kissing Brandon at the door. I tried to induce Jane to follow her lady's example, but she was as cool and distant as the new moon.

The next day Brandon paid his respects to the king and queen, made his adieus to his friends and rode off alone to Bristol. You may be sure the king showed no signs of undue grief at his departure.

CHAPTER XVI.

A HAWKING PARTY.

A FEW days after Brandon's departure, Mary, with the king's consent, organized a small party to go over to Windsor for a few weeks during the warm weather.

There were ten or twelve of us, including two chaperons, the old Earl of Hertford and the dowager Duchess of Kent. Henry might as well have sent along a pair of spaniels to act as chaperons—it would have taken an army to guard Mary alone—and to tell you the truth our old chaperons needed watching more than any of us. It was scandalous. Each of them had a touch of gout, and when they made wry faces it was a standing inquiry among us whether they were leering at each other or felt a twinge—whether it was their feet or their hearts that troubled them.

Mary led them a pretty life at all times, even at home in the palace, and I know they would rather have gone off with a pack of imps than with us. The inducement was that it gave them better opportunities to be together, an arrangement connived at by the queen, I think, and they were satisfied. The earl had a wife, but he fancied the old dowager and she fancied him, and probably the wife fancied somebody else, so they were all happy. It greatly amused the young people, you may be sure, and Mary said, probably without telling the exact truth, that every night she prayed God to pity and forgive their ugliness. One day the princess said she was becoming alarmed. Their ugliness was so intense she feared it might be contagious and spread. Then, with a most comical seriousness, she added:

"Mon Dieu, Sir Edwin, what if I should catch it? Master Charles would not take me."

"No danger of that, my lady. He is too devoted to see anything but beauty in you, no matter how much you might change."

"Do you really think so? He says so little about it that sometimes I almost doubt."

Therein she spoke the secret of Brandon's success with her, at least in the beginning, for there is wonderful potency in the stimulus of a healthy little doubt.

We had a delightful canter over to Windsor, I riding with Mary most of the way. I was not averse to this arrangement, for I not only relished Mary's mirth and jocousness, which were at their height, but hoped I might give my little Lady Jane a turning or two of jealousy, perchance to fertilize her sentiments toward me.

Mary talked and laughed and sang for her soul was a fountain of gladness that bubbled up the instant pressure was removed. She spoke of little but our last trip over the same road, and, as we passed objects on the way, told me what Brandon had said at this place and that. She laughed and dimpled exquisitely in relating how she had deliberately made opportunities for him to flatter her until at last he smiled in her face and told her she was the most beautiful creature living, but that, after all, "beauty was as beauty did."

"That made me angry," said she, "I pouted for awhile and two or three times was on the point of dismissing him, but thought better of it and asked him plainly wherein I did so much amiss. Then what do you think the impudent fellow said?"

"I cannot guess."

"He said, 'Oh, there is so much it would take a lifetime to tell it.'"

"This made me furious, but I could not answer, and a moment later he said, 'Nevertheless I should be only too glad to undertake the task.'

"The thought never occurred to either of us then that he would be taken at his word. Bold? I should think he was! I never saw anything like it! I have not told you a tenth part of what he said to me that day. He said anything he wished, and I swear to you that I could neither stop him nor retaliate. Half the time I was angry and half the time amused, but by the time we reached Windsor there never was a girl more hopelessly and desperately in love than Mary Tudor." And she laughed as if it were a huge joke on Mary.

She continued: "That day settled matters with me for all time. I don't know how he did it. Yes, I do." And she launched forth into an account of Brandon's perfections, which I found somewhat dull, and so would you.

We remained a day or two at Windsor and then, over the objections of our chaperons, moved on to Berkeley castle, where Margaret of Scotland was spending the summer.

We had another beautiful ride up the dear old Thames to Berkeley, but Mary had grown serious and saw none of it.

On the afternoon of the appointed day the princess suggested a hawking party, and we set out in the direction of the rendezvous. Our party consisted of myself, three other gentlemen and three ladies besides Mary. Jane did not go. I was afraid to trust her. She wept and with difficulty forced herself to say something about a headache, but the rest of the inmates of the castle of course had no thought that possibly they were taking their last look upon Mary Tudor.

Think who this girl was we were running away with! What reckless fools we were not to have seen the utter hopelessness, certain failure and deadly peril of our act; treason black as Plutonian midnight. But presence seems to have an especial care for fools, while wise men are left to care for themselves, and it does look as if safety lies in folly.

We rode on and on, and although I twice or thrice in the presence of others to urge Mary to return, owing to the approach of night and threatened rain, she took her own head, as everybody knew she always would, and continued the hunt.

Just before dark, as we neared the rendezvous, Mary and I managed to ride ahead of the party quite a distance. At last we saw a heron rise, and the princess unsnped her hawk. "This is my chance," she said. "I will run away from you now and lose myself. Keep them off my track for five minutes, and I shall be safe. Goodby, Edwin. You and Jane are the only persons I regret to leave. I love you as my brother and sister. When we are settled in New Spain, we will have you both come to us. Now, Edwin, I shall tell you something: Don't let Jane put you off any longer. She loves you. She told me so. There! Goodby, my friend, and a thousand thanks for all you have done for me." And she flew her bird and galloped after it at headlong speed.

I watched her to the horizon out of sight, and I waited for the others to overtake me. When they came up, I was greeted in chorus, "Where is the princess?" I said she had gone off with her hawk and had left me to bring them after her. I held them talking while I could, and when we started to follow took up the wrong scent. A short ride made this apparent, when I came in for my full share of abuse and ridicule, for I had led them against their judgment. I was credited with being a blockhead, when, in fact, they were the dupes.

We rode hurriedly back to the point of Mary's departure and wound our horns lustily, but my object had been accomplished, and I knew that within twenty minutes from the time I last saw her she would be with Brandon on the road to Bristol, gaining on any pursuit we could make at the rate of three miles for two. We scoured the forest far and near, but of course found no trace. After a time rain set in and one of the gentlemen escorted the ladies home, while three of us remained to prowl about the woods and roads all night in a soaking drizzle. The task was thankless enough for us, as it lacked motive, and when we rode into Berkeley castle next day a sorrier set of bedraggled, rain stained, mud covered knights you never saw. You may know the castle was wild with excitement. There were all sorts of conjectures, but soon we unanimously concluded it had been the work of highwaymen, of whom the country was full and by whom the princess had certainly been abducted.

The chaperons forgot their gout and each other, and Jane, who was the most affected of all, had a genuine excuse for giving vent to her grief and went to bed—by far the safest place for her.

What was to be done? First, we sent a messenger to the king, who would probably have us all flayed alive, a fear which the chaperons shared to the fullest extent. Next, an armed party rode back to look again for Mary and, if possible, rescue her.

The fact that I had been out the entire night before, together with the small repute in which I was held for deeds of arms, excused me from taking part in this bootless errand, so again I profited by the small esteem in which I was held. I say I profited, for I stayed at the castle with Jane, hoping to find my opportunity in the absence of everybody else. All the ladies but Jane had ridden out, and the knights who had been with me scouring the forest were sleeping, since they had not my incentive to remain awake. They had no message to deliver, no duty to perform for an absent friend. A thousand duty think of it! I wished it had been a million, and so faithful was I to my trust that I swore in my soul I would deliver them, every one.

And Jane loved me! No more walking on the hard, prosaic earth now. It was sweet Jane Tudor and I, and she was the only sensible method of locomotion. Mary had said, "She told me that I knew it really is true? You will at once see what an advantage this bit of information was to me.

"Jane," said I, "you would wish to see me to talk over Mary's escape; so I sent word to her that I was waiting, and she quickly sent me word she was well and came down. I suggested that we walk out to a secluded little summer house by the river, and she was willing. Ah, my opportunity was here at last!

Jane's whole attitude toward me was changed, and she seemed to cling to me in a shy, unconscious manner, that was sweet beyond belief. I was the one solace for all her grief.

After I had answered all her questions about Mary I went over and over again every detail of Mary's flight and had assured her that the princess was at that hour breasting the waves with Brandon on their highroad to paradise. I thought it time to start myself in from this theme and to say a word in my own behalf. So I spoke very freely and told Jane what I felt and what I wanted.

"Oh, Sir Edwin," she responded, "let us not think of anything but my mistress. Think of the trouble she is in."

"No, no, Jane. Lady Mary is out of her trouble by now and is as happy as a lark, you may be sure. Else she won everything her heart longed for? Then let us make our own paradise, since we have helped Mary to hers. You have it, Jane, just within your lips. Speak the word, and it will change everything. If you love me, and I know you do."

Jane's head was bowed, and she remained silent.

Women's Fall Coats Selling Freely

The new Coats are creating a great interest. Several have already been sold. The woman who follows up to date styles closely, likes to have her new coat early. Many hundreds of Coats are now ready for choosing. Light, medium and heavy weights, short, medium and long lengths. Price range is broad enough and long enough to please most people, $5.00 to $35.00.

A Beautiful Showing of New Fall Dress Goods

Whether for travelling, for street wear, evening wear, or a wedding trousseau, you will find us ready with an immense range from which you may make a selection. Don't matter what special occasion may demand, you can be suited here.

The confidence placed in us by our out of town customers is evidenced in our mail order department. Enquiries and orders by mail come from all parts of the country. Give this department a single trial and see for yourselves.

Some of our new fall showings are SPECIAL SILK BLOUSINGS in plaids and stripes. These come in colorings to blend perfectly with our plain cloths used for coats and skirts.

As usual we have an immense range of the well known WEST OF ENGLAND CHEVIOTS. Perhaps you are not very familiar with this cloth. Ask to see it at our dress goods counter. Just the weight for coats and skirts. Prices, 75 cents to $3.00.

We carry a complete range of serges in all colors, and in weights suitable for a shirt waist suit or coat and skirt.

BROADCLOTHS.—When we talk broadcloths to you at these prices remember: First, that you are buying exactly the same quality numbers that we have carried before and which you know so well. Second, you will notice that in spite of advanced prices you are paying the same as in previous years. Prices, 75 cents to $3.00.

The people go in raptures over our special suitings. Ombre shadings and stripes. They are exclusive styles that we control for this district.

PLAIDED VELVETS.—It is worth your while to see them, for shirt waists and shirt waist suits. 50 cents yard.

Our dressmaking department will be opened on Tuesday, Sept. 17th. Book your order now.

Women's Fur-Lined Coats in Stock Now

BLACKS, NAVYS, GREEN, RED, BROWN.

This week's arrivals completed our stock of Women's Fur Lined Coats. They are ready for your inspection now first floor up. You may choose from Blacks, Navys, Red, Brown, Green and as many different shades of shell. We show Blacks with Squirrel, Hamster, and Muskrat linings. With Mink, Alaska Sable and Columbia Sable collars. If you are interested in Fur Lined Coats, a few minutes spent in this section will be time well spent. We are showing several desirable features that make for durability and beauty. Styles we show are confined exclusively to us for this district. No possible chance of your seeing same style garments for sale in nearby villages.

REMEMBER—Choicest of skins are for the early buyer. If you wish to select now and are not ready we will be pleased to reserve garment for you.

Separate Shells for Women's Fur-Lined Coats

We have Black shells from $20.00 to $40.00. We build to your order any size or color you wish.

Flannelettes at Old Prices

Most of our Flannelettes are at old prices. Our stripes at 7c, 8c, 9c, 10c, 12½c yard, are as good value as you have had for five years. See for yourself.

Oil Cloths and Linoleums All Here

All widths, from 4 yard to 4 yards. Lower priced Oilcloths are made in Canada. The high grade Linoleums come to us direct from Scotland.

Fair Time

Our new windows will not be ready. In the meantime all inside departments are in full swing for fall business. Visitors to the fair are cordially invited to see interior showing of new fall goods.

Women's Golf Jackets that Will Wear

Golf Jackets are a useful garment for early fall wear, and later in the season under a winter coat. The trouble with most Golfers in the trade is that they fray up and stretch out of shape. We realized the difficulty and have had made to our order a range of Golfers that are every thread pure wool. They are firmly knit and will keep shape. Look just like hand knit goods. Cream with Red, Cream with Green trimming and all Black, $3.00.

Women's New Kid Gloves

FOWNES', TREFOUSSE AND PERRIN'S.

We only keep well known brands that have stood the test. One make or may be strong on short gloves, another's long suit may be elbow lengths, and perhaps the third maker makes a specialty of Suede Gloves. Now is time to get your glove supply. Later on sizes are perhaps missing in the shade you prefer. Lots of variety in short, medium and long gloves.

Among the new lot we notice an extra quality Black Undressed Iced with white silk, $2.00 pair. Girl's Tan Gloves, 75 cents pair.

Audrey's in Black, Tan, Brown, Grey, White, $1.00 pair. Guaranteed.

Roequaine and Evangeline, all shades, $1.25. Guaranteed.

Carpets

Acres of new Carpet to choose from. All bought in the best markets. If you are re-building or re-modelling let us show you them. Our carpet chief will be pleased to give you quotations. Prices guaranteed to be equal to best in Canada.

Children's Reefer Jackets for Fall Wear

We have a nice lot of styles that are suitable for the between season. Short lengths, that permit of easy walking and play. Sizes 4 years to 16 years. $2.75 to $6.75.

Cotton Batting—Pure White

Perhaps you have noticed how clean and white our cotton batting is. The better qualities are as pure in color as surgeons use. All put together by new process. Will open up for use like a cotton sheet. Ten bales just placed in stock, 7c, 10c, 12½c, 15c, 20c bunch.

Millinery

Formal Opening will be announced next week. In the meantime we are ready for early orders.

Napanee's Greatest Merchant Tailoring Store

SMART WOOLENS AND UP-TO-DATE TAILORS.

We are now ready with the largest, most complete, and best selected collection of popular priced Suitings, Overcoatings and Ulsterings, we have ever offered. We guarantee our styles that no goods to give satisfaction. We furnish excellent Quality and Honest Prices. We promise prompt execution of orders. We render high class service in every respect.

There is an ever increasing popularity for the fancy Waist-coat. We have a beautiful selection to choose from. Another popular garment is the big long comfortable Ulster, made from Tweeds, of Brown, Grey and Green mixtures, in neat stripes and checks.

Let us know your wants and we will try to be with you at all times.

We make a specialty of Frock Suits, Dress Suits, and Tuxedos.

High-Class Underwear for Men

ELLIS SPRING NEEDLE RIBBED — STANFIELD'S UNSHRINKABLE WOOL

We have all grades of Men's Underwear in stock, including over 40 different varieties, ranging in price from 50 cents a suit up to the finest grades.

We only have space to mention one line here.

ELLIS SPRING NEEDLE RIBBED UNDERWEAR is not only just as good, but is positively the best Underwear on the market to-day. First reason, the special stitch gives the fabric an elasticity secured in no other way. There is a springy rebounding strength to every garment. It is as much like a rubber band as possible.

It yields to the slightest pressure and contracts instantly.

You will find the same elastic quality in the fabric after the garment is worn out—it lasts throughout the lifetime of every suit.

In combination Underwear this is the ideal make. Let us show you its good points.

Special Values in Umbrellas

At $1.00 we have an Umbrella that is worth $1.50. It is a double framed, double braced, Umbrella, with a fast black cover.

At 50 cents, a clearing line, regular price was 75 cents. Only 50 left.

At $1.50 a specially made Umbrella of a size between the standard men's size and carriage size.

Clothes

FROM THE SHOPS OF CANADA'S BEST MAKERS.

We aim high in our selection of Men's Fall and Winter Suits. We get the best suit productions from the shops of Canada's best makers.

We aim in selection of cloths, linings and trimmings, get the best possible tailoring. We sell suits that make us friends. The profits come of themselves.

LOOK FOR THIS LABEL.

Suit Prices

The lowest rung in the price ladder is $7.50 to $15.00.

The greatest strength lies in the assortment at $10 00, 12.00 and 15.00. At these prices we know from observation and from information given us by those who have examined suits in other houses, that we can give you positively superior results in tailoring, appearance, style and quality.

Do not judge of the merits of a suit, however, by any advertised price alone; anybody can quote prices. It's the suit at the price that tells the story.

Modestly Priced Overcoats

It's not every man that cares to invest a very large sum of money in a Winter overcoat. For the man who gives his overcoat hard service and yet wants style, fit and durability at a moderate cost, we have lines of overcoats at $7.50, 10.00, 12.00, 15.00 and 17.00.

These coats are difficult to distinguish from their higher priced and more pretentious relatives. They are well tailored from good fabrics, lined with durable linings and carry all the style of more expensive members of our overcoat family.

For a good overcoat - a satisfactory overcoat at a moderate price—we're at your service.

The Fall goods are here. Come and look them over carefully. They will bear careful inspection.

WILTON.

CHURCH RE-OPENING.

The Methodist church, having been undergoing extensive repairs for the past few months, was re-opened on Sunday last. The service was conducted, both in the morning and evening, by Rev. R. Bendorth, B.A., of Madoc, assisted by Rev. R. A. Whattam, Rev. H. Williams, Rev. J. J. Teesdale and Rev. J. E. Ladstone. Rev. Bendorth delivered two most inspiring and beneficial sermons to a very large congregation at both services.—On Monday evening a dinner was given by the church, followed by a concert at which the balance of the amount of $250.00, being the total cost of repairs, was raised. Hon. C. Wilson, M.P., of Napanee, acted as chairman, and Miss Myrtle Gallagher, A.T.C.M., Harrowsmith, delighted the audience with her beautiful clear soprano voice. Mrs. Bamforth and Miss Gallagher sang a duet in which the appreciation of the audience was plainly shown by the hearty and prolonged applause. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. J. Rae, Rev. D. Williams, Hon. C. Wilson, M.P., and Rev. R. A. Whattam. At the close of the entertainment Rev. Whattam was presented by the League with a purse of $20, being a small token of the esteem in which he was held. All greatly regret the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Whattam, who carry to their new field of labor the good will and high esteem of the Wilton circuit.—Rev. D. Williams has moved to our town and will deliver his first sermon to the Wilton congregation on Sunday morning next.

—The regular quarterly service having been delayed on account of church repairs, will be held at Camden East on Sunday morning, Sept. 22nd. All the other services on the circuit will be withdrawn that day.—Rev. R. A. Whattam left to-day for Woodville, and Mrs. Whattam and Miss Whattam will follow the later part of the week.

—Among those who attended the Toronto exhibition from Wilton were, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Simmons, Mrs. Nicholas Simmons, Mrs. Torrance Babcock, Miss Nellie Mills, Mrs. N. B. Switzer, Miss Pearl Switzer, Mrs. R. K. Owen and Master McTavish Owen, Mr. Jas Davey, Blake Switzer, Clarence Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Babcock, sr., Thos. Wallace, Alfred Babcock, jr., Mrs. Sperry Shibley and Mrs. C. F. Booth, of New York.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Kingston, are spending a few days at W. J. Miller's.—Miss Lulu Reeve, Sydenham, is the guest of Mrs. J. E. Miller.—Miss Clara Cummings, Kingston, is visiting friends in this place.—Miss Beatie, Peterboro', is the guest of Miss Nellie Mills.—Mrs. Robin, Adolphustown, has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. A. F. Miller.—Mrs. Geo. Kimmerly, sr., is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Stover.—Master Kenneth McDonald, seriously ill for some time, is improving.—Miss Lena Hodge has returned from visiting friends at Watertown, N.Y.—Miss Eva Gallagher is attending Model school at Kingston.—Percy Williams, attending Kingston High school, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents at the parsonage.—Mrs. Harvey Lake, Sydenham, is spending a few days with friends here.—Miss Violet Peters, Watertown, N.Y., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Benj. Mills.

ODESSA.

The Rev. W. Hansard, B.A. B.D., Dist. Sec. of the Upper Canada Bible Society, Toronto, delivered an address with lantern slide illustrations, under the auspices of the C.M. church, on Sept. 12th. Details later.—We were pleased to see the name of a former townsman, Mr. F. H. Sprowle, as having appointed contracting freight agent at Saskatoon, Sask. Success to you, Fred., you deserve anything good that is going.—The funeral of the child of Mr. C. Emmons was conducted in the Free Methodist church on Wednesday.—The church which was to have been dedicated on Sunday last, was postponed until next Sabbath, 15th, owing to the Wilton church dedication.—Mrs. Albert Snider, who has been ill for a long time at her son's in Kingston, died on Monday. Funeral on Thursday at the C. M. church, Odessa.—Mr. Geo. Watts and Mr. Henry Smith have gone to Syracuse to attend the fair.—Miss N. Aylsworth is visiting her sister near Belleville for some time.—We are sorry to say Mrs. Sidney Sprowle is no better and is confined to her room.—An old time resident, Mrs. Jas. Powley, has gone to Belleville to reside with her son.—Roderick and Victoria Amey, Montreal, are visiting at their grandfather's, Wm. Smith.—Mr. Rolf. Cairns has rented the old public library building and is having it prepared and painted and will use it for a butcher's stall.—The Royal is quick and open in a cost of peas.—Fishing still continues.—Mr. F. Mabee and Mr. Horace Mabee with a number of others, spent Tuesday at the lake enjoying the sport.—A number from the village attended the funeral of Mr. David Ferguson, a brother of our esteemed townsman, Mr. Geo. Ferguson. Rev. Dibb conducted the service.—Court of Revision of voters' list was held in the town hall on Wednesday. Judge Madden presided.

Weak, Sickly People

WILL FIND NEW STRENGTH THROUGH THE USE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

A great many young men and women are suddenly seized with weakness. Their appetite fails them, they tire on the least exertion, and become pale and thin. They do not feel comfortable in society and are miserable in their own company. The disease may appear in different forms, but in this respect it is the same. The blood supplies the nourishment to the whole system. The disease is caused by the blood being impoverished, but still more watery than it should be. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do the work on the cause of his new honors. Mr. Gerald Wm. Carscallen, Wells Creek and Mrs. M. A. Clark, attended the Toronto exhibition last week—Mr. Beech Ofina, of Michigan, spent a few days this week with his brother-in-law, Mr. Wm. P. C. Whalen—Going to the home paper, Mr. Ryan pulls a rank at the home factory this week—Mr. Ryan, from Toronto, where he attended the Industrial exhibition, returned home this week—Mr. Wm. Bowes is progressing nicely. They raise the roof after short completed, but still more to be added to the first house built of cement blocks in this section.—Mr. Wm. Sagatzo, landed a car of live stock here on Saturday, which he sold at auction. Mr. Sagatzo is an old settler, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sagatzo and family, of Napanee, visited at Mr. Wm. Bowes' on Sunday—Mr. Ryan has purchased the old homestead of the late Mr. Wm. Ryan, and will move his family there in the near future—Mr. Ryan, of the milliner, departure of Mr. Mackintosh, who has been in the employ of Mr. Ryan for the past two years—Mr. Ryan is going to the millinery store E. J. Wagar's store, in the Wellington Block, Sat. and Monday, the 7th and 9th inst. Mr. Ryan will be pleased to see all his old customers on Saturday, Sept. 21st, Miss Redden, who is with Mrs. Ryan, also attended the millinery openings at Toronto.—Rev. Hammond, the travelling lecturer of the Canada Bible Society, of Toronto, gave a very interesting address in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, in the basement of the church, on the Bible Society's work. On Monday night the following officers were elected: Mr. W. J. Mallory, president; Mr. Wm. Bowes, 1st vice-president; Mr. J. D. Davey, Secretary; Executive Committee, Rev. Mr. Hammond and the pastor of the church. Mr. Hamilton, on behalf of the English church.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

KILL THE GERMS BY BREATHING HY-O-MEI. GIVES QUICK RELIEF.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally think they cannot be cured, and become discouraged.

The reason they have failed of cure is because they have not treated the disease with the local remedy. Hy-o-mei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler so that its healing medicated air reaches the most remote air cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Catarrh is really a local disease and to cure it, it must be treated by a remedy which reaches every part in the nose and throat where the disease germs lodge. Hy-o-mei does this and gives relief from the first day's use.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00 and T. B. Wallace gives a guarantee with every package to refund the money unless it cures. 3tb

"A sense of humor is a help and a death blow in a fight," says Rear Admiral Bühler. "But even a sense of humor may exist to excess. I have in mind the case of a British soldier who was sentenced to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The harder the lash was laid on, the harder the soldier laughed.

"Wot's so funny about bein' flogged?" demanded the sergeant.

"Why," the soldier chuckled, "I'm the wrong man."

Sunday School Teacher—Augustus, what does it signify when they say a man is above reproach?

Augustus—It signifies he's dead.

A scientific paper advises girls to gargle after every kiss. Most of them now only giggle.

"Now, Johnny," said the Sunday School teacher, "can you tell me what happened to the giant, Goliath?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Johnny. "David rocked him to sleep."

Tommy—Ma, what's a civil engineer?

Ma—Why, Tommy, one that is always polite, of course!

"I'm so happy," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "My son is to get his bachelor's degree this year."

"Is he?" replied her hostess. "Well, I can't blame you for feeling as you do about it. I never thought much of that subject myself before I'd been goin' with. How did you get the match broke off?"

"The wall paper hangers charged so much that Snorkley put the paper on himself."

"Dear me, how odd he must have looked."

"Ma, do I have to say, 'Give us this day our daily bread?'"

"Certainly, Robbie."

"I don't see why. You know you baked yesterday for a week."

Ordinary Citizen—How's the gold mine, old man?

Promoter—Nicely. We are working the lower levels.

"Possible?"

"Yes, we've got the capitalists all squeezed dry, and now we're going after the laboring classes."

"I don't want to be nagging at you, dear," Marvrat began, "but all the little things that bother me most——"

"Ah!" her husband interrupted, sweetly. "I suppose you're going to tell me that you haven't a decent pair of shoes."

"Who can tell me what useful article we get from the whale?"

"Whalebone," promptly replied a boy.

"Right. Now, who knows what we get from the seal?"

"Sealing-wax," shouted a little girl.

Hobby—Did you get my shoes half-soled, as I told you to?

Wifey—Yes, dear; I sold one for twenty cents. Here's the other."

"I have here," said the long-haired visitor, "a little poem on spring."

"All right," answered the editor, "leave it. I'll publish it. Nothing we can do to spring will be too much after the experience we've had this year."

The motive of these people, said Bobby Boaster, discussing married people who quarrel, is like the motive of a Scot who was found weeping one day.

"Eh, Saunders, mon," said a neighbor, peeping in at the open door, attracted by the sounds of woe which came from the fireside.

"What's ailing ye?"

"Oh, dear — oh, dear!" sobbed Saunders. "Donald Mackintosh's wife is dead."

"Aweel," said the neighbor, "what do that? She's no relation o' you, ye ken."

"I know she's not, but it just creeps in at the crown of a Scot's head."

PREVENT DISORDER. — At the first symptoms of internal disorder, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be resorted to immediately. Two or three of these salutary pellets, taken before going to bed, followed by doses of one or two pills for two or three nights in succession, will serve as a preventive of attacks of dyspepsia and all the discomforts which follow in the train of that fell disorder. The means are simple when the benefit is known.

DO NOT DELAY. — When through debilitated digestive organs, poison finds its way into the blood, the prompt measure is to get the poison out as rapidly and as thoroughly as possible. Delay may mean disaster. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a most valuable and effective medicine to assail the intruder with. They never fail. They go at once to the seat of the trouble and work a permanent cure.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above brands of flour have been proven to be the best flour for the money.

When buying flour, "Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill; for by buying Bran and Shorts that are fresher and cheaper than the product of the Toronto mills, which has to be shipped hundreds of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality.

The grower complains if the farmer or the merchant asks 10 cents or 20 cents profits for an article he can get at the home mill, when the flour he does not handle has to be shipped from mills hundreds of miles away. Why not buy from us direct? Save money thereby, you can purchase the home product for less money, and it is guaranteed.

Choice Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Exchange your wheat with the best mills known to the trade. A full stock of the Authorized Grain Agents in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

The boundary line between Alberta and Saskatchewan splits the town of Lloydminster in two. A vote in town was called on Monday to discuss the question of affiliating entirely with either province, but no decision could be reached, so things must remain as they are, in a most unsatisfactory shape, indefinitely. It complicates every affairs intolerably, as a magistrate has no legal right to settle cases occurring beyond Main Street from where he lives, nor have lawyers or doctors right to practice in any part of the town with dual registration.

GREAT DEMAND FOR HARVEST HELP.

Although several thousand men have gone west on earlier excursions, the demand for harvest help still considerably exceeds the supply, latest advices from Winnipeg stating that farmers everywhere are shorthanded. Despite rumors of frost and short crops, there is well-paid work in the field for all comers. A last opportunity for laborers is offered by the Canadian Pacific, which has arranged to run an extra Farm Laborers' Excursion to Winnipeg, leaving all Ontario stations, east and west, Tuesday, September 17th. Same conditions will apply as on earlier excursions, going trip $12.00, return for $18.00 additional, after at least one month's work harvesting. Full particulars can be obtained from C. P. R. agents and from C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Pain anywhere, pain in the head, painful periods, Neuralgia, toothache, all pains can be promptly stopped by a thoroughly safe little Pink Candy Tablet, known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. Pain simply means congestion — some blood treasure at the point where pain exists. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets relieve this unnatural blood pressure, and the pain immediately departs. Don't suffer. Remember, Dr. Shoop's, the pink tablet. Large box 25 cents. T. B. Wallace. 56d

FATALLY BURNED.

On Thursday evening of last week word was received by the friends of Napanee of the sad death of one well known in Napanee, Mrs. Geo. A. Schryver, of Cleveland, Ohio. We clip the following from the Leader of that city:

"Mrs. Fannie Hapgood Schryver, aged fifty-seven, wife of George L. Schryver, head of the firm of H. H. Hatch & Co., dry goods merchants, died at the family residence, E. 82nd street and Cranford road N. E., last night from burns sustained in a gasoline explosion.

Mrs. Schryver was alone in the basement in the afternoon cleaning some lace with gasoline when a run of the flood became ignited and exploded.

With her clothes flaring Mrs. Schryver ran into the yard, screaming. She was followed by her daughter, Miss Mabel, who threw herself upon her mother and attempted to tear the burning clothes. Miss Schryver was badly burned about the hands and arms. Medical aid was obtained hurriedly, but Mrs. Schryver sank slowly until 10 o'clock last night, when she expired.

Mrs. Schryver was well known in church and charitable work. Scores of friends of the family called at the Schryver home last night to proffer their sympathy.

Mrs. Schryver was an active worker in the Plymouth Congregational Church. She was a native of Warsaw, O., but had lived in Cleveland most of her life. She is survived by her husband and the following children: George L., jr., Albert and the Misses Mabel and Florence Schryver.

Mrs. Schryver and family have the sincere sympathy of their many Napanee friends in their hour of bereavement.

"BLUE DEVILS."

GET RID OF INDIGESTION AND THINGS WILL LOOK BRIGHT AND JOYOUS.

Everything looks gloomy and dark to the person suffering with indigestion.

Until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form as a safe and effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, the "blue devils" made everything look dark, gloomy and depressing.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na the sick headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and with perfect digestion there will be a joyous and beautiful outlook.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient to carry in pocket and cost 50 cents. T. B. Wallace has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets that he gives a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

WAGARVILLE.

Mr. Will. Combs met with a terrible fast that befell the large steer, killed in front of his team.—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jackson, of Napanee, were visiting friends around here.—Mrs. Irvine Cronk has gone to Napanee to spend the winter.—Mr. and Mrs. Ard. Jackson.—Messrs. H. Cronk, B. McMahon, of Belleville, had returned from the Jordan and Muskoka Streams were the fishing is good.—Mrs. Wm. Hearns is visiting her grandchildren at Napanee.—Mrs. Irvine Cronk has gone out to visit her parents at Enterprise.—Miss Martha Smith, who has been visiting friends here, returned home on a visit.—Mr. Martin Sills, Watertown, is under the parental roof again.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Vanvalkenburg spent Sunday at Mountain Grove.—Mr. E. Bow and Miss J. Wagar spent Sunday at Mr. W. A. Wagar's.—Farmers have their harvesting almost done, and say that they have only half the crop they had last year.

FLOWERS FOR THE SICK.

Last week the directors of the Napanee Horticultural Society sent out a request to the members to contribute such cut flowers as they could spare to send the Kingston General Hospital. The response was cheerful, and the committee in charge filled several good sized boxes and forwarded them by express, and the gift was appreciated in quite evident fashion, the following letter being received from the Superintendent of nurses:

Kingston General Hospital,
Kingston, Ont., Sept. 5th, 1907.

Mr. W. S. Herrington,
President of Horticultural Society,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Kindly convey to the members of the Horticultural Society the grateful thanks of the Board of Governors for the beautiful cut flowers sent us recently, and to send to us through the Woman's Auxiliary.

The flowers were beautiful, and the quantity sufficient to allow some being given to each patient, and we appreciate your thoughtfulness very much in helping in this way to make the rooms bright and cheerful for our patients.

Yours very truly,
E. A. HUNTER, Secty.

For Quality and Quantity ask your dealer for the new 1c. plugs of "Bobs" "Stag" and "Currency" Chewing Tobaccoes.

DENBIGH.

The union picnic between the I.O.F. and C.O.O.F., on the 4th, was a success in every respect.—Mr. Wm. Hagerman, of the weather was rain, yet it kept away and the people crowded together on the farm of Mr. Trish Wilson, M.P., and Mr. Paul, M.P.P., were the principal speakers, and dancing and other games and sports were kept up all day until the fireworks took place in the evening. The proceeds amounted to $70.—Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Butler and Mr. Charles Butler returned home after a pleasant holiday here.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and brother Dave, of Sudbury, are home for the holiday season.—Mr. Wm. A BEVY OF PRIZE-WINNERS.

Montreal Herald, Sept. 7th.

Mr. R. J. Taylor, proprietor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, arrived in town on Friday accompanied by about thirty of their fair-haired daughters. The arrival was first heralded with suspicion or fear and this sort of femininity, as they came under the impression that he had captured a harem. This was shown to be an error, however, as the ladies were nothing more nor less than the winners of a competition inaugurated by his up-to-date paper last fall, and when he arrived, bringing back home after a trip to Quebec.

An American Stage Beauty Saved Her Hair with Newbro's Herpicide

SHE WRITES AS FOLLOWS TO THE HERPICIDE CO.

For, the past two years I played a part that over-itated the wearing of a wig. My scalp would perspire under the wig and it was a hot wig until dandruff made its appearance and constantly grew worse. In every remedy I could find to rub on my head of it, but all to no avail. I finally decided to try Newbro's Herpicide a thorough trial.

I cleaned and dried my hair before applying Herpicide and after three or four applications I was delighted to see the dandruff disappear and my hair is now as nice as ever.

I could not be without Herpicide and I can recommend it much stronger and believe it will do all that is claimed for it.

Respectfully,
(Signed) JULIA H. TOBIAS.

BARBER WILLIS OF NAPANEE SAYS THAT NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE IS THE BEST.

"I have found Herpicide to be far the best remedy for dandruff that I have ever used in my business. I have no hesitancy in saying that properly applied, Herpicide will positively cure the most obstinate cases of dandruff."

(Signed) A. WILLIS,
Napanee, Ont.

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other hair remedies combined.

Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial No. 915.

Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00 at drug stores. Insist upon Herpicide.

KINGSTON OPERA HOUSE.

Isabel Irving, who stands pre-eminent as a commedienne is to appear at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Saturday, Sept. 14, in the latest successful play from the pen of the late Field, entitled "The Girl Who Has Everything." Miss Irving is well and favorably known in this city, and her artistic attainments have won her a place in the esteem of local theatregoers. No more suitable play than "The Girl Who Has Everything" could have been chosen to fit the peculiar charm of this dainty American actress. The play is described as a comedy drama with an equal proportion of comedy and drama, and with an artistic blending of both that only a Clyde Fitch can portray. In both comedy and drama Miss Irving is thoroughly at home and it is doubtful if there is another actress on the American stage at the present time who can so quickly and nicely depict these widely varying emotions, going from one to another with a rapidity and skill that proclaim her an actress of remarkable talents.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

A grand concert in aid of the West End Mission, Deseronto, will be held in Union Hall on Tuesday, 17th Sept., at 8 p.m. Miss Flora Donaldson, of the Royal Scottish Concert Co., has kindly consented to give her services as leading singer. Other friends will also assist in the programme. Admission, adults, 25 cents., children, 15 cents.

A NATIONAL SONG.

The Home Journal, published in Toronto, of which we are in receipt of the September number, contains a new national anthem, "O Canada, Beloved Fatherland," the music by C. Lavallee and words by Hon. Judge Routher. The words are in both French and English. The words are most appropriate, but as yet we have not heard the music interpreted.

A WISE OLD MARE.

One of the horses on the tread power of the Hay Bay ferry, has more than the average amount of "horse" sense. She is an old animal and works the power with her ears thrown back and a general look of disgust. When the boat nears the shore, perhaps thirty or forty feet from the dock, the animal immediately strikes her hoof sharp shoes at the back of the tread and brings the machinery to a standstill, notwithstanding that her mate on the other side of the boat is trying to continue the work. Returning from the other side the ferry is backed across, but still the old mare refuses to budge an inch, or dark, when the boat is near enough to shore to need stopping.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

Last Tuesday Mr. Ira Pringle, Thomas st., fell from a scaffold and broke both bones of his right forearm and also the wrist. He was repairing his verandah and defective footing, in standing on brake, causing a fall of about seven feet. The fracture is a serious one, the bones after the fall protruding through the skin. Mr. Pringle is in his eightieth year, and a few years ago had the same limb fractured. This is the fourth time the same leg has been broken, but in different places.

Mr. Henry R. Spencer, walking in his flower garden, last Sunday, tripped in some vines, and fractured his left arm above the wrist.

BIG DAY IN MARLBANK.

Notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather, crowds began to pour into Marlbank on Tuesday, to enjoy the day at the Methodist Church picnic and Harvest Home Dinner. The town and girls of the Sabbath School were admitted free, and a fine programme of sports was carried out. Good prizes were given. A sumptuous repast was served, after which addresses by Rev. S. F. Rorke, introduced Revs. Geo. McConnell and J. J. Rae, who delivered able and eloquent addresses. Rain interfered with the baseball match, Tamworth vs. Marlbank, but between the showers the teams finished a most entertaining game, which resulted in a victory for Marlbank, which was assisted by some neighbors. Supper was served to quite a number. Receipts $76.80, which delighted the Marlbank people for this their first venture of recent years.

POLICE COURT.

Mrs. Jane Chapman and Mr. Benj. Vanluvelise were before the Police Magistrate yesterday. The former had Mr. Vanluvelise up on the charge of stealing hay, oats and roots was the assessment.

James Flynn and Fred Long, "of Gananoque, who had been doing the Toronto Exhibition and spent all their money in taking in the sights, were helping themselves to a free trip on the G. T. Railway. Chief Graham caught them, and His Honor, Police Magistrate Ponton, assessed them $1.00 and costs each, thirty days. They took the latter, but $2.00 was paid for Alfred Wedgbury and he was released.

Albert Haynes, Strathcona, was before the Police Magistrate on Tuesday on the charge of being trespassing on the property of the Napanee Paper Mill Company, and trying to induce the men to drink liquor which he carried with him. Mr. Flynn asked that a heavy fine be not imposed, as all he wanted was that the men should be left alone. Haynes paid a fine of $1.00 and costs, amounting to $6.65.

Two sisters, Ellen and Eliza Sertzenbon, Napanee Mills, got in a fight on Monday with Mrs. Sarah Alexander, of the same place, and the latter two were given a hearing before Mr. Hoskin, Q.C., charged with using abusive language to Mrs. Alexander. Each was fined $1.00 and costs or thirty days. The former was assessed $2.00 and costs, and the latter $1.00 and costs, but neither paid.

Chas. Smith, of Varie Sam's domains, was given six months in Central Prison on Tuesday for being a vagrant.

T. A. Kirkstetsos, South Napanee, was up on Saturday for being drunk and disorderly. As he was meeting out of town he was let go without a fine.

Mrs. James McKim, of Dunsville, Ont., says her almost hopeless case came from Mrs. Graham's Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart "after I had been given up by doctors, despaired of my life, I had not sufficient and extreme prostration. One dose gave me much relief and one bottle cured me. The sufferings of years were dispelled like magic."—3 For sale by T. B. Wallace.

RICHMOND MINUTES.

The Council met at Selby on Monday, Sept. 2, 1907.

The members present were Messrs. Chas. Symons, Reeve; Fred. Sexsmith, Ald. Mackey, E. S. Sills and Manly Jones. The Reeve presided.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from the Clerk of Pittsburgh re Rail mond's account for work on the boundary road north of Kingston Road.

Moved by Ald. McCutcheon, seconded by Manly Jones, that a grant of $15.00 be made to Road Division No. 4, to extend to the boundary line between Richmond and Camden. Carried.

Moved by E. S. Sills, seconded by Manly Jones, that the account of R. S. Meade for supplies for crusher and roads be paid. Carried.

A By-Law was introduced fixing the rate for the current year as follows: for County purposes 4½ mills in the dollar, for Public Schools, under the new School Act, 3¾ mills in the dollar, for township purposes 3½ mills in the dollar, making a total for general purposes of 12¾ mills in the dollar, which was read and finally passed.

Moved by Manly Jones, and seconded by E. S. Sills, that the disposal of the Hay Scales in the Village of Robbin be left in the hands of Councillor McCutcheon, with power to act. Carried.

A second By-Law was introduced changing the rate per day for the commutation of Statute Labor from seventy-five cents per day to one dollar and twenty-five cents per day. Also to fix the Road Master during the time of doing the work, otherwise, if charged on the Collector's Roll, it shall be one dollar and fifty cents, which was read and finally passed.

The Council adjourned to meet on the first Monday in October, at the hour of one o'clock, a.m.

A FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

Peterboro', Sept. 18.—William Coons, a Kinmount man, had an exciting experience on his way home from Bancroft last night. He had paddled in a canoe across the lake, crossing Little Bob Lake in the dusk he encountered a black bear swimming in the water, and for a time it looked as if the bear was going to come on the viscar in the encounter. Coons at first thought when within a short distance of the bear that the animal was a dog and struck at it with his paddle. It was then the discovery was made that it was a bear, and with the paddle Coons fought the bear at speed and the man and bear were struggling in the water. The attack was so fierce that it frightened the animal, for he fought viciously and when Mr. Coons at last reached the shore, after having been in the water about half an hour, it was with a suit of badly torn clothes and a body with many scratches made by the bear's claws. Coons declares that his courage was nothing short of ridiculous, and states that at one time he had given up hope of ever reaching shore alive.

OLD SWEETHEARTS.

Married in Windsor After Many Years.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 21.—There is a touch of romance in the marriage of Miss Ida Reed of James D. Wilkie, of Windsor, and Mrs. Annie Marcus, of Bearsville, formerly Miss Annie Atherton, of Windsor. They were married here on Tuesday by special license, the truth, but a misunderstanding separated them. Each took a life partner, and each married the union.

Two years ago, Mrs. Marcus, who had been bereaved by the loss of her husband, came to live with her sister here and met Mr. Wilkie, who had lost his wife, and the old flame was fanned into a blaze. This is the sequel. The bride's virtuous sister-in-law and were tendered a reception by the daughter of the groom, which was attended by thirty-five guests from Ontario and Michigan. One of the best features of the evening was a piece of Battenberg made by Mrs. Wilkie, mother of the groom, who is eighty-five years old.

NEWBURGH.

A large number from the village took in the "world's fair" at Centreville on Saturday night.

The local baseball team are a little short, financially, on the season.

The Methodist congregation will likely celebrate the 39th anniversary of the Consecration of their church this fall.

Mrs. Potter has had a telephone installed in her home.

Mr. G. L. Aylesworth will lecture on England" in the Methodist church, on Friday evening. The subject was not a large as it should have been, but those who were present were treated to an evening of pleasure and profit.

Mr. Aylesworth described his work in England, in a slight by saw, and illustrated his remarks by many interesting stories which he collected on the trip. Among other things he said that the church in Bath, England, was very similar to the Methodist church here. It is known as the "Mother church" of Methodism. It is also the church where Wesley preached. The Methodist church here, came from that part of England, and as a result has some ideals from this church in Bath.

The title of his address was "A Dream of Paradise" during the offertory in the Methodist church, on Sunday evening next.

THE HOG INDUSTRY.

Mr John Williams is in receipt of the following letters which are of importance to many of our farmers. We publish them without further comment.

Montreal, Sept. 16th, 1907.

To our Buyers :—

As you may be aware our packing house is now under Government Inspection, and all hogs delivered to us must be killed as demanded by the inspectors. The majority of hogs delivered to us are now condemned for diseases that cannot be recognized until they are slaughtered, and for these we do not hold our drivers responsible, but hogs that are dead or crippled when delivered are unable before slaughter. For instance: Hogs crippled in pens, stairways, shoved or limed.

Ruptured or deformed hogs.
Hogs improperly fed.
Stags or staggy hogs.
Sows crippled before loading.
Sows advanced in pregnancy.
Sows that have recently farrowed.
Unfinished or emaciated hogs.

We trust you will carefully examine all hogs before paying for same, and refuse any showing these or other defects, or accept them subject to payment only if passed by inspectors.

Yours truly,
THE MONTREAL PACKING CO., Ltd.

Montreal, Sept. 18th, 1907.

Mr. John Williams,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sir,—You are probably aware that Government Inspectors have been placed in all the packing houses. It will therefore be necessary for us to refuse delivery of hogs that are, because of their condition, unfit for inspection, viz., ruptures, advanced pregnancy, disease, or anything else the Inspector, be ordered to the grease pile. The Inspector or foreman will be prepared to stand the loss on hogs of this kind, but we would suggest that you refuse to pay for any questionable hogs, but that the case may come before us to be settled for after being passed by the inspector.

Another matter is "bruises." A very large percentage of bruises are caused while hogs are being loaded on cars and while they are in the pens. We do not think the loading and unloading of hogs is the cause of this, as this could not be remedied to a very large extent.

We do not intend to pay for the faults of others, and it is necessary that the above matters be given close attention, as the inspectors have the control of the whole matter and absolute discretion as to what shall be passed.

Yours truly,
THE LAING PACKING & PROVISION CO., Ltd., by J. W.

PRINCE EDWARD EXHIBITION

1907

The "BLUE RIBBON" and "ALL RED LINE" Exhibition of this Society, being the first Exhibition under the new designation

Prince Edward Agricultural Society

WILL BE HELD IN PICTON ON WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

SEPT. 25th and 26th, and will be the PEOPLE'S EXHIBITION.

These exhibitions are of public interest. A place where people may meet and exchange views, study the improved methods, meet old friends and make acquaintances. Its purpose is to keep abreast of the advances made with AGRICULTURE and ART, and change of residence that are annually taking place; and for this purpose the "BLUE RIBBON" and "ALL RED LINE" Exhibition offers a scheme to bring together the products of the country that a stimulus might be given to excel in the several departments, the main object of these exhibitions is to excel or improve in manufacture and agriculture, etc.

The Directors feel that no effort within their means will be spared to make this "BLUE RIBBON" and "ALL RED LINE" a success financially, and for the pleasure of patrons and visitors.

This is a HOME INSTITUTION, let it be the best and greatest in its history! By your co-operation it can be done! Remember that this is YOUR FAIR as much as of the Society's and FARMER'S HOLIDAY.

The Premium List has been revised and prizes have been considerably increased and extended. It contains all the products of the farm, orchard, garden, ladies' work, fine arts, manufactures, floriculture, live stock, etc.; also a class for children at public schools in the county.

There will be no restriction this year in competition for Ladies' Work. All articles, whether antiquated or modern, may be entered.

EXHIBITS—The Directors especially urge the farmers of this county to exhibit in at least one department, for by doing so you will feel a personal interest in its success.

VISITORS—Each day will be interesting; no where else can you meet so many old friends and find an equal enjoyment for the money. Superintendents there is not another place in the whole county where there is so much to interest, entertain, amuse and please for a small expenditure.

Remember, these two days are Legal Holidays for the farmers, to which you are entitled. You will be disappointed if you do not attend the Fair. Don't forget the dates.

Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 25th and 26th

Bands of music and entertainment both days.

Special rates for visitors by boat and rail. Get or send for a Dominion Book.

ENTRIES FOR EXHIBITS CLOSE ON SATURDAY, 21st SEPTEMBER.

A PRAYER.

Written for the New Anglican Church at Morven, 1907.

O! God, the Father and the Friend of all in this Congregation,

Whose strong right hand has ever been Thy faithful stay and their salvation,

We humbly and awe we look upon Thee,

And, thinking of our sinful past, we ask for pardoning grace.

To come before The throne of grace we feel unworthy, Lord,

And, yet, to live without Thy grace is more than doubly hard.

Thy Minister within these walls, may be filled with broken contrite hearts Thy tender service find.

Give him such strength to do Thy work, of body and of mind,

That he may lead to Thy dear feet great host of human kind.

We would not ask Thy blessing, Lord, on Morven church alone;

But bless Thy work in every land, we pray thee every one.

Bless all the Rulers of this land, til as all the British Nation,

And may their feel their freedom need of Thee and Thy salvation.

We humbly ask for those who need Thy kind providing care,

To guide and keep and keep our feet from every danger's snare.

Bless, Thou, our King of every land, of every tribe and nation,

As well as every subject, Lord, within Thy vast Creation.

So, when we've finished here below and Heaven shall be our gain,

Thy glory shall be ever Thine, Amen, Amen, Amen.

J. FRANK ROMBOUGH.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HICKS LAPUM.

Hicks Lapum was born in Canada, August 30th, 1826, and died at Los Gatos, California, June 29th, 1907. Mr. Lapum was the eldest of a large family of children, and was a son of the late Stephen Lapum, of the 7th concession of the Township of Ernestown, (near Wilton), in the County of Lennox and Addington, Ontario, and is a brother, of Mrs. Ira Pringle, Napanee. He came from the old Methodist stock, his father being a local preacher—one of the old kind—and his mother a good woman, were led to Christ. Such influences had their effect upon their son, and he, too, entered the ministry by preaching at Mrs. Palmer, at old "Cheesebox" on the ground. Mr. Lapum got right with God in Christ. He immediately united with the Methodist church and to the day of his death remained true and faithful to his profession. In 1865 he came to California, settling in San Francisco. Being near to the old Mission Street Church, he cast his lot in with that people, and it was not long before he was made a class leader. In 1875 he moved with his family to Green valley, Sonoma county, where he remained until 1882, coming from there to Santa Clara County. Mr. Lapum always had a desire to see the old fields of his childhood, which he found with all his heart. No sacrifice was deemed too great for him to make for the advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom. For over forty years he was a regular subscriber to the California Christian Advocate, and almost that entire length of time, he was an official member of the church. The Sonoma County Camp Meeting Association will ever remember his earnest and faithful work for that Society's place, both as a member of the Executive Committee and also as President. He was married in 1855 to Miss Sarah Ann Lee, of the church, which proved to be a most loved, and, when it is possible for him to be there, he always was found there. The Methodist preacher always found a welcome at the home of Mr. Lapum, and in Christ was found to be the bond of the family. He was the chief host, and the family altar was an established institution. He had not been very well for some months before his final illness. Three weeks before he died, he received a stroke of paralysis. He was not unmindful of the fact that another might come, and so he did. The latter spoke to him about his hope in Christ and his readiness to meet his Maker. He replied that he always was ready. He was able to speak to others of Christ for some days after the stroke, but the last time he was asked if his feet were still firmly planted on the Rock, he nodded assent. At the last, there was not the least struggle. He died, God took care of His faithful ones home to glory. Mr. Lapum left a wife, two sons and a daughter, Mrs. Ivey and his sister Fanny, live with the children of Mary Magdalene's on the bedside of his father, as he is now living in Napanee. Thus ends the life of a man who was a faithful, if not a brilliant, worker for very long and for God. Mr. Lapum was an opportune man, and was ready to do (first) will be there to meet us, and to welcome him to the mansions of the throne of God.—California Christian Advocate.

BRISCO OPERA HOUSE.

Napanee's favorite repertoire company, H. Wilbur Haymen and Margie Adams are playing to good houses at the Brisco opera house this week, and are putting on better plays by a stronger company than ever. Margie Adams, as leading lady, was a great favorite with Napanee audiences since her appearance here, and is easily the star of all ladies in repertoire. The De Mateos, wonderful artists, have been drawing large audiences in releasing themselves from handcuffs, straight jackets, etc., and Hayden and Hayden, a clever team in an artistic and her act has to be seen to be appreciated. Mr. Haymen is the manager of the company. Every evening at 7.30 he goes up to a balcony about the front and jumps off the top into a net. On Monday evening a few bolcoons were in the rear of the hall made things unpleasant for those in front, but Manager Haymen of the Brisco Opera House should see that order is kept for the good of the house as well as the patrons.

WEDDING BELLS.

The following taken from the Peterboro' Review, will be interesting to a large circle of interest to friends in the vicinity of Belleville, where the bride was a former school for some time.

A pretty wedding at St. Peter's Cathedral a very pretty wedding took place, when Miss Ethel Gertrude Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Hall st., was married to Mr. Joseph Cunningham, Belleville, by Rev. Father Hand, who performed the ceremony. The bride, who was attended by Miss Mary Cunningham, sister of the groom, broadcloth with hat to match, was attended by Miss Mary Cunningham, sister of the groom, wore a neat suit of fawn, with hat to match. Mr. Cunningham was supported by his brother, Mr. Art. Cunningham. The bride received a number of handsome presents. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The bride received a number of handsome presents. After the happy couple left on the 11.46 train for Toronto and other points. On their return they will reside at 58 Gladstone Avenue.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidneys. Dr. Kilmer's like the Heart, and the Stomach, and their weakness, not in the organs themselves, but the nerves that control and guide and sustain them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is scientifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is folly—it is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is too much or too scanty, if you have pressing backache and stiffness, if you have a rheumatic twinge or other distressing or dangerous kidney trouble, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—or a fortnight—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell it.

When Knighthood Was In Flower

Then I told her of Lady Mary's message and begged, if she would not speak in words what I so longed to hear, she would at least tell it by allowing me to deliver only one little thousandth part of the message Mary had sent, but she drew away and said she would return to the castle if I continued to behave in that manner. I begged hard and tried to argue the point, but logic seems to lose its force in such a situation, and all I said availed nothing. Jane was obdurate and was for going back at once. Her persistence was beginning to look like obstinacy, and I soon grew so angry that I asked no permission, but deliberately Mary's message, or a good part of it at least, whether she would or no, and then sat back and asked her what she was going to do about it.

Poor little Jane thought she was undone for this. She sat there half pouting, half weeping, and said she could do nothing about it; that she was alone and afraid I, her only friend, would treat her that way she did not know where to look.

"Friend to look?" I demanded. "Look here, Jane; here. You might as well understand first as last that I will not be trifled with longer, and that I intend to continue treating you that way as long as we both live. I have determined not to permit you to behave as you have for so long, for I know you love me. You have half told me so a dozen times, and even your half words are whole truths. There is not a fraction of a lie in you. Besides, Mary told me that you told her so."

"She did not tell you that?"

"Yes, upon my knightly honor." Of course there was but one answer to this—tears. I then brought the battle to close quarters at once, and, with my arm uninterrupted at my lady's waist, asked:

"Did you not tell her so? I know you will speak nothing but the truth. Did you not tell her? Answer me, Jane." The fair head nodded as she whispered between the hands that covered her face:

"Yes. I—I—did," and I—well, I delivered the rest of Mary's message, and that, too, without a protest from Jane.

Truthfulness is a pretty good thing, after all.

So Jane was conquered at last, and I beared a sigh as the battle ended, for it had been a long, hard struggle.

I asked Jane when we should be married, but she said she could not think of that now—not until she knew that Mary was safe, but she would promise to be my wife some time.

We went back to the castle, and as we parted Jane said timidly: "I am glad I told you, Edwin. Glad it is over."

She had evidently dreaded it, but—I was glad too. Very glad. Then I went to bed.

CHAPTER XVII.
THE ELOPEMENT.

WHATEVER the king might think, I knew Lord Wolsey would quickly enough discover the truth when he heard that the princess was missing, and would have a party in pursuit, but we always, however, would have at least twenty-four hours the start, and a ship leaves no traces. When Mary left me she was perhaps two-thirds of a league from the rendezvous, and night was rapidly falling. As her road lay through a dense forest all the way she would have a dark, lonely ride of a few minutes, and I was somewhat uneasy for that part of the journey. It had been agreed that if everything was all right at the rendezvous Mary should turn loose her horse, which had always been stabled at Berkeley castle and would quickly trot home, but further emphasize her safety a thread would be tied in his forelock. The horse took his time in returning and did not arrive until the second morning after the flight, but when he came I found the thread and, unobserved, removed it. I quickly took it to Jane, who has it yet and cherishes it for the mute message of comfort it brought her. In case the horse should not return I was to find a token in a hollow tree near the place of meeting, but the thread in the forelock told us our friends had found each other.

When we left the castle, Mary wore a riding habit and a suit of man's attire, and as we rode along she would shrug her shoulders and laugh as if it were a huge joke all by the most comical little pantomime call my attention to her unusual bulk. So when she found Brandon the only thought Mary gave to make a man of her was to throw off the riding habit and pull on the pack loaded and slouch hat, both of which Brandon had with him.

They wasted no time, you may be sure, and were soon under way. In a few minutes my picked up the two Bristol men who were to accompany them, and when night had fairly fallen we left the road and took to the main road leading from London to Bath and Bristol. The road was a fair one—that is, it was well defined and there was no danger of losing it; in fact, there was more danger of losing one's self in its numerous hollows and quagmires. Brandon had recently passed over it twice and had made mental note of the worst places, so he hoped to avoid them.

Soon the rain began to fall in a soaking drizzle; then the lamps of twilight went out, and even the shadows of the night were lost among themselves in the thicker darkness. It was one of those black nights fit for witch traveling, and no doubt every witch in England was at the rendezvous on Hallow Mass's hoofs sucked and spiashed in the mud with a sound that Mary thought might be heard at Land's End, and the hoot of an owl, now and then disturbed by a witch, would strike upon her ear with a volume of sound intensely disgruntled to the size of any owl she had ever seen or dreamed of before.

Brandon wore one cumbrous, the great cloak, and had provided a like one of suitable proportions for the princess. This came in good play, as her fine gentleman's attire would be but poor stuff to turn the water. The wind, which had arisen with just enough force to set up a dismal wail, gave the rain a horizontal slant and drove it in at every opening. The flaps of the comfortable great cloak blew back from Mary's knees, and she felt many a chilling drop through to her fine new silk trunks that made her wish for bocbram in their place. Soon the water began to trickle down her legs and find lodgment in the jack boots, and as the rain and wind came in tremulous little whirls she felt wretched enough—she who had always been so well sheltered from every blast. Now and then mud and water would fly up into her face—striking usually in the eyes or mouth—and then again her horse would stumble and almost throw her over his head as he sank, knee deep, into some unexpected hole.

All of this, with the thousand and one noises that broke the still worse silence of the inky night, soon began to work upon her nerves and make her fearful. The road was full of dangers aside from stumbling horses and broken necks, for many were the stories of murder and robbery committed along the route they were traveling. It is true they had two stout men, and all were armed, yet they might easily come upon a party too strong for them, and no one would tell what might happen, thought the princess. There was that Ditchy darkness through which she could hardly see her horse's head—a thing of itself that seemed to have infinite powers for mischief and which no amount of argument ever induced any normally constituted woman to believe was the mere negative absence of light and not a terrible entity potent for all sorts of mischief. Then that wailing howl that rose and fell betimes. No wind ever made such a noise she felt sure. There were those shining white gleams which came from the little pools of water on the road, looking like dead men's faces upturned and pale. Perhaps they were water and perhaps they were not. Mary had all confidence in Brandon, but that very fact operated against her. Having that confidence and trust in him, she felt no need to waste her own energy in being brave. So she relaxed completely and had the feminine satisfaction of allowing herself to be thoroughly frightened.

Is it any wonder Mary's gallant but womanly spirit sank low in the face of all those horrors? She held out bravely, however, and an occasional clasp from Brandon's hand under cover of the darkness comforted her. When all those terrors would not suggest even a thought of turning back, you may judge of the character of this girl and her motive.

They traveled on, galloping when they could, trotting when they could not gallop, and walking when they must, and about midnight arrived at the inn where the relay of horses was awaiting them.

The inn was a rambling old thatched roof structure, half mud, half wood and all filth. There are many inns in England that are tidy enough, but this one was a little off the main road—selected for that reason—and the uncleanness was not the least of Mary's trials that hard night. She had not tasted food since noon and felt the keen hunger natural to youth and health and as here after twelve hours of fasting and eight hours of riding. Her appetite soon overcame her repugnance, and she ate with a zest that was new to her the humblest fare that had ever passed her lips. One often misses the zest of life's joys by having too much of them. One must want a thing before it can be appreciated.

A little after midnight Brandon put travelers to Bath, which place they rode around just as the sun began to gild the tile roofs and steeples, and another hour brought them to Bristol.

The ship was to sail at sunrise, but as the wind had died out with the night there was no danger of its sailing without them. Soon the gates opened, and the party rode to the Bore and String, where Brandon had left their chests. The men were then paid off; quick ale was made of the horses; breakfast was served, and they started for the wharf, with their chests following in the hands of four porters.

A boat soon took them aboard the Royal Hind, and now it looked as if darting scheme, so full of improbability as to seem impossible, had really come to a successful issue.

From the beginning, I think, it had never occurred to Mary to doubt the result. There had never been with her even a suggestion of possible failure, unless it was that evening in our room, when, prompted by her startled modesty, she had said she could not bear for us to see her in the trunk hose. Now that fruition seemed about to crown her hopes she was hoping to hear heart's core, and when once to herself swept for sheer joy. It is little wonder she was happy. She was leaving behind no one whom she loved excepting Jane and perhaps me. No father nor mother; only a sister whom she barely knew and a brother whose treatment of her had turned her heart against him. She was also fleeing with the one man in all the world for her and from a marriage that was literally worse than death.

Our travelers were of course greatly in need of rest, so Mary went to her room and Brandon took a berth in the cabin set apart for the gentlemen.

They had both paid for their passage, although they had enlisted and were part of the ship's company. They were not expected to do sailor's work, but would be called upon in case of fighting to do their part at that. Mary was probably as good a fighter in her own way as one could find in a long journey, but how she was to do her part with sword and buckler Brandon did not know. That, however, was a the bridge to be crossed when they should come to it.

They had gone aboard about 7 o'clock, and Brandon hoped the ship would be well down Bristol channel before he should leave his berth. But the wind that had filled Mary's jack boots with rain and had bowled so dismally all night long would not stir, now that it was wanted. Noon came, yet no wind, and the sun shone as placidly as if Captain Charles Brandon were not fuming with impatience on the poop of the Royal Hind. Three o'clock and no wind. The captain said it would come with night, but sundown was almost at hand, and no wind yet. Brandon knew this meant trouble if it held a little longer, for he was certain the king, with Wolsey's help, would long since have guessed the truth.

Brandon had not seen the princess since morning, and the delicacy he felt about going to her cabin made the situation somewhat difficult. After putting it off from hour to hour in hope that would appear of its own accord, he at last knocked at her door and, of course, found the lady in trouble.

The thought of the princess going on deck caused a sinking at his heart every time it came, as he felt that it was almost impossible to conceal her identity. He had not seen her in her new male attire, for when she threw off her riding habit on meeting him the night before he had intentionally busied himself about the horses and sent her only after the great cloak covered her as a gown. He felt that however well her garments might conceal her form, no man on earth ever had such beauty in his face as her transcendent eyes, rose tinted cheeks and coral lips, with their cluster of dimples, and his heart sank at the prospect. She might hold out for awhile with a straight face, but when the smiles should come—it were just as well to hang a placard on her neck, "This is a woman." The telltale dimples would be worse than Jane for outspoken, untimely truthfulness and trouble provoking candor.

Upon entering Brandon found Mary wrestling with the problem of her complicated male attire, the most beautiful picture of puzzled distress imaginable. The door was open and showed her rosy as the morn when she looked up at him. The jack boots were in a corner, had her feet been exposed he put up a protest all their own against going into them that ought to have softened anyone. She looked up at Brandon with a half hearted smile and then threw her arms about his neck and sobbed like a child for awhile.

"Do you regret coming, Lady Mary?" asked Brandon, who, now that she was alone with him, felt that he must take no advantage of the fact to be familiar.

"No, no! Not for one moment. I am glad—only too glad. But why did you call me 'Lady?' You used to call me 'Mary.'"

"I don't know; perhaps because you are alone."

"Ah! that is good of you; but you need not be quite so respectful."

The matter was settled by mute but satisfactory arbitration, and Brandon continued: "I will make myself ready to go on deck. It will be hard, but it must be done."

He helped her with the heavy jack boots and handed her the rain stained slouch hat which she put on and stood a complete man ready for the deck—that is, as complete as could be evolved from her utter femininity.

When Brandon handed her over, all hope went out of him. It seemed that every change of dress only added to her bewitching beauty by showing it in a new phase.

"It will never do. There is no disguising you. What is it that despite everything shows so unmistakably feminine? What shall we do? I hate it. You shall remain here under the protection of Simon until we are well at sea, and then I will tell the crew who you are. It is too bad, and yet I would not have you one whit less a woman for all the world. I love you for every reason why a so thoroughly womanly that nothing can hide it."

Mary was pleased at his flattery, but disappointed at the failure in herself. She had thought that surely these garments would make a man of her in which the keenest eye could not detect a flaw.

They were discussing the matter when a knock came at the door, with the cry, "All hands on deck for inspection." Inspection! Jesu! Mary would not safely endure it a minute. Brandon left her at once and went to the captain.

"My lord is ill and begs to be excused from deck inspection," he said.

Whereupon, a surly old half pirate of the saltiest pattern, answered: "Ill? Then he had better go ashore as soon as possible. I will return to the money. We cannot make a hospital out of the ship. If his lordship is too ill to stand inspection, see that he is ashore at once."

This last was addressed to one of the ship's officers, who answered with the usual "Aye, aye, sir," and started for Mary's cabin.

Matters were worse than ever, and Brandon quickly said he would have his lordship up at once. He then returned to Mary, and after buckling on her sword and belt they went on deck and climbed up the poop ladder to take their places in those entitled to stand aft.

Brandon has often told me since that it was as much as he could do to keep back the tears when he saw Mary's wonderful effort to appear manly. It was both comical and pathetic. She was a princess to whom all the world bowed down, yet that did not help her here. After all she was only a girl, timid and fearful, following at Brandon's heels, frightened lest she should get out of arm's reach of him among those rough men and longing with all her heart to take his hand for moral as well as physical support. It must have been both laughable and pathetic in the extreme. That miserable sword persisted in tripping her, and the jack boots, so much too large, evinced an alarming tendency to slip off with every step. How insane we all were not to have foreseen this from the very beginning. It must have been a unique figure she presented climbing up the steps at Brandon's heels, jack boots and all. Its unique was it that the bridge to be crossed when they should come to it.

They had gone aboard about 7 o'clock, and Brandon hoped the ship would be well down Bristol channel before he should leave his berth. But the wind that had filled Mary's jack boots with rain and had bowled so dismally all night long would not stir, now that it was wanted. —and she was on deck less than five minutes. Heart of God! At that rate she would have the ship at the bottom of Davy Jones' locker before we could sail half down the channel."

"It was not my fault," sobbed Mary, her eyes flashing fire. "I did nothing; all I wanted was to be left alone, but those brutes of men—you shall pay for this; remember what I say. Did you expect Captain Brandon to stand back and not defend me when that wretch was tearing my garments off?"

"Captain Brandon, did you say?" asked Bradhurst, with his hat off in amazement.

"Yes," answered that individual. "I shipped under an assumed name for various reasons, and chose to be known. You will do well to keep my secret."

"Do I not...stand that you are Master Charles Brandon, the king's friend?" asked Bradhurst.

"I am," was the answer.

OUR NATIONAL DANGER

TIME TO CRY A HALT BEFORE A PANIC COMES.

The business spirit is crushing out the sweeter element of home life. We are in danger of a great commercial decline, because men, as a whole, think only of getting wealth. There are thousands of men, boys and women, who do not take time to eat properly. They rush through life, and as a result we have ages of indigestion, nervousness, irritability, sleepless nights, and morose disposition.

With the discovery of Mi-o-na tablets, there is no longer any excuse for one to have ill health from stom ach weakness.

Mi-o-na strengthens the walls of the stomach, stimulates secretion of the digestive juices, regulates the liver and restores muscular contraction to the intestines and bowels, so no laxative is needed.

Sick headaches, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, yellow skin, irritability, coated tongue and melancholy are a few of the many distressing results of indigestion. Mi-o-na never fails to dispel all these troubles.

T. B. Wallace sells Mi-o-na in 50-cent boxes, and guarantees to refund the money if the remedy does not give complete satisfaction.

REDDEN—FORWARD.

A very pleasant event took place on Wednesday, Sept. 18th, in the marriage of Miss Josie Thorpe Forward, of this city, to Mr. John Redden, Eramosa. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. MacTavish, pastor of Cooke's church. The bride wore her travelling suit of brown broadcloth, with a blouse of embroidered cream net over silk, and a chic hat of brown felt. The bridesmaid was Miss Gertrude Hinton, and the groomsman, Frederick Redden, brother of the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold chain, and to the bridesmaid a gold brooch set with pearls. The happy couple left for Ottawa on the noon train, carrying with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends.—Whig.

ODESSA.

The dedication of the Free Methodist church took place last Sabbath as stated. The building was filled to its utmost and numbers could not get in at all at the three services. A number from Napanee, Newburgh, Yarker, Kingston and other places attended.—The Ladies' Aid and Woman's Missionary held their meetings Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.—Messrs. Oswald, Sproule and Dougherty took nearly a week's outing Muskrat way. We think they all deserved a good time.—Miss Lillian Ashworth attended the fair at Marlee last week.—Mr. Herbert Babcock has bought the grist and sawmill of Mr. A. Booth, and it being too late to erect a suitable house before cold weather, has rented half of Mr. Booth's house and has moved his belongings this week from Westcock. He promises us electric lights next spring when he will have everything in working order.—Come to him, say we.—Mr. B. Derbyshire was calling around on Tuesday last. All pleased to see him.—Mr. Charles Hoch, who has been spending a week or two here, left on Wednesday.—Mrs. Garland and daughter, Miss MacKinnon, on Tuesday, the former for Ottawa, the latter for New York City.—Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Clarke at Sydenham on Sunday.

EAT WHAT YOU LIKE.—Give the digestive organs some work to do. Every time tissue need exercise as much as any part of the human anatomy, but if they're overtaxed give them the aid that Dr. Von Stan's Pleasant Tablets afford and you can eat anything that's wholesome and palatable—50 in a box. 25 cents. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—6 —In a match at Odessa last Saturday the Wanderers of Kingston, defeated the home team after a hard struggle. Score, 1-0.

—Mr. Frank Perry on Wednesday sold his house and four acres of land in Salem to Mr. James Shannon, who will take possession at once.

—Henry Symonds was sentenced by the Magistrate in Belleville to fourteen years in the penitentiary for stealing and selling a horse and buggy.

—The infant son of Dr. and Mrs. Walsh, of Yarker, who was operated on at the General Hospital, Kingston, when only twenty-four hours old, has steadily improved and was allowed to go home last Saturday.

—E. LOVET has an order six car loads of Royal Household flour, Bran, Shorts. Also four cars coarse Corn Meal, cutting Corn Meal, Cracked Corn and Wheat for feed, corn and oat feed, salt, coal oil, and groceries.

—The game laws of the provinces show that it is legal to shoot ducks from Sept. 1st to Dec. 15th; partridge, Sept. 15th to Dec. 15th; deer, Nov. 1st to 15th; muskrat, Dec. 1st to May 1st. Beaver and otter are not to be killed before 1910.

—A young man from South Fredericksburgh was before the Magistrate recently for shooting ducks on Sunday, and fined $5.00. We understand that certain parties have for years past been in the habit of violating the Lord's day in this way. This should prove a salutary lesson to them.

—Mrs. Fred. Bristow, wife of Mate Bristow, steamer Reindeer, while trawling opposite Camp Lee Yard, caught a muskellunge that weighed 35 lbs. This we believe, is the largest muskellunge in Bay of Quinte this year. Mr. Rutton, who lives near the camp, has had the head mounted.

—The infant son of Dr. and Mrs. Walsh, of Yarker, was operated upon last week at the General Hospital. The tiny patient was but twenty-four hours old when the operation took place and the little fellow is holding his own bravely. There is every reason to believe it will live.—Kingston News.

—At Belleville, on Sept. 16th, occurred the marriage of Miss Ethel Mabel Perry, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Malvey, and Mowbray Lee, a well known tailor of Toronto, but whose home was formerly in Perth. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss May, while the groomsman was Mr. George Sawney, Napanee.

F. S. Richardson & Bro.'s Studio is the best equipped and most up-to-date photographic gallery in Ontario. They have a large and convenient car taking family groups, the latest invention, one that will take every person clear and distinct. Their photographic work is unequalled and all copy produced in any town or city in Ontario.

—Mr. John F. Perry died at Melrose Highlands, Mass., on the 12th inst., aged about forty-four years of age. Deceased was a son of the late Henry R. and Mrs. Perry, of North Fredericksburgh, and grandson of the late Rev. Robert Perry, Adolphustown. He went to Boston to the States, having learned the drug business in town with his brother, Mr. Robt. J. Perry. He leaves a wife, but no children. Mr. Perry was a prominent Oddfellow and a member of Arevil Lodge No. 212, Napanee, which lodge buried the deceased in the adopted home. Mr. Perry was a successful druggist in Boston and had amassed a comfortable competency.

Camden Show.

HELD AT CENTREVILLE ON SATURDAY WAS THE BEST IN YEARS.

One of the largest crowds that has attended the show of fall fair in years was present on Saturday. The weather has provided ideal weather for the fair and it was one of the best days in the month, and was certainly enjoyed by those present.

The showing of Pure Bred cattle was exceedingly fine. Mr. C. D. Wager, Enterprise, getting four first prizes in this class. The above gentleman has gone to a great deal of expense and trouble in introducing the one thing needed by the farmers, viz., Pure bred cattle, and is to be congratulated on his success.

The number of exhibits were in keeping with other years and were well up to the mark.

Mr. John McKay had a splendid exhibit of Pure, which was greatly admired.

Mr. Joseph Tate, the new Secretary of the show, was untiring in his efforts to assist every person asking for information, and gave our reporter every assistance necessary.

Following is a complete list of the prize-winners:—

HORSES IN HALTER.

Judges—Wm. Chamberlain, Albert Reid.
Stallion, general purpose—E. G. Winters' Grey Percheron "Romney"; W. A. Potter, Shelburne, general purpose—E. Milligan, Thos. Tate.

NORTHBROOK.

Mr. McDonald, missionary, of San Francisco, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church on Sunday evening. All who were present were filled with delightful music.—The remains of Mr. Thomas Cassada were interred in the family plot at Flinton, on Tuesday last. The deceased was an old and respected resident of this place, but of late years had been living with his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Hall, Kingston.—Mrs. Bradshaw and her daughter Goodge are visiting friends at Arden.—Mr. Goodge is mourning the death of Mr. J. Hoover, who died from blood poisoning last week. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.—Miss Lizzie Abbott and Miss Bourne attended the reception of Rev. and Mrs. Bowen.—Miss Addie Presley has returned to Trenton after a visit with friends here.—Mrs. Thompson has gone to Tweed to reside.—Miss Alma Smith is at Kingston, the guest of Mr. Minnie Lloyd spent Sunday at Jas. Hinch's.—Mr. Ed. Sprague spent a few days with her parents last week.—Mr. Alexander Cassidy and family, of Tweed, visited friends here on Sunday last.—Mr. Wm. Hall and wife spent Thursday at the home of Mr. Thomas Cassada.—Mr. Wm. Hall, resident of Camden, lost one of his horses last week, valued at over forty dollars.—Mr. Clancy and Mrs. Jas. Clancy, Enterprise, spent Sunday at Mr

PAINTING IN THE FALL.

Some authorities consider the Fall the best time to paint. It is well to remember that Sherwin-Williams' outside Gloss White (specially prepared for outside use) for houses, and Commonwealth Barn Red for barns, will cover more surface, wear longer, look better and be found much cheaper than any other kind of paint. Every can guaranteed. Ask us for prices before purchasing. The Medical Hall—Fred L. Ho per—sole agent for Napanee.

GUY BROS. MINSTRELS.

The Buffalo, N.Y., Courier, says: Guy Brothers gave a splendid performance at the Opera House last evening before a fairly large audience. The Guy Brothers are one, their show is clean, bright, up-to-date. The first part appeared differently from the usual run of minstrels which have heavy ponderous settings. In the Guy Bros. the scene represents the hunters after a chase. The scene effects are a revelation, you see the clouds passing, the sun, the moon, rise, go down, the water rippling over the rocks, something never seen in any other minstrel company, making a grand sight to behold. The usual number of good jokes, and excellent singing and dancing were also appreciated. They appear at the Briggs Opera House, on Monday evening next. 2d inst. Plan at Hawley's Music Store.

LEGAL NEWS.

Toronto, 16th Sept.—Re v. John Armstrong.—W. G. Wilson, (Napanee) and F. E. Field (Colborne) for armstrong moved for leave to appeal from conviction of defendant by police magistrate for town of Napanee and refusal to reserve a case. The charge was under sec. 361 of Criminal Code. The application was grounded on objections to conviction being made in unsworn-stated testimony of a girl under 12 years of age, the magistrate having decided that she understood the nature of an oath, although on cross-examination it appeared she was instructed by her mother prior to prosecution that an oath was a terrible thing and that girl's credibility for the evidence of others was unreliable, the evidence of others to be a special pervert. J. H. Cartwright, K.C., for the Crown. Judgment reserved.

WONDERLAND.

The class of entertainment already given at Wonderland has made it popular, and the animated cinematograph projection pictures shown this week are well up to the high standard set by the management, and will continue to enjoy the best patronage of Napanee with equality as good, if not better, entertainments than have been given. Wonderland opened its doors to the public on Monday from our advertising. Those that attended are repeating the thrilling pictures are changing for to-day and to-morrow. Owing to a number of residents wishing to see the pictures twice the manager at the earliest opportunity is gratifying their desire.

Also further the the manager has a new feature for our people, that is every purchaser of an admission ticket receives a coupon which entitles you to share in the drawing for a beautiful 5-day clock, now on exhibition in Messrs. Smiths' Jewellery store window. Also in Drawing will take place at 9.30 o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, 25th inst. The name of the winner will be published in this paper. Watch out for this as you may be the winner.

The last of the fall shows will be held at Odessa, on Friday, 4th Oct. Everybody goes there to meet everybody.

NOTICE.

I, Mrs. E. J. Hinch, Centreville, have closed her business and is moving away. All accounts must be settled by the end of this month. 38b

OCTOBER DELINEATOR.

The October number of this popular ladies' magazine is unusually full of interest to all the fair sex, as well as the young people of the household. It is far and away the best of the fashion publications, and deserves a place in every home. The Butterick Publishing Co., New York City.

MITE BOX SOCIAL.

The quarterly return of the mite boxes will be held in the Sunday School room of the Presbyterian Church, on Monday evening, 23d Sept., at 8 o'clock. All holders of boxes are requested to bring them in, as members of the congregation and the public generally are requested to be present. A good programme will also be provided. 37b

MADE-IN-CANADA FAIR.

A meeting of the committee of the Ladies' Aid of the Kingston General Hospital will be held in the Board Room of the Public Library on Monday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Business of importance.

Donations for the above fair are to be sent to the Board Room on the afternoons of Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 1st and 2d.

SOMETHING NEW.

A hog hoard has been established in connection with the Picton cheese board. The the board farmers will come in with their own hogs and also all those that they are empowered to sell to neighbors. The local buyers will attend. The selling of hogs will be divided into four classes: Selects, fat, light and sows. It is anticipated that this new idea will be beneficial alike to buyer and seller for the former will be able to get extra orders in Town and the farmer seller will gain the advantage in the competition. The first of these sales will commence work in earnest next week.

DON'T GET THE IMITATION.

The Genuine Mentholatum (the Japanese Salve) has been so successful in curing piles, burns, sprains, sores, insect bites, cold sores, etc., that several imitations are now on the market. Get the Genuine at Wallace's Drug Store. Ask for free sample.

ASHCROFT McWILLIAMS.

A sad funeral took place at St. Luke's Church, Camden East, on Tuesday, Sept. 17th, at 2 p.m., when the remains of Mrs. Jeffers Ashcroft McWilliams were interred in the cemetery adjoining. The service was instrumental in holding. The burial service was read by the Rev. Rivers, rector of R.C.L. Rector, assisted by a full choir, and was very largely attended. The hymns sung were 23, 27, 36. The pallbearers were Messrs. Thomas and Samuel Hamilton, John B. Hendershot, Mark Wright, Alex. Galbraith and Charles Emberley. He leaves a husband, Mr. Asheroft McWilliams and a sister, Mrs. Gray, of Parham, a daughter, Mrs. Constance McWilliams, and a son, William, Fred., Elgin, Ezra and George.

The deceased lady had been ill for some time, but died very suddenly, sitting in his chair, Sunday morning, at the home of her daughter and son of his family. He was a thoroughly good man and a man of splendid neighbor, and will be missed in many ways by a large circle of friends. Our warmest sympathy goes out to the family. A step son, Mr. Archibald T. Lote, is also a Napanee College. Brother of the deceased lady had been ill for some time, but died very suddenly, sitting in his chair, Sunday morning, at the home of her daughter and son of his family. He was a thoroughly good man and a man of splendid neighbor, and will be missed in many ways by a large circle of friends. Our warmest sympathy goes out to the family. A step son, Mr. Archibald T. Lote, is also a Napanee College. Brother of the deceased will be present. Mr. Dunwoody conducted the funeral. "May he rest in peace, and light perpetual shine upon him."

MRS. CHARLES LLOYD.

Death entered the home of Mr. J. Albert Bell, Morven, on Tuesday, 10th Sept., and took away the beloved mother, Mrs. Lloyd after an early selection of Furs for the coming season is so great that we persistently emphasize it. It is worth all the emphases we can put upon it. We invite comparison and inspection. We have a large assortment of Ladies' fine Jackets that are made of bright, fine curled Persian Lamb cut in the fashionable "Windsor style" like the picture, with fine mink collar striped, lapels running right down front to waist, with long black silk girdle. These are lined throughout with best satin. These we have at all prices.

SPECIAL FOR FRIDAY ONLY, the last day of the Exhibition. We will give a straight 15 per cent. off our Furs for an inducement to early buyers.

Ask to see SILVERCLOTH, the magic polisher for Silverware and all Brass Mountings, for sale by us only, 25 cents.

We have arranged a carefully selected musical programme for our exhibit in the palace Thursday night and Friday afternoon, when the finest selections ever heard on a piano will be your pleasure to hear. (All are invited.)

DRESS GOODS AND SILKS.

Our unique position as APPAREL SPECIALISTS cannot be better demonstrated than in our ability to show this early a stock as satisfactory have we, in this desire to prepare early, relaxed our usual safeguards for ensuring the worthiness of every offering.

We have spared no expense in searching the markets of the world for the best styles and values to offer our customers, and we have every confidence in soliciting your orders.

The great success of our Dress Goods and Silks Department is due to the fact that we have entirely ignored the old custom of adding fancy profits to our prices. We mark all Dress Goods and Silks at one small profit plan that prevails throughout the entire store. Everything thrown open in these departments for Exhibition visitors.

Book your order now for the Dressmaking Department, under the management of Miss Mathers, of New York, at Napanee prices. Perfect fit guaranteed. Come in and get quotations.

Our Glove Dept.

is a big item to figure on this week for exhibition visitors, because we are sole agents for Pwmsey's Kid Gloves, every pair guaranteed. They are made of finest and softest French kid, cut, sewn and finished with the greatest care. Notice particularly the blown fingers, piqué sewing, that imperial pointed finish and two dome fasteners.

The best fall colors of tan, brown, oxblood, green, grey, navy, black, pearl and cream, ivory and black, sizes, 5½ to 7½. Per pair, $1.00 to $1.50.

REV. JACOB CLANCY.

Napanee, Sept. 24th, 1907.

Editor Napanee Beaver:

Dear Sir,—Having had the great privilege of visiting your beautiful city, for the many long years absent, I took the advantage of an opportunity, possibly my last, of spending a day at Napanee show, on Friday of last week. I was glad to see the fine exhibition of to me dear old Lennox and Addington. The improvements in town and county are very obvious. Many buildings have changed sexually for the better. But of far greater importance to me was the privilege of meeting scores of my old friends, many of fifty and sixty long years ago. I was surprised to meet so many who know me at first sight. After the cordial hand-shake, then expressions—"Why, Why I am so glad to see you, how healthy you look, are you never to grow old, do you still sing as you used to over fifty years ago, do you laugh and tell as many amusing anekotes as you used to in the old singing schools of long ago? How is your general health, how is your eyesight, and how is your hearing, have you rheumatism, you are so very fleshy, how many children did you have, and how many children out of the twelve are living, and where are they and what they doing?" I know it would be too much to ask, but I would like your photograph.

And now, Mr. Editor, the best I can do is to leave the photo with you, so do your best to give in The Beaver the old man as he is in appearance to-day, and this is the best I can do at this time. I know that many will prize it highly, not for its beauty, but for old friendship's sake. Pardon me will, no doubt, give it a passing glance, and then place it in the waste basket.

And now for a few answers to the many questions. I am now nearing my seventy-seventh birthday; health so-so; unable for work; can't be one of my age; take no medicine; health good every day in the year; never have headache nor rheumatism; use no glasses; and sing and laugh as loud and hearty as ever, all to the glory of God, as much so as over fifty years ago, I am happy. I am here, after spending over one month at Portland, Maine, where my second son is a minister. I was asked to preach in several of the churches there, also to sing sacred songs accompanied by organ or piano played by myself. Also preached and sang several Sundays at six-thirty open air mission services, standing beside an old monument, they said dating back over two hundred years, just above the old boisterous sea. I also was asked to sing, "We've sighted the Golden Gate." I also visited Old Orchard Beach, sang and preached at a great rampmeeting, and on my return visited old Montreal, spending a very pleasant night with my dear friend of long ago, Dr. W. R. Young and family, including Mrs. (Dr.) Aylesworth, who is now visiting her sister, Mrs. Young. I was honored with the privilege of singing in his church, also a vocal solo. The church is said to seat three thousand people, the large-t Methodist church I was ever in. The Rev. Mr. Young is very popular as a gospel preacher.

And now, where my home? Well, I answer, Albion, Michigan, a city of some seven thousand inhabitants. A fine large Methodist College there. Albion is ninety miles west of Detroit, two hundred east of Chicago, on the Michigan Central R. R.

Concerning the large family. Two, Rockwell and Dennis, are missionaries in far away India, the former being the advantage of an opportunity, possibly my last, of spending a day at Napanee show, on Friday of last week. I was glad to see the fine exhibition of to me dear old Lennox and Addington. The improvements in town and county are very obvious. Many buildings have changed sexually for the better. But of far greater importance to me was the privilege of meeting scores of my old friends, many of fifty and sixty long years ago. I was surprised to meet so many who know me at first sight. REV. JACOB CLANCY.

Napanee, Sept. 24th, 1907.

Editor Napanee Beaver:

Dear Sir,—Having had the great privilege of visiting your beautiful city, after many long years absence, I took the advantage of an opportunity, possibly my last, of spending a day at Napanee show, on Friday of last week. I was glad to see the fine exhibition of to me dear old Lennox and Addington. The improvements in town and county are very obvious. Many things have changed grandly for the better. But of far greater importance to me was the privilege of meeting scores of my old friends, many of fifty and sixty long years ago. I was surprised to meet such a host who knew me at first sight. After the cordial hand-shake, then came these expressions, Why I am glad to see you. Why you look, are you never to grow old, do you still sing as you used to over fifty years ago, do you laugh and tell as many amusing anecdotes as you used to in the old singing schools of long ago? How is your general health, how is your hearing, have you rheumatism, you are so very fleshy, how much do you weigh, how old are you, how many children out of the twelve are living, and where are they and what are they doing? I know it would be too much to ask, but I would like your photograph.

And now, Mr. Editor, the best I can do is to leave the photo with you to do your best for me as he is to paint me with a pleasant appearance to-day, and this is the best I can do at this time. I know that many will prize it highly, not for its beauty, but for old friendship's sake. Many will, no doubt, give it a passing glance, and then place it in the waste basket.

And now for a few answers to the many questions. I am now nearing my seventy-seventh year, and this is pretty well for me. I am not a lover of my age; take no medicine; health good every day in the year; never have headache or rheumatism; use no glasses, and can hear as loud and hearty as ever. All to the glory of God, as much so as over fifty years ago. I am happy. I am here, after spending over one month at Portland, Maine, where my second son is a minister. I was asked to preach in several of the churches there, also to sing sacred solos, accompanied by organ or piano played by myself. Also preached and sang several Sundays at six-thirty open air mission services, standing beside an old monument, they said dating back over two hundred years, just where the old Puritan boisterous sea. I also was asked to sing, "We're sighted in the Golden Gate." I also visited Old Orchard Beach, sang and preached at a great campmeeting, and on my return visited old Montreal, spending a very pleasant night with my dear friend of long ago, Dr. W. H. Young and family, including Mrs. (Dr.) Aylesworth, who is now visiting her sister, Mrs. Young. I was honored with the privilege of singing in his church, also a vocal solo. The church is said to seat three thousand people, the largest Methodist church I was ever in. The Rev. Mr. Young is very popular as a gospel preacher.

And now, where is my home? Well, I answer, Albion, Michigan, a city of some seven thousand inhabitants. A fine large Methodist College there. Albion is ninety miles west of Detroit, two hundred east of Chicago, on the Michigan Central R. R.

Concerning the large family. Two, Rockwell and Dennis, are missionaries in far away India, the former being there twenty-four years, the latter over eight years. One son is in Portland, Maine; one in Chicago. Seven of the four are great preachers, in my estimation. But I believe them all good men, and preaching a full gospel by their faith ful preaching bringing hundreds to the feet of Jesus, who are saved by faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. One of the great joys of my old age is to think that father and four sons are sounding the old gospel trumpet on each Sabbath somewhere in this sin-cursed world, and the rest of the family, M. and Mrs. Dr. Bowen, doctor in Chicago; B. A., a professor in High School at Ausable, Mich. The daughters being, one married. A. D. B., Chicago; younger girl, Mrs. Kenyon, who came right over to Battle Creek, her husband being engaged in U. S. mail service; one at home. Ten in all.

The first break in the family was our eldest little boy, over fifty years ago; next daughter, Mrs. Z. A. VanLoven, Napanee, who died Nov. 6th, 1906. Also my beloved companion in life on Feb. 22, following our daughter.

And now, Mr. Editor, make the best out of this hurried manuscript with all its apparent mistakes. Thanking you, very much, for your kind forbearancy, I remain as ever,

Yours faithfully, JACOB CLANCY,
Christian Guardian and Kingston Whig please copy. Albion, Mich.

ODESSA.

The local teams of football had a game on Saturday evening, but the younger ones came to grief. Never mind, boys, try again. You will do better next time.

Well, the "world's fair" will come off next Friday, and you all know what that means. It is a great pity there is no race course, as it would be better all around.

There will be a millinery opening on Saturday, 28th of Sept., in the rooms occupied by Mrs. Garvin, of Sydenham. If you want a chic new hat, you will find it there at right prices.

We are sorry to say that after next week Dr. C. C. Nash will only come on each Wednesday. It is too bad, as he had an excellent practice attend to in the two days. His office will be found on Princess st., No. 183, over Dr. Bowen's drug store.

Next Sabbath being review day, Rev. McCamus will take the service in the morning. All the children are expected to be present. On the next Sabbath the school will attend in the morning at 9.45, and the regular morning service at 11 a.m.

Mr. John Hamilton, of Millbrook, came to attend the funeral of his brother, Mr. David Hamilton, of Kingston, since which time he has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Sproule, and other friends.

Miss Donaldson arrived from Toronto on a visit to her brother, A. P. Donaldson, of the Crown Bank after which she will take a trip to the Old Country for a year. We wish her a pleasant ocean trip.

Mr. Darius Babcock, of Kingston, has taken part of Mr. B. Derbyshire's building on main street.

Miss Lillie Jones has gone on a visit to her sister at Berlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson at W. A. Baker's.

Mrs. King with her sister, M's Kenyon, have returned from California.

Miss Kenyon is much improved in health.

Last, but not least, Segur's merry-go-round is expected here on fair day. Hurrah.

COUNTY ROAD INSPECTION.

Warden Gallagher and Reeve Lowry took a trip through North and South Fredericksburgh, Adolphustown and Ernesttown, last week, and report finding the work of County Road Engineer Milling very creditably done, especially in South Fredericksburgh and Adolphustown, as all those townships are almost free from lime stone quarries, so hard heads had to be used, which are in our opinion rather a poor substitute for good road building material. We also observe that this has been a hard year to build roads. The ground is very dry for grading, and on account of there being no rain, the newly made roads do not pack together well, and in some places the gravel rolls off the road more easily than if the ground were wet. Many places we advised a small banking against new made gravel.

We found the people we met with of an enterprising nature, well pleased with the idea of improving our County roads, and many wondered why more is not done. We answered them by saying this County Council pursue paying as they go, and the improvements of the roads will only add half a mill on the dollar to our County tax in 1907. Furthermore, we have two first class road making outfits paid for, viz., 2 new 17 horse power traction engines, 2 stone crushers, 1 grader, 1 rooter plow, 2 spreading wagons, water tanks and other necessary tools, and prospects are that road improvements will wind up by the 19th of October, which time we consider late enough to successfully operate machinery, as the weather and short days are injurious to good results.

The County Council has built a new bridge at Selby at a cost of about $850.00, and are now erecting one at Millhaven at a cost of $1,700. This has concrete abutments, built of cement ballast and clean stone, with a concrete covering and guaranteed for twenty years of any material. This like the one at Sharp's, will be as a monument to Ernestown.

We also visited the old U. E. Loyalist burial ground of our County, and wondered if the present Canadians are as loyal as they were. We felt enthused with loyalty as we walked through the cemetery and viewed first the headstone monument that has been erected in memory of those loyal ones who left their native country and landed on that coast in 1784. We viewed many old monuments, bearing the names of Vandusen, Thompson, Hoffland, Hamptom, Allison, the latter being amongst the oldest. Mrs. S. Allison being born in, 1745, 162 years ago. We are sorry the friends of the departed ones do not respect the dead so much as to even enclose the ground with a fence, and cut the shrubbery down and clean the weeds and burrs away.

As it was our first visit to some parts of the County, we were much impressed with what we saw. We find South Fredericksburgh one of the best townships in the County for its size. Adolphustown is pretty good, but poorly fenced. Very few rail or board fences, principally barb wire, and that poorly strung on cedar posts. West of Conway is the worst in respect to buildings, etc. Conway has some nice dwellings and the road on east to Ernestown is very fine. We finally came to Ernesttown Station, where the train was taken for Napanee.

"SIS" IN NEW YORK.

The bill boards are carrying an attractive line of paper, announcing the coming of a comedy favorite, which it will not be extravagant to say has no equal among our theatre goers in popularity. The awkward, pigtailed Hoosier lassie "Sis" without a lovable creature and her Posey County friends, are announced in a new skit this season. "Sis in New York", the author has seen fit to call it, and it is said to reveal the Hoosier comedians in a part well suited to her peculiar style of comedy. The local date is Brisco Opera House, Tuesday evening, 1st Oct.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army holds its annual Harvest Festival services on Sunday next, Sept. 29th, commencing at 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7.30 p.m. respectively. The hall is being decorated for the occasion, and any kind friend wishing to donate goods or produce may deliver at the hall or notify the officers or soldiers, and it will be called for. The disposal of the goods or produce will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 1st. The Salvation Army has already established its claim to the attention of the public by its permanent reformation work, the proceeds of this effort goes to the maintenance and extension of that work. "Honor the Lord with the first fruits of thy increase."

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Sept. 18th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ward, Colebrook, when their only daughter, Florence, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Arthur Baker, son of H. A. Baker, Esq., Moscow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. Farnsworth, Yarker, only the immediate relatives of the bridal party being present. The bride looked charming in white point de sprit over silk, taffi with Honiton collar. After a sumptuous breakfast, the happy couple left on the afternoon train for Montreal and Ottawa. Among the many beautiful and useful presents of which the bride was the recipient was a cheque for $500.00, the gift of her father.

LEGAL NEWS.

Rex v. Armstrong.—Judgment (J.) on motion by John Armstrong, the defendant, for leave to appeal and for order requiring the Police Magistrate for the town of Napanee to state a case for the opinion of the court. The defendant was convicted on the charge, under sec. 301 of the criminal code, of carnally knowing a girl of fourteen years, not being his wife, and was sentenced to be imprisoned in the penitentiary for seven years, the Magistrate refusing the request of counsel for the applicant for a stated case, on the points whether it was sufficiently proved that the girl was not the applicant's wife, whether the girl appeared sufficiently to understand the nature of an oath and whether the Magistrate in receiving her testimony under oath, and whether there was sufficient corroboration of her evidence. The application was, with the consent of the Crown, treated as the argument upon a case stated against the applicant upon all the questions, and affirmed the conviction. W. G. Wilson, (Napanee) and J. M. Field (Cobourg) for defendant. J. R. Cartwright, K.C., for the Crown.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

One of the interesting rumors among travellers and in railway circles is that a new train to and from Ottawa and Montreal is contemplated by both the companies now serving these cities. It is said that the intention is to run a train for the east, leaving Toronto about 1.30 or 2 p.m., and reaching Ottawa at 9 or 9.30 p.m., and Montreal about 10.30 p.m. Trains would also leave these cities about 1.30 or 2 p.m. for Toronto, arriving at Toronto about 10 p.m.

When Knighthood Was In Flower

"Then, sir, I must ask your pardon for the way you have been treated. We of course could not know it, but a lie to the lady, you see already the result of her presence, and, much as we want you, we cannot take her. Aside from the general trouble which a woman takes with her everywhere"—Many would not even look at the creature —"no shipboard there is another and greater objection. It is said, you know, among sailors that a woman on board draws bad luck to certain sorts of ships, and every sailor would desert before we could weigh anchor if it were known this lady was to go with us. Should they find it out in midocean a mutiny would be sure to follow, and God only knows what would happen. For her sake if for no other reason take her ashore at once."

Brandon was only too plainly the truth that he had really seen all the time, but to which he had shut his eyes, and throwing Mary's cloak over her shoulders, prepared to go ashore. As they went over the side and pulled off a great shout went up from the ship far more derisive than cheering, and the men at the oars looked at each other askance and smiled. What a predicament for a princess! Brandon cursed himself for having been such a knave and fool as to allow this to happen. He had known the danger all the time, and his act could not be chargeable to ignorance or a failure to see the probable consequences. Temptation and selfish desire had given him temerity in place of judgment.

When the princess stepped ashore, it seemed to her as if the heart in her breast was a different and separate organ from the one she had carried aboard.

As the boat put off again for the ship its crew gave a cheer coupled with some vile advice, for which Brandon would gladly have run them through, each and every one. He had to swallow his chagrin and anger and really blamed no one but himself, though it was torture to him that this girl should be subjected to such insults and be powerless to avenge them. The news had spread from the wharf like wildfire, and on their way back to the Inn Brandon and String there came from small boys and hidden voices such exclamations as: "Look at the woman in man's clothing!" "Isn't he a beautiful navy!" "Look at him blush!" and others too coarse to be repeated. Imagine the humiliating situation, from which there was no escape.

At last they reached the inn, whither their chests soon followed them, sent by Brandon, together with their passage money, which he very honestly refunded.

Mary soon donned her woman's attire, of which she had a supply in her chest, and at least felt more comfortable without the jack boots. She had made her toilet alone for the first time in her life, having no maid to help her, and was almost content to endure this punishment was like plucking the very heart out of her. Her hope had been so high that she felt very low in consequence. Nay, even more; hope had become fruition to her when they were once a shipboard, and failure right at the door of success made it doubly hard to bear. It crushed her, and where before had been hope and confidence was nothing now but despair. Like all people with a great capacity for elation, when she sank she touched the bottom. Alas, Mary, the uncomfortable, was down at last.

This failure meant so much to her. It meant that she would never be Brandon's wife, but would go to France to endure the dreaded old Frenchman. At that thought a recoil came, and she asserted itself, and she stamped her foot and swore upon her soul it should never be—never, never, so long as she had strength in her or voice to cry "No!" The thought of this marriage and of the loss of Brandon was painful enough, but there came another, entirely new to her and infinitely worse.

Hastily arranging her dress she went into the cabin of Brandon, whom she quickly found and took to her room.

After closing the door she said: "I have come, Jane, to conclude a miracle of disappointment and pain when compelled to leave the ship, for it meant that I should lose you and have to marry Louis of France. But I have found that there is still a possible pain more poignant than either, and I cannot bear it; so I come to you—you who are the great cure for all my troubles. Oh, that I could lay them here all my life long," and she put her head upon his breast, forgetting what she had intended to say.

"What is the trouble, Mary?"

"Oh, yes! I thought of that marriage and of losing you, and then, oh, Mary Mother! I thought of some other woman having you to herself. I could see her with you, and I was jealous—I think they call it. I have heard of the pangs of jealousy, and if the fear of a rival is so great what would the reality be? It would kill me; I could not endure it. I cannot endure even this, and I want you to swear that"—

Brandon took her in his arms as she began to weep.

"I will gladly swear by everything I hold sacred that no other woman than you shall ever be my wife. If I cannot have you, be sure you have spoiled every other woman for me. There is but one in all the world—but one. I can at least save you that pain."

She then stood on tiptoes to lift her lips to him and said: "I love you for the same promise. How you must have suffered when you thought I was to wed another!"

After a pause she went on: "But it might have been worse—that is, it would be worse if you should marry some other woman; but that is all settled now and I feel easier. Then I might have married the old French king, but that, too, is settled, and we can endure the lesser pain. It always helps us when we are able to think it might have been worse."

Brandon might have escaped from England in the Royal Blind, for the wind had come up shortly after they left the ship, and they could see the sails indistinctly through the gloom as she got under way. But he could not leave Mary alone, and had made up his mind to take her back to London and march straight into the jaws of death with her if the king's men did not soon come.

He knew that a debt to folly bears no grace, and was ready with his principal and usance.

CHAPTER XVIII.

IN THE TOWER.

WHETHER or not Brandon would have found some way to deliver the princess safely home is a question which I cannot say, as he soon had no choice in the matter. At midnight a body of grimy men from the Tower took possession of the Bow and String and carried Brandon off to London without communication with Mary. She did not know of his arrest until next morning, when she was informed that she was to follow immediately, and her heart was nearly broken.

There again was trouble for Mary. Her wits, however, that two years of idleness, the marriage of herself to Louis, and Brandon to any other person, were, as she called it, "settled," and was almost content to endure this as a mere putting off of her desires, a meddlesome and impertinent interference of the fates, who would learn with whom they were dealing and amend their conduct.

She did not understand the consequences for Brandon, nor that the fates would have to change their purpose very quickly or something would happen worse even than his marriage to another woman.

On the second morning after leaving Bristol Brandon reached London and, as he expected, was sent to the Tower. The next evening Lady Mary arrived and was taken down to Greenwich.

The girl's fair name was of course lost, but, fortunately, that goes for little with a princess—since no one would believe that Brandon had protected her against himself as valiantly and honorably as he would against another. The princess being much more unsophisticated than the courtiers were ready to believe never thought of saying anything to establish her innocence or virtue, and her silence was put down to shame and taken as evidence against her.

Jane met Mary at Windsor, and of course there was a great flood of tears.

Upon arriving at the palace the girls were left to themselves, upon Mary's promise not to leave her room, but by the next afternoon she, having been unable to learn anything concerning Brandon, broke her parole and went out to see the king.

It never occurred to Mary that Brandon might suffer death for attempting to run away with her. She knew only too well that she alone was to blame, not only for that but for all that had taken place between them, and never for one moment thought that he could be punished for her fault, even admitting there was fault in any one, which she was by no means ready to do.

The trouble in her mind growing out of a lack of news from Brandon was of a present nature, and the possibility of his death had no place in her thoughts. Nevertheless for the second time Brandon has been condemned to die for her sake. The king's seal had stamped the warrant for the execution and the headsman's axe was ready to fall, and could almost count the golden fee for his butchery.

Mary found the king playing cards with De Longueville. There was a roomful of courtiers, and as she entered she was the target for every eye, but she was on familiar ground now and did not care for the glances nor the observers, most of whom she despised. She was the princess again and full of self confidence, so she went straight to the object of her visit, the king. She had not made up her mind just what to say first, there was so much, but Henry saved her the trouble. He, of course, was in a great rage and denounced Mary's conduct as unnatural and treasonable, the latter, in Henry's mind, being a crime many times greater than the breaking of all the commandments put together in one fell, composite act. All this the king had communicated to Mary by the lips of Wolsey the evening before, and Mary had received it with a silent scorn that would have withered any one but the worthy bishop of York. As I said, when Mary approached her brother he saved her the trouble of deciding where to begin by speaking first himself, and his words were of a part with his nature, violent, cruel and vulgar. He abused her and called her all the vile names in his ample vocabulary of billingsgate. The queen was present and added a shrewish word or word now and then, until Henry, with her help, at last succeeded in working himself into a towering passion and wound up by calling Mary a vile wanton in plainer terms than I like to write. This aroused all the princess in the girl, and there was plenty of it. She feared Henry no more than she feared me. Her eyes flashed fire, and in the girl, and there was plenty of it. She feared Henry no more than she feared me. Her eyes flashed fire, and she exclaimed: "You give me that name and expect me to remember you are my brother? There are words that make a mother hate her firstborn, and that is one. Tell me what I have done to deserve it? I expected to hear of ingratitude and disobedience and all that, but supposed you had at least some traces of brotherly feeling—for the sake of blood are hard to break—even if you have of late lost all semblance to man or king."

This was hitting Henry hard, for it was beginning to be the talk in every capital that he was leaving all the affairs of state to Wolsey and spending his time in puerile amusement. "The good hope which at all points appeared in the youngne Kynge" was beginning to look, after all, like nothing more than the old time royal cold fire, made to consume but not to warm the nation.

Henry looked at Mary with the stare of a baited bull.

"If running off in male attire and stopping at inns and boarding ships with a common captain of the guard doesn't justify my accusation and stamp you what you are, I do not know what would."

Even Henry saw her innocence in her genuine surprise. She was indeed but a little time, and I, standing close to her, could plainly see that this phase of the question had never before presented itself.

She hung her head for a moment and then spoke: "It may be true, as you say, that what I have done will lose me my fair name—I had never thought of it in that light—but it is also true that I am innocent and have done no wrong. You may not believe me, but you can ask Master Brandon"—here the king gave a great laugh, and of course the courtiers joined in.

"It is all very well for you to laugh, but Master Brandon would not tell you a lie for your crown." Gods! I could have fallen on my knees to a fatih like that. "What I tell you is true. I trusted him so completely that the fear of dishonor at his hands never entered itself to me. I knew he would care for and respect me. I trusted him, and my trust was not misplaced, for how many of these creatures who laugh when the king laughs could I say as much?" And Henry knew she spoke the truth, both concerning herself and the courtiers.

With downcast eyes she continued: "I suppose, after all, you are partly right in regard to me, for it was his honor that saved me, and how many of I am not what you called me I have Master Brandon to thank—not myself."

"We will thank you publicly on Tower hill day after tomorrow at noon," said the king, with his accustomed delicacy, leaving the prisoners of Brandon's sentence as abruptly as possible.

With a look of terror in her eyes Mary screamed: "What! Charles Brandon to die!!!—You are going to kill him?"

"I think we will," responded Henry. "It is hardly fair that effect, to separate the head from the body and quarter the remains to decorate the four gates. We will take you up to London this day or two and let you see his beautiful head on the bridge."

"Behead—quarter—bridge! Lord Jesu!" She could not grasp the thought. She tried to speak, but the words would not come. In a moment she became more coherent, and the words rolled from her lips as a mighty flood tide pours back through the arches of London bridge.

"You shall not kill him. He is blameless. You do not know. Drive these cawking fools out of the room, and I will tell you all." The king ordered the room cleared of everybody but Wolsey, Jane and myself, who remained at Mary's request. When all were gone, the princess continued: "Brother, this man is in no way to blame. It is all my fault—my fault and he loves me. I did all the tried to run away to New Spain with me. It may be that I have done wrong and that my conduct has been unmaidenly, but I could not help it. From the first time I ever saw him in the lists with you at Windsor there was a gnawing hunger in my heart beyond my control. I supposed of course that day he would contrive some way to be presented to me".

"You did?"

"Yes, but he made no effort at all, and when we met he treated me as if I were an ordinary girl."

"He did?"

"Yes."

"Horrible."

Mary was too intent on her story to heed the sarcasm, and continued: "That made me all the more interested in him, since it showed that he was different from the wretches who beset you and me with their flattery, and I soon began to seek him on every occasion. This is an unmaidenly history I am giving, I know, but it is the truth and must be told. I was satisfied at first if I could only be in the same room with him and see his face and hear his voice. The very air he breathed was like an elixir for me. I made every excuse to have him near me. I asked him to my parties—you know about that—and—and did all I could to be with him. At first he was gentle and kind, but soon, I think, he saw the dawning danger in both our hearts, as I, too, saw it, and he avoided me in every way he could, knowing the trouble it ligid for us both. Oh, he was the wisest and best—I think to what I have brought him. Brother, let me die for him—I who alone am to blame. Take my life and spare him—spare him! He was the victim of my folly. I did all the wisdom in the world could have saved us. He almost insulted me once in the park—told me to leave—that it hurt him more than me, I am now sure, but he did it to keep matters from growing worse between us. I did not remember the affront, but could not, and had he struck me I believe I should have gone back to Henry, but I doubt if

DEATH OF S. H. FAIRFIELD.

Lethbridge Herald, Sept. 13th.

Yesterday afternoon there passed away at the Galt Hospital where his trouble was found to be appendicitis in such an advanced stage that operation was the only hope. Two operations were performed but th disease had taken too firm a hold and yesterday afternoon the end came.

The deceased was born in western Pennsylvania just twenty-seven years ago, and was the youngest of the family. In a few years they moved to Colorado, where the family lived until eight years ago when they returned to Ontario, near Kingston. Here upon the deceased came to Lethbridge, entering into partnership with his brother, W. H. Fairfield, in the firm of Fairfield Bros., known throughout Alberta as having the model farm of the South. Since the appointment of W. H. Fairfield to be director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, the younger brother had the entire management of the farm.

The young man was of a retiring disposition, but what friends he had were true to a man. Throughout the city and district he was highly respected as a man of the strictest religious character and citizenship qualities. As an expert farmer he has done much for the farmers of Western Alberta.

Mr. Fairfield's father, mother and sister live at Collingwood, near Kingston, Ont. The mother is visiting a daughter in Boston, and owing to the telegrapher's strike could not be sent for in time for her to reach Lethbridge before his death.

The body was brought home for burial by his brother, W. H. Fairfield, and the funeral took place Wednesday, Sept. 25th, from the Presbyterian church.

HISTORICAL

The new room in the Public Library building is nearing completion, and it is hoped that the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will be able to hold its meeting in the new building in the latter part of October. The constitution provides that all clergymen and school teachers resident in the county shall be ex-officio members. The secretary desires that those who are members under this clause send their names and addresses to him at once in order to ensure that notices and publications may be mailed regularly.

Several citizens have very kindly presented documents, maps, newspapers and records of this county and district, and it is hoped that all of those who possess such valuable material will do so, as the society has been formed for the benefit of the whole district, and to make it successful everyone must help.

A number of early maps and pictures of each district are desired as they will add materially to the historic value of the collection and will be useful for decorating the walls of the society's room.

The fee for annual members has been placed at one dollar per year. Anyone is eligible for membership and it is desired to have every part of the county represented. The publications of the society will be especially interesting to those who have moved to distant points, yet who have still a fondness for their old home.

The Secretary, Mr. F. J. Fish, of Napanee, will acknowledge all communications and will be pleased to give any information about our work. Very respectfully,

CLARENCE M. WARNER,
President.

BATH.

Quite a number of our citizens took in the Shells tar on Thursday of this week.

Owing to the heavy winds on Tuesday and Wednesday the steamer Metta did not make her regular trips here those days.

On Sunday next the steamer Captain makes her last trip to Rochester, N.Y., and no doubt quite a number from these parts will take advantage of the excursion to that city.

Mr. Barton, who has been an assistant to Dentist Nash, left on Tuesday for Toronto to attend Dental College there.

Preparations are being made for a cement sidewalk on a portion of main street.

Miss Maggie Forrester has secured a position as assistant principal of the high school at St. Thomas, Ont.

Overton Ball also Wm. H. Hall have had their stores repainted.

Millinery Opening,

SATURDAY, SEPT. 28th.

Fall Millinery Opening display will be ready Saturday morning. All interested are cordially invited to see what our millinery artists are preparing for you.

Grand Evening Exhibit Ready at 7.30 P.M.

Following our custom we will hold our Opening night exhibit commencing at 7.30 p m. Our new windows will not be ready but our interior displays will be well worth coming down town to see. Building operations will interfere with some of the department displays. But what is a loss to one department will be made up for by others. Don't fail to see the Women's Ready-to-wear and Fur Department displays on first floor.

Men's Fall Hats, Correct Styles.

Which is your practice; to get a soft hat for early fall wear, or to start out with the derby first thing?

We are ready for you either way. We have the Buckley hat at $2.00 in different shapes, and then those who wish something extra good can have the "King" at $2.50.

Stiff hats are in even a wider selection than the soft hats.

Other prices and shapes in soft hats can be had at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50.

CAPS, CAPS, CAPS.

Boys' and Children's Caps for school wear and dress.

Men's Caps for all purposes, in fall or winter weights.

Men's Fall Overcoats, Black and Grey, Silk Faced.

"Sovereign" Brand Make.

Very stylish and dressy. Every one of them all wool, worth $13.50 and $15.00. Our special prices, $11.25 and $13.50.

New Winter Overcoats. New Raincoats.

For men are all here and in stock. There is no satisfactory reason for any man not buying clothes here. There is every reason why he should buy them here. Qualities are equal to the best. Assortments are larger than you will find in many city stores, and prices are less than you will have to pay elsewhere for same value.

School Umbrellas.

60 Children's Umbrellas at 50c, regular value 75c.

40 extra strong, double braced, fast colored cover, Umbrellas, regular $1.25, special $1.00.

25 extra large size Umbrellas, two inch wider cover than the regular size, special $1.50.

Men's Custom Tailoring.

More and more men have learned this past year that for satisfactory ordered clothing they must come to Robinson's.

NEW FALL GOODS ARE READY.

To-day we have the new effects in Cheviots, Cassimeres and Worsteds doesn't convey any idea of the variety of choice. Come and see your particular notion of coloring and pattern is bound to be in the showing.

Men's and Youth's New Fall Suits.

THE NEW STYLES ARE EXCEEDINGLY ATTRACTIVE.

Clothing of marked individuality and character—studies in style that no man who gives thought to correct raiment can afford to miss.

Fabrics are in new weaves and color tone, and in a sweeping variety that includes st yles to meet every good taste. Everywhere in the showing are shadow stripes, fancy weaves, conservative checks, medium checks and big bold overplaids.

Coats have the loose natural shoulder, good taste taking the place of heavy padding.

But come and see the new clothing. You can't ignore the Robinson Co. showing if you wish to know what's what in fall styles

Men's Fall Suits, $5.00 to $17.50. Youth's Fall Suits, $5 00 to $15.00,

CLEARING BARGAINS—If you are not particular and can use one of last season's suits, you will find we have bargains that are at less than wholesale prices. Broken sizes, but plenty of each size.

Dress Goods and Silk Exhibit.

The rush is now on in our dress goods department. The exceptional advantages offered in quality and price cannot be passed lightly by. Everyone who is interested in dress and its adjuncts should certainly pay a visit to this department. Some of the leading features in our dress section might be mentioned. Black fabrics have a place among themselves. It would be simply an impossibility to enumerate the immense range, but call your attention to a few special numbers. Rekartah, Armures, Bedfglaines, Panamas, Duchess Cloth, stand in the first rank. You cannot buy more satisfactory materials. We want to show you these goods. We know what the verdict will be.

Broadcloths, Amazons, Venetians—We feel proud to be able to show such an immense line of plain cloths, and also to be in a position to quote you them at such exceptional good value. They have the weight, the finish that places them in a class of their own. If you are thinking of a plain suit in black, navy, brown, green, fawn, burgandy, mulberry, purple, we have it. Such an assortment comprises the wantable shades. Prices from 50c to $3 50 per yd.

Plaids are very prominent this season and the range we are showing would indicate this as being the home of plaid dress goods. Many clans are represented—Victoria, Black Watch, Gordon, McIntosh, Ramsey, Campbell, McKinnon, Hunting Stewart, Fraser Hunting, McKenzie, etc.

New Evening Dress Materials—You can find the afternoon or the evening dress material here in just the shade you desire. Some numbers recently added are exclusive patterns in hair stripe uncrushable voiles. These are in shades of pearl grey, new green, pinks, copenhagen blue, cream, etc. The next time you are shopping have a look.

Dress Making Department.

Our Dressmaking Department is in charge of Miss Murphy, from Toronto. Our reception, fitting and work rooms are all on the first floor of our own block. Miss Murphy is a specialist in Women's tailored garments and fancy evening dresses.

Women's Fur Lined Coats.

The fur lined coat business has developed into large proportions. It is such a sensible garment for our Canadian winters. The woman who has to drive ten, twenty miles or so with temperature below zero, knows how to appreciate a number one coat. We planned for this season's furlined business months and months ago. Selected and had made to our order shells that come up to our best for quality. We bought Squirrel, Hamster and Muskrat for linings. The bulk of coats are lined with Muskrat. We believe it to be the best wearing lining of the three. Just now we have dozens of complete garments to choose from. Wouldnot you be willing to choose a month earlier than you'd planned, to get better, bigger and finer choice? Wouldn't you be doubly tempted if you knew that it meant saving? Well, it does. The Muskrat skins alone would cost us to-day many dollars more.

We start the range of desirable coats by showing either black or navy blue, 46 inch length, natural Sable collar and lapels, lined with Muskrat, at $50.00.

Better qualities at $62 50, $65.00, $70.00, $75.00, $85.00. We will be very pleased to show you. A look means no obligation to buy.

Fur Repairing Department.

Our fur repairing department is again open. In charge of Miss Hallinan, of Toronto. All kinds of fur work such as remaking, repairing, relining, changing from one shell to another, etc., taken care of in a satisfactory way. Garments needed when winter comes should be attended to now. Scarfs, cords, barrels, chains, etc., for sale in our Fur Dept. Inquiry by mail will bring early reply.

Girls' Dresses Ready To Wear.

We have at last succeeded in getting a manufacturer that knows how to make dresses for girls. One who knows how to make them right and does not charge too much for the making. We had him make up some cotton flannel dresses for ages 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Made from simple patterns such as pin and polka dots on red, cream and navy grounds. All right for school and play dresses. They are made a neat style and we can sell them for 89c, 98c, 1.25 and 1.50

For better dresses we had a few choice styles made up from all wool panama in pretty shades of brown, navy and red. For ages, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Price, 3.50, 4.00, 5.00.

DUCKS IN CHINA.

There are more ducks in China than in all the rest of the world. China, literally, is white with these birds, and day and night the country resounds with their metallic and scorn ful voices. Children herd ducks on every road, on every pond, on every farm, on every lake, on every river. There is no back yard without its duck house. There is no boat, little or great, without its duck quarters. Even in the cities of China ducks abound. They dodge between the coolies' legs. They fly, squawking, out of the way of the horses. Their indignant quack will not unseldom drown the roar of urban commerce. All over the land there are great duck hatching establishments, many of them of a capacity huge enough to produce fifty thousand young ducks every year. Ducks among the Chinese is the staple delicacy. It is salted and smoked like ham or beef.

A Trip to Pike's Peak on Foot.

By A. R. WAGAR

Pike's Peak is one of the most noted peaks of the Rocky Mountains, in fact of the United States. It is situated directly west of Colorado Springs, and is noted because it is the only mountain short of Europe that has a railroad to its summit. This road has a grade of from 5 per cent. to 25 per cent. You may say no train could make such grades, but nevertheless, it is done. A word of explanation will prove, or at least make it look more reasonable. The road bed is built entirely of rock, and every few feet a heavy timber is buried in these rocks in such a way as to form a brace against a life. The rails are placed at about the same gage as any ordinary railroad, but half way between each rail is a double set of cogs. These cogs are made in steel bars about four by one and one half inches and four feet long. Two bars are placed side by side, about one inch apart, and these bars are bolted to plates which are nailed to the ties. The biggest doubt that arises is the engine. It is built especially for such a road. The boiler is built so that when it is at the steepest grade it is level. The coach is pushed up ahead of the engine, and the engine backs down ahead of the coach, and in this case it makes it hard for any accident to happen as the coach is always on the up-hill side of the engine. The cog wheels work in the cogs and seemingly the train can be brought to a stand-still on the worst grade without much effort at all on the part of the engineer. Thousands of people make this trip each year, and never in the history of the road has there been an accident that has caused a life. Of course, people who don't like the road, have the privilege of walking, and hundreds try it, but few succeed. They say about one out of ten makes the summit.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, from Dayton, Ohio, and I, touring fiends, and I made up our minds to cheat the car company out of the car fare, and also have the honor of making Pike's Peak on foot. Nine miles up in the mountains where the altitude is all the way from one up to almost three thousand sea level makes a trip pretty hard to accomplish. Invariably one has to go back after the second degree of atmosphere. Fourteen thousand one hundred and forty-seven feet is up some, and the top is nothing finer, but we did it. I am going to tell you all it requires is a great deal of thickstickiness to make such a trip. I will not give you a short story of it.

We started from the Springs at 5 p.m., on a street car to Manitou, and got off at the Cog Road depot to the rear, the distance from Colorado Springs to Pike's Peak is about seven miles, and six miles to Manitou, so I had already covered the base, starting from the Springs at 7.30 a.m., and made the half-way house at the Cog Road depot at 5 p.m. That was the beginning of the end of the reason we made very good time. The distance between these two points is almost seven miles, and we had walked nearly seven miles in Manitou and Colorado Springs, so you see we had already covered about fourteen miles, and six more to the summit, then start-ing from the depot we made a walking race, and then you see the fun began. We had not gone more than a mile when we came to the climbing. The mountain climbing is about the same as the rope climbing in the gymnasium. That was the first time I ever saw a mountain, and I must say it is grand. I don't think I could have gone much better than I did, but I will say that those minutes, then started to walk, and then made a walking race, and then you see

ENTERPRISE.

A very pretty wedding took place at the beautiful residence of Mr. Lester Beatie, on Tuesday morning, 17th Sept., when one of our most popular young ladies, Miss Lena Deline, was joined by the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wm. Jackson, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Allin. Only the immediate friends of the bride and groom were present. The bride was supported by Miss Effie Clancy, and the groom by Mr. Earl Deline, brother of the bride. The groom gave to the bride was a beautiful gold bracelet, and to the bridesmaid a beautiful gold rine set with rubies. The presents received by the bride and groom were numerous and costly showing the esteem in which they were held. The bride's wedding costume was of cream crepe de chene and her travelling suit was of grey Venetian with white silk blouse, and hat to match. The bride will be greatly missed in the church, as she was organist of the Sabbath School, a member of the choir, President of the League, leader of the Mission Band, and a member of the Auxiliary. On the eve before the wedding the young people of the village called on the prospective bride and gave her a kitchen shower, consisting of useful articles too numerous to mention, to begin housekeeping with. The happy couple left on the 10 o'clock train for a trip to Niagara Falls and on Buffalo. They will reside in Toronto.

Mr. O. Bernard Jackson, Chesterville, is visiting at his father's, Mr. J. C. Jackson, present.

Mrs. James Thompson, of Kingston, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Clancy, a few days this week.

Sad indeed was the news that reached town from Buffalo of the death of Miss Stacia Kenny. The deceased was a daughter of the late Patrick Kenny. She died in hospital at Buffalo, where she was engaged as a nurse. She had previous to her illness, been attending the typhoid fever patients, and contracted the fever from handling ice, which developed into typhoid pneumonia. She was ill about two weeks. The remains were brought to Napanee, and thence to the family residence by the undertakers, J. D. Wagar & Sons. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning. Deceased was 27 years of age, and was highly respected by all who knew her. The family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists as numbered 1000 by Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which Dr. Shoop's Restorative gives brings is entirely due to its Restorative Nature upon the digestive and heart nerves.

A weak Stomach, causing dyspepsia, a weak Heart with palpitation or intermittent pulse, always means weak Stomach nerves or weak Heart nerves. Strengthen these inside or controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly these ailments disappear. Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis., will mail sample free. Write for them. A test will tell. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by J. B. Wallace. 36

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Woodstock Times.

I have just returned from Windsor. I have found the Rev. O. H. McGeown, the recognized pastor of the B. M. E. church occupying the parsonage and preaching to the congregation in the Oddfellows' Temple.

The trustees of the church have locked the doors against the Rev. C. A. Washington until he can show his papers, showing he is a regular bishop. The Rev. C. Davis, who was appointed by the conference in Brantford to Windsor, was put out of the pulpit by the order of the officers of the church on the 14th of July, by that act the authority of Rev. C. A. Washington, was ignored. Rev. Davis remained in Windsor for seven weeks awaiting the ruling of Rev. K. McGowan too formidable a foe to displace, left the B. M. E. connexion and joined the A. M. E. connexion and accepted charge to the A. M. E. church in Toronto.

The Rev. C. A. Washington, had been asked by the officers of the Windsor church on the 27th of February to show his papers as a Bishop, he has not yet done so, and the case is now in court, to make him show them, especially the name of the Bishop who made him.

Rev. J. G. TAYLOR.

SIMPLE HOME RECIPE.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following mixture:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple prescription, but those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home when asked stated that he could either supply the ingredients, or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

At the international tuberculosis conference at Washington, Dr. Pirquet read a report of his experiments in inoculating infants with tuberculin from cattle affected with tuberculosis that inoculation had no effect on germs. The experiments showed healthy children, but where germs existed reaction was shown by soreness and scarification. Also where no fever or other harmful effect followed. The delegates were impressed by the report, and many of them were convinced that a valuable discovery had been made. The conference decided to hold its next meeting in Washington in September, 1908.

ASLEEP IN JESUS.

Written in memory of little Estella G. Storrings, aged 6 months, 3 weeks and 4 days, who died on Sept. 14th, 1907, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Storring, Beaver Lake.

The Lord has knocked
At the door of your home
For the sweetest of treasures,
And has carried it home.

She is safe in His arms,
And dwells with Him there;
How grand now to think
She is free from all care.

You will miss this little darling
In the saddest kind of ways,
But she is living now with Jesus
Where that night is always day.

Her hands will now beckon
For fear those that are here;
For papa and for mamma,
And the loved ones so dear.

There's a promise that's left
To comfort each heart;
Your children He'll bear,
And forgive all your sins.

If you turn to your Saviour,
Trust fully in Him:
Your children He'll bear,
And forgive all your sins.

And prepare you to meet
The dear one that is gone
To live with Him where angels sing,
In His bright, happy home.

Messrs. Vanluven & Hambly will ship hogs on Tuesday next, 1st Oct. Highest market price will be paid for hogs weighing 150 lbs. and over. All hogs must be delivered before 1 o'clock p m.

BARN BURNED.

Early Tue day morning the barn belonging to Elmer Miller, Fredericksburgh, was burned to the ground with the contents, consisting of the season's crops. The stock, cows, horses and pigs were gotten out with considerable difficulty. Two hogs were burned. The fire was noticed about four o'clock. At that time a fierce electric storm was passing through this section, and it was feared other barns were also burned, but only the one has been heard from. An insurance of $600 was carried on the barn and none on the contents. The loss will be heavy as all the season's crop was stored in the barn.

DO YOU USE OLIVE OIL?

The use of Olive Oil both as a food and for medicinal purposes has been a decided increase on this continent. KEECH—CLARKE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Sept. 25th, by the Rev. C. W. DeMill, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clarke, Macdonald, when their second daughter, Ethel Violet, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. James Keech. The bride was gowned in pearl grey with white satin trimmings and carried a shower bouquet of white asters, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Lets. Mr. Melvin Keech acted as groomsman. After the congratulations the guests, numbering about fifty, partook of a sumptuous repast. The out of town guests were from Peterboro', Toronto, Bloomfield, Shannonville and Napanee. The happy couple left for Napanee and points west. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride and groom were held.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The annual Association of the teachers of Lennox and Addington will be held in the Collegiate Institute, Napanee, on Thursday and Friday, October 3d and 4th. The usually good programme has been provided. Dr. Higgins, Inspector and Superintendent of Education of the Western Provinces, now of Toronto, will address the teachers Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

An educational meeting will be held in the opera house, Thursday evening, at which Dr. Higgins will give his celebrated lecture, "Success in Life." Warden Gallagher will also give an address, subject, "The Public School from the point of view of a business man."

Good music will be furnished during the evening. The public are cordially invited to attend. Admission, 25 cents. Teachers are kindly invited to exhibit samples of pupils' work and nature collections in the Collegiate Institute.

Grand Fall Opening

AN AUTHORITATIVE EXHIBIT

Of High-Class Silks and Dress Goods, Tailor-made Costumes, Carpets and Draperies

TO OUR PATRONS AND ALL THE LADIES OF NAPANEE AND VICINITY:

We beg to call your attention to our Fall Opening, which will undoubtedly be the event of the season to lovers of high art in Model Costumes, Silks, Dress Goods, and other beautiful feminine attire.

Mr. J. S. Madill, who is an expert in the buying of artistic apparel for ladies, has just recently returned from Europe, where he visited London, Paris, Brussels, Vienna, and other noted marts. In London he purchased a magnificent lot of English and German Broadcloth. In Paris, handsome findings for Evening wear received his best attention, and it is in these particular departments that special emphasis is laid in order to impress the fact that nowhere in this District can more beautiful designs be obtained. In Brussels a large and most beautiful stock of Laces was purchased. While in Vienna the latest models in Tailor-made Costumes were ordered sent direct to this store. We have fixed as the opening day, and a broad invitation is extended to the ladies to call and inspect our magnificent stock.

We also call your attention to our first-class dressmaking department, and while this is the latest addition to our business, it is none the less complete. Here we are in a position to give entire satisfaction to our customers, both in materials, fit, finish and price.

It would be almost a hopeless task to attempt a description of the various modes which find expression in this supreme stock, but suffice it to say that exclusiveness and quality, combined with reasonableness of price, are their chief recommendation for your favor. Again we request the honor of your attendance.

Lennox Agricultural Exhibition

Fine Weather, Good Show, and Large Crowds.

The mornings of Thursday and Friday last, the dates of our annual County Exhibition, were rather threatening and cloudy, but early in the day the sun came out bright and warm and produced ideal show weather.

The racing on the first day was confined to one event, the farmers' race, and was watched by but a small crowd, resulting as follows: Zina Fitzmartin, 1; John McAlister, 2; George Johnston, 3.

Elsewhere on the grounds and in the palace all was bustle and excitement, preparing for the exhibition in the palace in the evening, and placing the exhibits on the grounds.

THE NIGHT SHOW.

The attendance on Thursday evening was perhaps the largest ever gathered in the hall, and besides the articles on exhibition, the music, baby show and other attractions, constituted a first-class evening's entertainment.

The baby show brought out fifteen promising infants, seven girls and eight boys. The Judges, Mrs. McGregor, of Alexandria, and Mr. Bowen, Toronto, performed their difficult task to the best of their judgment, though probably not to the satisfaction of two-thirds of the parents and friends interested.

The prize winning boys were, Arnold Lord, 9 months; Charles Pringle, 8 months; Walley Babcock, 5 months.

Girls—Gladys Miller, 5 months; Ethel Schermehorn, 10 months; Dorothy Storms, 10 weeks.

SECOND DAY.

The Society has for years been fortunate in having fine weather for its shows, especially on the second day, although no doubt many from a distance were prevented from coming owing to the threatening morning. The attendance was almost as large as that on the second day last year, when over three thousand were admitted at the gates.

On the grounds the exhibits were fully as numerous as in the past, and at no show in the province could be found finer animals in the various classes of horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, etc.

The Judges were all gentlemen of experience, from a distance, and as far as we could learn, distributed the red, blue and yellow tickets fairly.

Inside the palace there were the usual displays of everything grown on the farm and articles made by our thrifty farmers' wives and daughters. Besides this, Messrs. Madill Bros. made two grand displays, furs down stairs, and dress goods, carpets, mantles, etc., on the second floor. The handsome piano used by them was obtained from Mr. R. B. Allen. Other fine displays were made by Mr. M. S. Madole, Miss Bruton, A. E. Paul, R. B. Allen, A. Dawson, J. W. Courtney and others.

Upstairs Messrs. Graham & Vanalstyne showed a magnificent display of furs.

We understand the receipts this year amount to nearly a thousand dollars. Dr. Ming, the courteous and efficient Secretary, the Directors, and all who took an active interest in our show are to be congratulated on the success of the show.

RIGHT USE OF WEALTH

RICHES INVOLVE MANY DUTIES AND GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

SHOULD BE HELD AS A TRUST.

Prosperity Not Necessarily a Blessing —Happiness May Exist Without It —Unselfishness the Secret of True Joy—Privilege of Helping Others— Our Duty to the Unfortunate— Labor Day Sermon.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Haver, Toronto, in the office of the Minister of Agriculture.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 1.—In this sermon for Labor Day the preacher shows it to be the duty of those who have prospered to make a generous and considerate use of their wealth, instead of regarding it as a means to minister to their own selfishness. The text is Luke xii, 17, "What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?"

The chief character of my text is an old miser. He is just like thousands of men and women we see in daily life or read about in the newspapers. He was evidently one of the agricultural leaders of the east. Perhaps he started as a poor boy. He may have been one of the immigrants who came to Jerusalem during Herod's administration. He may have been born in Italy and have gone to Syria to seek his fortune. In this far off province of the east he has himself early left the farm hand. He saves his wages and works, and hires a hand to help him, as well as a willing hand. He buys a little farm. There is a period of prosperity. The crops grow larger and larger. He begins to have money to invest, and he places mortgages not upon his neighbors' farms and mercilessly forecloses them. His landed estate widens. He is one of those hard tenants or unfortunate beings who, having an absorbing passion for gold, find everything turn to gold that they touch. He builds great granaries, and they are always full. His sheep and cattle are browsing everywhere. His horses are the finest. His soil is the richest. Though he has many barns, the increasing crop is so great that he does not know what to do with it. He has more than he can use. In other words, he is overburdened with the abundance of his riches. "What shall I do with all this crop?" he asks himself. "I must build larger barns. Then I will store away so much that I will never have to work any more, and just live to enjoy my wealth."

Let me read you the story: "And he said, This will I do—I will pull down my barns and build greater, and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods." Though he had more than he could use, he still kept gathering it. He doubtless thought himself a most successful man, and his neighbors, if they were such people as live in our times, envied him and looked up to him with reverence. But Christ tells us that there was another opinion of his life and character, and that, too, by one who held life and death in his hands. God said he was a fool.

Now, it is a terrible thing for God to say that of any one, for his judgment is true. None of us would like to have God say that of us. We must be careful to avoid these faults, for God judges now by the same standard as he did in the time of this rich farmer. Now, as his fault related to his surplus wealth it is an appropriate subject for consideration on this Sunday preceding Labor Day.

I would say to a successful man: "You know you are in affluence. You know you have more than you can eat up or wear out. You know that you are hoarding up more money than will ever be good for your children to inherit. If you are a wise fellow, you will compel them to work for their living, as you worked for yours. It will be better for you, instead of developing your pecuniousness, to learn the gospel law of giving and of helping. And to-day I want to tell you whom you ought to help with your surplus wealth.

First, when you begin to prosper in life you should be willing to aid those who have been directly or indirectly the means of making it possible for you to achieve the success which is yours. You should extend the hand of gratitude to those who helped develop you in your babyhood and boyhood and youth and manhood. You should think of your father and mother in the old homestead, of your old teachers and of your old employers. They have a claim on you, for they devoted their lives to your interest, and you should now recognize the obligation to help such of them as need your help.

Then, too, there are your employes. No man ever was his success alone. I always like to compare life to a great battle. A general has a campaign to plan. What does he do? Does he take a gun and a sword and go forth and fight that battle single-handed? No. He first collects an army made up of many soldiers. Then he organizes those soldiers and drills them. He drafts those soldiers from the best homes all over the land. He gathers them from the stores and the factories. Then he sets his army in motion and hurls it against the flanks of the enemy, and the lines are broken, and the battle is won. Now, what would you think of a general who should come home from a war and say: "I did it all. The credit is all mine." Would you not consider such a man a selfish man and an ingrate? Who were the staff officers and the right-hand men of that general? Who were the soldiers who did the sweating duty and who stormed the breastworks and risked their lives to make his victory possible? Are not the soldiers to have any part in the triumph and in the reward of the nation?

Ah, no! The true general and the soldiers of his army are one. When his soldiers are defeated, he shares the blame. And sometimes a general will be degraded, himself and his family, for the defeat. Thus Robert E. Lee, after the battle of Gettysburg, said: "It was my fault. I was all to blame, Tough." And General Burnside, after the battle of Fredericksburg, said: "It was my fault. I was all to blame." And one of the last acts of brave Carl Schurz's life was to write a defence of his own fifteenth wrathful attack when defeated by Stonewall Jackson at Chancellorsville, while, on the other hand, one of the first acts of Sherman or Lee or Jackson or Grant or Wellington or Napoleon after a victory was to announce a long list of promotions for the men who had specially distinguished themselves in the fight and to thank the whole army for having won the victory. Napoleon, for example, did it in almost the very words that I am using to you. He said: "If you demand why you have won so many victories, it is because you have had confidence in your general, because you have had confidence in yourself, because you have had confidence in your comrades." Do not your pastors give up the best part of their lives to your interests? Did not your pastors and brothers make sacrifices for your education? What about the little old village church where you used to be taken as a boy and which is a source of such inspirational character as was formed? Have you done anything for that church? Have you helped to pay off its mortgage? Have you bought a new organ for it? Have you helped a struggling young pastor who has come there and called to help support the poor widow of your old pastor, who did so much for your spiritual health? How about your old school teachers? Have you ever done anything for them? No. You stick your thumb in the lapel of your coat and pat your self, apparently and complacently, and say: "I am a self-made man. These people had nothing to do with my present success. I won it all. Yes, I won it all." I know from your words that your ungrateful heart has turned into stone and that it will need a blast of dynamite to break it from its present ingratitude and forgetfulness.

Then what about your present staff of employes? Are they to receive no financial share of your present success? You know you have been working for you to-day who are simply inwishable. You know that if a rival firm should come and offer certain men in your firm a third more than they are receiving you would be glad to advance their wages rather than lose them. You know that if hard times should come and business should run behind you would cut your employes wages down. And yet when your business is prospering you give those employes no share of the prosperity. Now, my brother, I want to ask you, is that equal? Is that right? If you ask those men with whom you are associated to share your adversity when it comes, ought you not also to let those same faithful men and women share your prosperity?

But there is another large class of people who need your help to-day and who have a right to claim it. They are not the old men and women now the middle-aged. They are not the people who for years have been living by your side. They are not the people with whom perhaps you are even acquainted. But they are the boys and the girls or the young folks who are standing upon the threshold of life and who have fearful mental or physical or spiritual handicap. These young people have on them the taint of a bad ancestral heritage, or by financial misfortune they are compelled to go into grind vitiating social environments. Unless some one comes to their help they are doomed to make a failure out of life before they start. God expects you to help them.

Here, for instance, is a young boy who has a large number of brothers and sisters. He is born in the beautiful city of Philadelphia. But those lands and hundreds of thousands of families are there, and he is only an atom in a great crowd. His father is a hard-working, brave, noble man. But one day a scaffolding upon which he is working drops, and almost immediately the husband and father is dead. His mangled corpse is carried home to the little cottage. Now, there is that young boy ten years of age to get an education? Who is to feed him and to educate him and to clothe him? The mother? Well, if the mother is to be the breadwinner, who will stay at home and look after the children? Can a week mother do a man's work and a woman's work at the same time? Is it possible for her to be in two places at the same time? Unless some one comes to this woman's help that boy will have no chance for success. He will be set forth to earn his living almost before he is out of the nursery. He will become a mere machine. He may be pitilessly thrown among the vile influences of a street rutter. Then his moral character, in all probability, will be wrecked while he is yet only a little child. Who will be the Stephen Girard to reach out to the helping hand to rescue that child?

Have you ever visited Girard College in Philadelphia? It is one of the noblest institutions in the world. It was founded by an old miser. Stephen Girard during his lifetime was a Shylock who always demanded the full pound of flesh from his victims. In his financial dealings he seemed to be as merciless as an Ebenezer Scrooge or a wrinkled up, shrivoled-hearted Marley. But, though Stephen Girard was mercenary, he was no fool. He knew that he could not take his gold across the river Styx, so as he began to grow old and come nearer and nearer to the end of life he said to himself: "I must leave this money behind when I die. I will leave it to the people to whom it can do the most good." Then he asked himself this question: "Who are the people who most need help? Why, they are the children who have no fathers to help them along and to give them the right kind of a start." So Stephen Girard lumped all his fortune together. He left it to a board of trustees to establish an institution in which the fatherless boys of Pennsylvania could be clothed and fed and educated until they were able to take care of themselves. Could he have done a grander work with his money? Tell staff officers and the right-hand men of that general? Who were the soldiers who did the sweating duty and who stormed the breastworks and risked their lives to make his victory possible? Are not the soldiers to have any part in the triumph and in the reward of the nation?

Ah, no! The true general and the soldiers of his army are one. When his soldiers are defeated, he shares the blame. And sometimes a general will be degraded, himself and his family, for the defeat. Is it possible for her to be in two places at the same time? Unless some one comes to this woman's help that boy will have no chance for success. He will be set forth to earn his living almost before he is out of the nursery. He will become a mere machine. He may be pitilessly thrown among the vile influences of a street rutter. Then his moral character, in all probability, will be wrecked while he is yet only a little child. Who will be the Stephen Girard to reach out to the helping hand to rescue that child?

Have you ever visited Girard College in Philadelphia? It is one of the noblest institutions in the world. It was founded by an old miser. Stephen Girard during his lifetime was a Shylock who always demanded the full pound of flesh from his victims. In his financial dealings he seemed to be as merciless as an Ebenezer Scrooge or a wrinkled up, shrivoled-hearted Marley. But, though Stephen Girard was mercenary, he was no fool. He knew that he could not take his gold across the river Styx, so as he began to grow old and come nearer and nearer to the end of life he said to himself: "I must leave this money behind when I die. I will leave it to the people to whom it can do the most good." Then he asked himself this question: "Who are the people who most need help? Why, they are the children who have no fathers to help them along and to give them the right kind of a start." So Stephen Girard lumped all his fortune together. He left it to a board of trustees to establish an institution in which the fatherless boys of Pennsylvania could be clothed and fed and educated until they were able to take care of themselves. Could he have done a grander work with his money? Tell me, with so many little children to people about, cannot you do something to help those young folks by your side?

But, though all people should try to help the helpless young folks, this plea ought to come especially home to those who have never been blessed with children. God pity the man or the woman into whose heart there has never come a little child to love and to cherish. No human life is complete without a child. My friend, if you have not a child, hone of your bone and flesh of your flesh, to love and to nurture, then for your own good as well as for the good of some helpless children, go and adopt into your home and your heart one of those little waifs who are to-day standing on the streets of our cities and who are to-day in the asylums that ever lived and the one man who seemed most to appeal to me and to worldly usefulness and responsibility than other men, gave this as his testimony: "I am already a

A Well Meant Suggestion.

At an "at home" given by a Yorkshire gentleman's wife an outside manservant had to do duty for a butler. The man was astonished at the thin slices of bread and butter with which he served his mistress' guests, as he had been used to cut thick slices. Over the fourth time he said to her in a voice that was meant for a whisper, but which was audible all over the room, "If yer slaps three or four slices together, mum, maybe yer c n get a bite."—London Telegraph.

A Lesson in Ornithology.

A gentleman, who rather overvalued himself, looking at a case of birds, said to an ornithologist who was with him, "What is that bird?"

"That," said the other, "is a magpie."

"It's not my idea of a magpie," was the rejoinder.

"Perhaps not," replied his friend, "but it's God's idea of a magpie."—House Beautiful.

Quickly Supplied.

There have been many strange things in English history. One of the most curious was recently mentioned by a little school girl.

"The hydra," said this much informed young person, "was married to Henry the Eighth. When he cut her head off, another one sprang right up."

She Could See For Herself.

Mrs. Chugwater—"Who on earth can that at the door just now? Bridget—A lady wantin' t' know if we had furnished houses to let. Mrs. Chugwater—What did you tell her? Bridget—Sure, an' I towld her that all our rooms were furnished. She's lookin' at the th'ry now.

Lack of Confidence.

Visitor—Do they punish you well here? Prisoner—Generally they does, only they hasn't me feelin's by their lack of confidence. They won't let me have a hatchet.

MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Orange—nice and thick skin; good juice; fresh and sweet; Navel and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—also, of course, that goes without me saying about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

SIR JAMES M. LeMOINE
Canada's Historian and Litterateur.

At "Spencer Grange," a sunny homestead amidst great trees overhanging the St. Lawrence, near the quaint old fortress city of Quebec, where every square foot of ground seems consecrated to historic memories, lives Sir James MacPherson LeMoine, Canada's genial historian, now working still in the meridian of optimism, though in his eighty-first year.

Born in the county of Quebec, a descendant of one of the old and distinguished families of Old France, he spent some of his early years under the kindly care of his Scotch maternal grandfather at Isle aux Grues. After completing his education at the Seminaire de Quebec, he entered the public service as collector of internal revenue at the age of twenty-two. Three years later he was admitted to the bar of Quebec, and for a few years, as he says, his heart was not in it. He preferred studying history and birds and writing about them. Surrendering to the spell of the legendary and historic lore of his native city and its surroundings, he loved to breathe new life into the old romances, or to dive into the mes of historic research and investigation. The range of his work can be best suggested by the comprehensive title of his volume, "Scenery and Sport"—a veritable treasure-house of Canadian lore, written with a fine literary touch, and pulsing with vital human interest.

The love of birds, which led him forty-five years ago to write his first contribution to periodical literature on land and sea birds around Quebec for the "Canadian Naturalist," is a dominating note in his life. His splendid collection of Canadian birds in the museum of his home attests his loyalty to his feathered friends, and "Spencer Grange" is the mecca of students of Canadian annals, keenly alive to the rare privileges it affords them.

His library rooms are filled to overflowing with books, pamphlets, pictures and literary treasures. He has been constantly adding to his collection during the thirty volumes of his writings, eighteen of which are in English and twelve in French. Like Professor Goldwin Smith, Sir James has printed between the smaller part of his literary product, for he has numberless pamphlets and magazine articles to his credit that are unfortunately buried in the oblivion of ephemeral periodicals.

Active in philanthropic matters as in literature, Sir James's public-spirit mind is keen, alert, sensitive as a barometer to every impression, and he carries his years with a grace and ease that laugh at time and its terrors. For many years president of the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, he has also had the highest literary honor in the Dominion—the presidency of the Royal Society of Canada.

A NEW CANADIAN STRAWBERRY.

Four years ago Mr. Irvine Joyce, a practical berry-man, who resides on an island in the Bay of Quinte, raised a number of plants from the seed of a very strong berry, one of the standard varieties. Among them he noticed one which showed more vigor than any of the others, and he gave it special care. The plants grew well the next spring, when this plant showed bloom far in advance of the others, he picked it for the winner. Then, when the first ripe fruit was eaten he found that he had a prize, as it possessed a flavor which he had tries in vain to find in a tame strawberry for years, and he named it the Island King.

Mr. Joyce gave some of the plants to Mr. Robert Brown, one of our leading farmers, and last year he had a few for sale. These first offered the fruit for sale by the quart, created a sensation, and he practically had early and lasty trade on himself. Buyers, after purchasing one lot, invariably came back for more, with the question, "What kind of berries are those?" Mr. Joyce claims the Island King to be the best berry he has ever seen,' and he now grows it exclusively, and refuses to sell a plant at any price.

Mr. Joyce staked off 48 ft. of an average row this season, and after the first bloom had fallen he left but one plant in a hill. This resulted in more than a bushel of berries, and a gentleman who has personally visited more varieties than any other man in this district, he claims the Island King to be the best all-round berry he has ever seen.

The new berry has a perfect bloom, ripens with Michael's early, in size and color resembles the Glen Mary, is of good shape, and as a plant-maker cannot be beaten. It is a strong grower, and the runners are numerous. Mr. Joyce has a few plants for sale this fall, and he is very enthusiastic. Anyone who has a taste for a strawberry of a wild berry—something which we have all been looking for.

Messrs. Joyce and Keech have allowed me to bring the berry before the public, and have placed their stock of plants with me. For sale. Prices—single dozen, 25c; per 100, $1.50; per 1,000, $12. Plants will be ready for delivery in a couple of weeks' time. Address me at once. Send by P. O. order or registered letter. Single plants will be sent by mail; quantities by express. Orders will be filled in the rotation they are received. Yours respectfully,

JOHN H. THOMPSON.

DENBIGH.

Our school is progressing very favorably under the management of Miss Ethel Ham, as a large attendance every day.

Mr. Wm. Hall has purchased a fine driving horse from Mr. Wm. Hall, Napanee.

The threshing machine has been around this section for the past week.

Mr. Wm. Hall is the misfortune of having one of his fine cows break its leg recently.

The dance at Mr. A. Kerr's was a decided success.

Mr. Hayes, our Methodist pastor, is holding a series of meetings at the church just now. Sunday, it was a very fine attendance, and the singing was excellent.

Miss M. Hall spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. Wm. Hall's.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, nee Ida Kinkaid, have returned from their honeymoon and are now residing with Mr. Dawson's father.

Mr. Peter Hall, our sister Louisa made a trip to Bonarr Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Griffith is visiting friends in Napanee this week.

Mr. John Lane had his residence reshingled, and it is much improved.

Mr. Wm. Hall has moved to the Implement store at Napanee.

NEWBURGH.

The Official Board of the Methodist church are busy with the preliminary arrangements for the celebration of the Jubilee of the dedication of their church here. The date set for the event is November 17th, with a platform meeting on the following evening. This is one of the historic churches of this district, and the jubilee will be made a memorable event. A special feature of it will be a thank offering by the congregation of at least five hundred dollars. An effort is being made to secure the presence of the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, as chairman of the Monday evening meeting. This is the church of Mr. Aylesworth's youth, and his father, Mr. J. B. Aylesworth, is now the only surviving member of the Trustee Board of 1851.

The Public Library Board have shown a very worthy public spirit in loaning a number of volumes from the library to the High School for use as supplementary reading by the pupils during the fall term. This is a means of co-operation which might be copied by other Boards even in connection with Public schools. They also contributed two annual membership tickets as prizes in the High School sports to be held on October 11th. These sports are exciting considerable interest. The public will be heartily welcomed to see them. There are 24 events on the programme, the last event being a swing of war between teams picked from the school. Three championships will be awarded, Senior, Intermediate and Junior, according to age.

The heavy rain on Sunday prevented the outside appointments from taking part in the annual Sunday School rally in the Methodist church but the service was proceeded with in the local school. The Presbyterians held their rally also on Sunday. In the evening in the Methodist church Rev. Jacob Clancy, of Albion, Michigan, gave an interesting address on mission work in India, filled with incidents from the experience of the speaker's two sons, now engaged in missionary work in that great dependency of Britain. Mr. Clancy is renewing acquaintances with his many friends here, after a long absence.

On Saturday last Mr. W. D. M. Shorey left for Toronto to enter the Law School at Osgoode Hall. In Mr. Shorey Newburgh is losing for the time a very useful citizen. He is a young man of enthusiasm and energy, and has already served his native village in many capacities with a public spirit, which would do credit to a much older man. He has been very valuable member of the Public Library Board, which received his resignation last week with regret. For two years he has been President of the Epworth League and a very faithful officer. He wields a prolific pen and has ably represented us in the press for a number of years. Will many friends wish him unbounded success in his chosen profession, and will follow his progress with deep interest.

Dr. M. I. Beeman is in Atlantic City this week, attending an international meeting of the Public Health Association, as a representative of the Provincial Board of Health. His practice is being supplied by Dr. Mills, of Kingston.

Fred and Mrs. Mathison, of Kingston, arrived in the village on Monday evening.

The very dark nights of the past week have accentuated the already sorely felt need of some system of lighting for the village. The Council may feel assured that the citizens generally will heartily support them in making some provision for street lighting. The erection of suitable coal oil lamps even would prove a boon, and something of the kind should be proceeded with this fall.

At Epworth League on Monday evening the school room of the Methodist church was crowded to hear the programme presented by the Mission Band, under the leadership of their President, Mrs. E. W. Stickney. The programme presented was of unusual merit and reflected great credit upon the Band and their excellent leader. There were songs and exercises of a missionary character, and an address on Mission Band work by Mrs. J. M. Denyes. Miss Beeman read a very interesting letter from Mrs. (Rev.) Reddick, of Kitamaat, B.C., a former president of the Band.

Mr. Geo. Walker has bought from the Masonic Order the lot adjoining the drug store, and is preparing to erect a building for an up-to-date meat market.

Miss Luella Knapp, of Kingston, formerly organist of the Methodist church here, is visiting in the village this week.

The schools will close this week on Thursday and Friday, on account of the meeting of the County Teachers' Association at Napanee. Miss Beeman, of the High School staff, has a paper on Art at the Association.

Miss Ellen Beeman, of Toronto, is the guest of Miss Annie Beeman, with her uncle, W. J. W. Dorrance.

Miss Annie Bell East, of Selby, left for Fall Millinery Openings, on Monday, Oct. 7th, when she will visit the largest stock of beautiful and fashionable millinery shown in any town in Canada. A call will convince you that her prices are the lowest consistent with selling the same goods, and that you will save dollars by making your purchases here. Come early and make your selection.

MUSIC.

Miss Chas. Fisher proposes to establish a music class for young people, commencing Monday evening, Oct. 7th, to continue weekly throughout the winter months. A limited number of boys and girls, not over 15 years of age, will be admitted, and a musical knowledge of the staff and rudimental study of singing will be provided. Mr. Fisher intends to give them a thorough course of lessons in the elementary principles of music, and in voice production. Terms, $1.00 per month, payable in advance. Application may be made to Miss Fisher, Centre st., or to CHAS. FISHER, Conservatory. 40c

THE VAGARIES OF LIGHTNING.

The tragic death of a golfer from lightning on a course near Glasgow, has attracted much attention. One correspondent of the Glasgow Herald suggests as the most probable explanation of the fatality that Mr. Harvey was within an area of high electric tension, where any vibration of the air would suffice to precipitate an electric discharge:

"In certain circumstances even the movements accompanying a golf stroke would be enough to cause a flash to pass from cloud to earth. There is, of course, nothing in the popular notion that steel attracts lightning; what a band or rod of steel or any other good conducting substance does is to supply a line of least resistance once the flash on its way. The human body is a better conductor than air, as is shown by the incandescence of the latter in its resistance to the passage of the electricity, and hence human beings get struck. Steam is also a good conductor, and for this reason wet cattle huddling together in a storm are often killed. On the other hand, it is important to remember that while a solitary tree is a dangerous shelter, a wood is perfectly safe if one avoids a part where any tree towers high above its neighbors."

In cases where a peculiar ominous stillness betokens the presence of electricity of high tension, the worst thing to do, the same correspondent says, is to run for shelter over an exposed surface; the movement may bring about the very disaster the wayfarer is intent on escaping.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"BLEST BE THE TIE."

How Old Hymn Came to Be Written

Not one in a thousand of those who sing that good old hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," knows the history of its homely origin.

According to the Church Eclectic, it was written by the Rev. John Fawcett, who, in the latter part of the eighteenth century was the pastor of a poor little church in Lockshire, England. His family and responsibilities were large, his salary was less than $4 a week.

In 1772 he felt himself obliged to accept a call to a London church. His congregation, men, women and children, were in an agony of tears. Mr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on a packing case and cried with the others. Looking up, Mrs. Fawcett said:

"Oh, John, John, I cannot bear this! I know not what to do!"

"Nor I either, said he; "nor will we go. Unload the wagons and put everything back in its old place."

His letter of acceptance to the London church was recalled and he wrote this hymn to commemorate the episode.

Mrs. Allen R. Brigham, of No. 2 Moulton st., Watertown, N.Y., never did have much use for banks and safe deposit vaults. Sometimes a stocking served the purpose, and on other occasions little nooks and crevices about her home received her earnings. Last week Mrs. Brigham slipped the kitchen stove as the safest kind of a receptacle for a big wad of bills figuring up to $700. Today Mrs. Brigham gave woefully at a charred mass, and a letter to the United States treasury department will bear its message to Washington asking for the redemption of the money. Mrs. Brigham has been a widow since last June. She has been working for the Larkin Soap Company and earned $700 for the company. The wad was a big one and she feared banks as well as burglars. So she chose the oven of the kitchen stove. About $100 was in a pocketbook boy, the rest in cigar boxes. When Mrs. Brigham cooked her dinner she never thought of the money. Later it all came to her. She rushed to the kitchen, opened the stove door and found a mass of unrecognized charred paper.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Kerves Short of Nerve Force. Nothing else can. Heart disease is not one weak heart in a hundred. It is nearly always nerve disease. It is always nerves, but little nerve that really is all or good. This contains nerve—for Cardiac or Heart Disease—simply needs, and must have, more power, more nerve force, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the one and only remedy in the world exactly suited to Weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought out nerve of all the painful, palpitating, short-breath heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the special prescription—alone directed to these vital and wasting nerve centers. It builds, strengthens and feeds true, genuine heart nerve. Then you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strength, joy—because strength is needed with

When Knighthood Was In Flower

I took this letter to Brandon along with Mary's miniature—the one that had been painted for Chaffes of Germany, but had never been given—and a curl of her hair, and it looked as if this was all he would ever possess of her.

De Longueville heard of Henry's brutal consent that Mary might see Brandon, and, with a Frenchman's belief in woman's depravity, was exceedingly anxious to keep them apart. To this end he requested that a member of his own retinue be placed near Brandon. To this Henry readily consented, and there was an end to even the letter writing. Opportunities to increase in value doubly fast as they drift behind us, and now that the princess could not see Brandon or even write to him she regretted with her whole soul that she had not gone to the Tower when she had permission, regardless of what any one would say or think.

Mary was impetuous and impatient by nature, but upon rare and urgent occasions could employ the very smoothest sort of finesse.

Henry's brutal selfishness in forcing upon her the French marriage, together with his cruel condemnation of Brandon and his wife, intensified against herself, had driven nearly every spark of affection for her brother from her heart. But she felt that she might feign an affection she did not feel, and that what she so wanted would be cheap at the price. Cheap! It would be cheap at the cost of her immortal soul. Cheap! All she wanted was Louis's condemned sweetie—the man she loved—and what she wanted to escape was life's distilled bitterness—marriage with a man she loathed. None but a pure woman can know the torture of such. I was a whole disastrous campaign from start to finish. Mary began with a wide flank movement conducted under masked batteries and skillfully executed. She sighed over her troubles and cried a great deal, but told the King he had been such a dear, kind brother to her that she would gladly do anything to please him and advance his interests. She said it would be torture to live with that old creature, King Louis, but she would do it willingly to have her handsome brother, no matter how much she might suffer.

The king laughed and said: "Poor old Louis! What about him? What about his suffering? He thinks he is making such a fine bargain, but the most pity him when he has my little sister in his side for a short time. He had better employ some energetic soul to prick him with needles and bodkins, for I think there is enough power of disturbance in this little body than in either equal amount of space in all the universe. You will furnish him all the trouble he wants, won't you, sister?"

"I shall try," said the princess demurely, perfectly willing to obey in everything.

"Don't a doubt of that, and you will succeed, too, or my crown's a strawpan." And he laughed at the huge joke he was about to perpetrate on his poor old royal brother.

It would seem that the tremendous power of these combinations of Mary's would have been so plainly self interested as to alarm the dullest perception, but Henry's ramie was dense and his appetite for flattery so great that he accepted it all without suspicion, and it made him quite affable and gracious.

Mary kept up her show of affection and docile obedience for a week or two until she thought Henry's suspicions were allayed, and then, after having done enough petting and fondling, as she thought, to start the earth itself a-moving—as some men are foolish enough to try to make one—began the attack direct by putting her arms about the king's neck and piteously begging him not to sacrifice her whole life by sending her to France.

Her pathetic, soul charged appeal might have softened the heart of Caligula himself, but Henry was not even cruel. He was simply an animal so absorbed in himself that he could not think for others.

"Oh, it is out at last!" he said with a laugh. "I thought all this sweetness and caressing could not be for nothing. So the lady wants her Brandon and doesn't want her Louis, yet is willing to obey her dear, kind brother! Well, we'll take her at her word and let her obey. You may as well understand, once and for all, that you are to go to France. You promised to go decently if I would not cut off that fellow's head, and now I tell you that if I hear another whimper from you off it comes, and you will go to France too."

This brought Mary to terms quickly enough. It touched her one vulnerable spot—her love.

"I will go; I promise it again. You shall never hear another word that no harm shall come to him—to him." And she put her hands over her face to conceal her tears as she softly wept.

"The day you sail for France Brandon shall be free and shall again have his old post at court. I like the fellow as a good companion, and really believe you are more to blame than he."

"I am all to blame, and am ready this day to pay the penalty... I am at your disposal to go when and where you choose," answered Mary most pathetically.

"Poor, fair Proserpine, with no kind mother Demeter to help her. The ground will soon open, and Pluto will have his bride.

That evening Cavendish took me aside and said his master, Wolsey, desired to speak to me at my convenient opportunity. So when the bishop left his card table an hour later I threw myself in his way as he spoke gayly to me, and we walked down the corridor arm in arm. I could not imagine what he wanted, but presently it came out: "My dear Caskoden"—had I been one for whom he could have had any use I should have grown suspicious—"my dear Caskoden, I know I can trust you; especially when that which I have to say is for the happiness of your friends. I am sure you will never name me in connection with the suggestion I am about to make, and will use the thought only as your own."

I did not know what was coming, but gave him the strongest assurance of my trustworthiness.

"It is this: Louis of France is little better than a dead man. King Henry, perhaps, is not fully aware of this, and if he is he has not reckoned on the probability of his speedy death. The thought occurred to me that although the princess cannot disobey her brother from this marriage, she may be able, in view of her ready and cheerful com-

"My dear Caskoden, I know I can trust you."

pliance, to extract some virtue out of her sore necessity and induce him to promise that in case of the death of Louis she herself shall choose her second husband."

"My lord," I replied, quickly grasping the point, "it is small wonder you rule this land. You have both brain and heart."

"I thank you, Sir Edwin, and hope that both may always be at the service of you and your friends."

I gave the suggestion to Mary as my own, recommending that she proffer her request to the king in the presence of Wolsey, and, although she had little faith or hope, she determined to try.

Within a day or two an opportunity offered, and she said to Henry: "I am ready to go to France any time you wish, and shall do it decently and willingly, but if I do so much for you, brother, you might at least promise me that when King Louis is dead I may marry whomsoever I wish. He will probably live forever, but let me have at least that hope to give me what cheer it may while I suffer."

The ever present Wolsey, who was standing near and heard Mary's petition, interposed: "Let me add my prayer to that of her highness. We must give her her own way in something."

Mary was such a complete picture of wretchedness that I thought at the time she had really found a tender spot in Henry's heart, for he gave the promise. Since then I have learned, as you will shortly, that it was given simply to pacify the girl, and without any intention whatever of its being kept, but that, in case of the death of King Louis, Henry intended again to use his sister to his own advantage.

To be a beautiful princess is not to enjoy the bliss some people imagine. The earth is apt to open at any time and Pluto to snatch her away to—the Lord knows where.

Mary again poured out her soul on paper—a libation intended for Brandon. I made a dozen attempts in as many different ways to deliver her letters, but every effort was a failure, and this increased the fear of the others. De Longueville kept close watch on his master's rival and complained to Henry about these attempts at communication. Henry laughed and said he would see that they were stopped, but paid no more attention to the matter.

If Mary, before her interview with Henry, had been averse to the French marriage, she was now equally anxious to hurry it on, and longed to go upon the rack in order that Brandon might be free. He, of course, objected as strenuously as possible to the purchase of his life by her marriage to Louis, but his better judgment told him—in fact, had told him from the first—that she would be compelled eventually to marry the French king, and common sense told him it would not be she might as well save his life at the same time. Furthermore, he felt a certain amount of delight in saving his life to her, and knew that the fact that she had saved him, that her sacrifice had not been in vain, would make it easier for her to bear.

The most beautiful feature of the relations between these two lovers was their entire faith in each other. The way of their true love was at least not roughened by cobblestones of doubt, however impassable it was from mountains of opposition.

My inability to deliver Mary's letters did not deter her from writing them, and all as she was to be married in a few days—De Longueville to act as proxy—she devoted her entire time to her letters and wrote pages upon pages, which she left with me to be delivered "after death," as she called her marriage.

At this time I was called away from court for a day or two, and when I returned and called upon Brandon at the Bishops and the Judges palace, Lambeth, I was greatly surprised to find that he had left for Bristol. Some one had evidently scribbling on a scrap of paper that lay upon the table, for the letters "Br-ist-l," and I took the hint—we were watched. There is an unpleasant sensation when one feels that he is watched by unseen eyes, and after talking for awhile on common topics I left and took a boat for Greenwich.

When I arrived at the palace and saw Mary, what was my surprise to find her as bright and jubilant as I had left Brandon. She, too, laughed and sang and was so happy that she lightened the whole room. What did it all mean? There was but one explanation. They had met, and there was some new plan on foot—with a fatal ending. The next failure would mean death to Brandon as certainly as the sun rises in the east. What the plan was I could not guess. With Brandon in safe hands, secure and happy, and this ladys brought into France. The day after the death of Sayncte Denyse, the same kynge Loyse married the lady Mary in the chapelle of the palays, both appareled in goldesmythye woorke. Then the bryde and bryde'ster was in greate basket and fest and the ladyes of Englond highlye commended.

The Tuesedaye beyng the x days of October all the Englishmen except a fewe later offerred to take their departe, were discharged whiche was a greate sorrowe to them, for none had served so longe in the hope of preferment and seems assured that Brandon left them in charge and now they wer out of service, whiche was very forwarde, at the season of the yeare by way returning, and some fell into greate povertie and myserie. After the English lordes had done their commandement the kynge wyshed the to take no lenger payne & so gave to them goode rewardes & sente them home leaus of the quene and returned.

Then the quene of Fraunce called Fraunceys duke of Valoys, or Fraunceys d'Angoulesme, and caused a solemne feaste to be proclaymed, which shoulde be kept in Parys in the month of Octobre next ensuyng, and while all these thinges were preparyng, the Ladye Mary, the V. days of Octobre, came to Parys, accompanied with greate solempnities crowned Queen of Fraunce in the moste ryche ordeyn of Sayncte Denyse, and the Lorde Dolphyn, who was yonge, but very forwarde, at the season held the crowne ouer her hed, because it was of greate weight, to her greuaunce.

Mme. Mary took her time, since a more deliberate journey bride never made to waiting bridegroom. She was a study during this whole period, weeping and angry by turns. She, who had never known a moment's illness in all her days, took to her bed upon two occasions from sheer antipathetic nervousness, and would rest her head upon Jane's breast and cry out little, half articulate prayers to God that she might not kill the man who was her husband when they should meet.

When we met the king about a league this side of Abbeville, and when Mary beheld him with the shadow of death upon his brow, she took hope, for she knew he would be but putty in her hands, so weak was he both physically and physically. As he came up she whipped her horse and rode by him at a gallop, scudding on back with word that he must not be so ardent; that he frightened her, poor, timid little thing, and was afraid of nothing in the world! This shocked the French courtiers, and one would think would have driven Mary back, but he was restrained from ear to ear, showing his yellow fangs, and said 'whimperingly: "Oh, the pain of this month! The bride. Tell her majesty I wait at Abbeville."

The old king had ridden a horse to meet his bride in order that he might appear more gallant before her, but a litter was waiting to take him back to Abbeville by a shorter route, and they were married again in person.

Again a quotation from Hall is submitted:

Monsieur the .vi days of Nouerber, the the mayde quene was receyued into the cyte of Paryes with greate honour & triumph. First the garde of the cytee met her with owte Sayncte Denyse all in coates of goldesmythes woorke with shippes gilt, and after them came her at the presente and religious whiche were assembled to be mete. The quene was in a chyre coured with clothe of golde, and dressed in the clothe of golde, the horses that drewe it were trapped in the same, and on the cornaall, at of greate perles, her necke & greate riche stones, & after her came the garde of Almaynes after their fascion, and after them the Duke of Alanson, brother to the Duke of Burbon, Carrycalles, and a greate nombre of other lordes. About her person rode the kynge's garde the which were Scottes. On the sauegarde were Trumpetes, and the quene stode so that al men might see her, and wonder at her beautie, and the kynge was felse and lay on a couche for weakenesse.

So Mary was twice married to Louis, and, although she was his queen fast and sure enough, she was not his wife.

You may say what you will, but I like a fighting woman, one with a touch of the savage in her when the occasion arises, one who can fight for what she loves as well as against what she hates. She usually loves as she fights—with all her heart.

So Mary was crowned and was now a queen and hedged about by the unbridled certainty that death was nigh.

It seemed that she was climbing higher and higher all the time from the depths, but in her heart every day she was brought nearer to him.

There was one thing that troubled her greatly, and all the time. Henry had given his word that Brandon should be liberated as soon as Mary had left the shores of England, but we had heard nothing of this matter, although we had received severe letters from home. A doubt of her brother, in whom she had little faith at best, made an ache at her heart which seemed at times likely to break—so she said. One night she dreamed that she had witnessed Brandon's execution, her brother standing by in excellent humor at the prank he was playing her, and it so worked upon her waking hours that by evening she was ill. At last I received a letter from Brandon, which had been delayed along the road, containing one for Mary. It told of his full pardon and restoration to favor, greater even than before, and her joy was so sweet and quiet and yet so softly delicious that I tell you plainly it brought tears to my eyes, and I could not hold them back.

The marriage, when once determined upon, had not cast her down even to the deep as I had expected, and soon she grew to be quite cheerful and happy. This filled me with regret, for the thought of how Brandon must suffer, and felt that her heart was a poor, flimsy thing to take this trouble so lightly.

I spoke to Jane about it, but she only laughed. "Mary is all right," said she. "Do not fear. Matters will turn out better than you think, perhaps. You know she generally manages to have them so, and she is the end."

"If you have any comfort to give, please give it, Jane. I feel most keenly for Brandon's heart tied to such a willful, changeable creature as Mary."

"Sir Edwin Caskoden, you need not take the trouble to speak to me at all unless you can use language more respectful concerning my mistress. The queen knows why she is wroot, but it appears that you cannot see it. I see it plainly though, although no word has ever been spoken to me on the subject. As to Brandon being tied to her, it seems to me she is tied to him and that he holds the rein. He could drive her into the mouth of purgatory."

"Do you think so?"

"I know it."

I remained in thought a moment or two and concluded that she was right. In truth, the time had come to me when I believed that Jane, with her good sense and acute discernment, could not be wrong in anything, and I think so yet. So I took comfort on faith from her and asked, "Do you remember what you said about Anne of Cleves when I received that letter from England?"

Jane hung her head. "I remember." she said.

She then put her hand in mine and murmured, "I am ready any time you wish."

Great heaven! I thought I should go out of my senses. She should have told me gradually. I had to do something to express my existence, so I walked over to a bronze statue of Bacchus, about my size—that is, height about my size—and put my arm encircling under my arm, on his head, cut a few capers in an entirely new and equally strange way, drew back my fist and knocked that Bacchus down. Jane thought I had gone stark mad, but I gave free play with wonder, but I walked proudly back to her after my victory over Bacchus and reassured her—with a few of Mary's message—that I had still left over, if the truth must be told. Then we made arrangements that resulted in our marriage next morning.

Accordingly Queen Mary and one or two others went with us down to a little chapel where, as fortune would have it, there was a little priest ready to join together in the holy bonds of wedlock little Jane and little me—everything so appropriate, you see. I suppose in the whole world we couldn't have found another set of conditions so harmonious. Mary laughed and cried and laughed again, and clapped her hands over and over, and said it was "like a play wedding," and, as she kissed Jane, quietly slipped over her head a beautiful diamond necklace that was worth full £10,000—aside, that is, from the millions of actual value between us from Mary. "A play wedding" it was, and a play life it has been ever since.

Jane has surely settled at court in Paris when Mary began to put her

EAT WHAT YOU WANT.

SCIENCE HAS NOW FOUND THE TRUE WAY TO CURE INDIGESTION.

A few years ago, when a sufferer from indigestion went to a stomach specialist, the result was a rigid diet list that almost meant starvation.

But the first thing to cure the case of indigestion or stomach weakness is to strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and intestines, so that they will care for the food that is eaten. In order to do this can this be done as well as by taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal. This restores strength to the stomach muscles and stimulates the pouring out of nitric acid, so that the food is digested readily and its nourishment retained in the system to build up every part of the body.

Do not think the sick headach, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, spots before the eyes, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion, will go away of themselves. The stomach must be built up and strengthened by Mi-o-na before you can be well and strong, free from suffering and distress.

The guarantee that T. B. Wallace gives with every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na refund the money unless the remedy cures, shows their confidence in the treatment.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. Then a simple cathartic is needed. Ayer's Cathartic Pills are unequaled for this purpose. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills.

ROSEBLAND.

A rather wet, somewhat drowning was held in Rosebland Methodist church on Sunday. The sun pretended who kindly acted the part of gentleman usher, ushered the people into the church. The booked speakers were Messrs. Douglas, Tucker, Lemon and Yeomans. The two first numbers were rendered by the Rosebland choir, and the third by the Methodist choir of Napanee. The singing of the choir was excellent, and Miss Gertie Vanluven presided at the organ. Mr. Douglas, of this town, who was declared the champion bachelor singer of Rosebland, sang a beautiful solo in his usual excellent manner. The little lads and lassies were not forgotten, but were presented with a little box of chocolates by Mr. Douglas for next week, Wednesday, when he will have a basket-tea party. Proceeds of dining room lunch, purchased by Mr. Douglas, and sold to us at cost. Come, boys, and bring your girls. Messrs. Smith & Reynolds, of Napanee, were in Rosebland on Monday, and put up the big windows kindly donated by Mr. Douglas. Mr. Lemon, of Napanee, addressed the meeting in the afternoon, which was very interesting. Mr. Lemon is also a singer. Mr. Fred. Bertleet.

Mrs. Neale Winter, graduate nurse of the Kingston General Hospital, left for Kingston to resume her work as nurse.

Three months with the English family near here. To-day the father lies in Catarqui, the wife in the Kingston General Hospital, and four little children are left destitute. It is indeed a sad case, and there are many such that will have to be cared for through the winter.

The plastering of the bank is completed, and it will now be fitted out in first class style.

Matrimonial

WRIGHT—RODDICK.

There was a quiet wedding in St. George's cathedral, Kingston, on Saturday afternoon, when Rev. Canon Spencer, assisted by Rev. Dr. Jenking the church for the harvest service performed a ceremony, the contracting parties being Miss Anna D. Wright, daughter of Mr. Samuel Roddick, Stella, and Mr. J. Neilson was bridesmaid, and Mr. W. H. Dalgleish officiated. The happy pair went off on a short honeymoon trip.

BELL—SCOTT.

Dr. Arthur M. Bell, of Pickering, Ont., and Miss Winnifred Eva, youngest daughter of Mr. W. Seale, Montreal, were married Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of the bride's father, Dorchester st., Rev. R. H. Osborne officiating. The bride was in a Princess gown of white Duchess satin, with panels of baby Irish lace. Her veil was worn over a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The brides maids were Miss Carter, of Montreal, and Miss Scott, sister of the bride. Mr. Seale gave his daughter away. After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served. Dr. and Mrs. Bell left on the evening train for Toronto and will take up residence in Pickering, Ont.

WHALEN—HALL.

At 7.30 this morning, Sept. 25th, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives, the marriage took place of Miss Gertrude Whalen, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Whalen, formerly of Camden East, and now of Perth, one of Napanee's prominent merchants, was solemnized in St. Paul's church, the Rev. Father Slane officiating. They were supported by Miss Mary McCarthy and T. Armstrong, both, was in Napanee on Tuesday. sister of the bride. After the ceremony the happy couple took the 9 o'clock train for Canada and Niagara Falls. They will be at home on Kershaw street, Perth, after October 1st. Before they took the bride and groom to the depot was driven to the residence of the bride's parents, and there all ears were late at the customary wedding breakfast. Over a hundred guests were present. Over the table, a very popular among the young people. Mr. Whalen is one of the firm of Perth merchants and a rising business man. He is also popular with young and old.

LONG—HALL.

A pretty wedding was quietly celebrated in Cook church, Toronto, on Wednesday, 25th Sept., at 4 p.m., by the pastor, Rev. Alex. Langford, when Miss Ethel C. Hall, daughter of Percy Hall, became the wife of Gilbert E. Long, of Napanee, England. The bride looked charming in a gown of lace and chiffon over ivory taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bride's maid, Miss Myrtle Hall, who attended as bridesmaid, was daintily dressed in a pale blue veiled mousseline de soie, with white felt hat trimmed in mauve and silk velvet folds, and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses. Mr. J. L. Bertram acted as groomsman for the groom. After the nuptial knot was tied, which was given at the home of Mrs. J. C. Thompson, 5 Bruce st., where the bride resided, the guests numbering about fifty sat down to the wedding breakfast. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bracelet, to the bridesmaid a pearl pendant, and to the groomsman a pearl stick-pin. Followed by showers of rice and best wishes the happy couple left for their new home, 1978 Queen E., Ken Beach, Toronto, where they will be at home after Oct. 7th.

HINCHEY—PEARSALL.

On the 25th of September, at 2 p.m., a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. B. Hinchey, Shannonville, when his daughter, Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert L. Pearsall, Belleville, a C.P.R. train despatcher. Rev. Canon Spencer performed the parlor, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. To the strains of the wedding march, which was played by Miss Lena Hinchey, the bridal party took their places under a floral bell, when the happy knot was tied. The bride looked charming in a white silk and net veil, caught with orange blossoms and roses and carnations. Mr. Orland Hinchey, brother of the bride, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman in his duties as best man, while Miss Lena Hinchey, sister of the bride, and Miss Pearsall, sister of the groom, attended the bride's going away gown was of brown Panama cloth, trimmed with silk and velvet to match. The happy couple mid showers of rice took the 4.45 train for Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Detroit, and other western points. On their return they will reside on John st., Belleville.

THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED — IS — Napanee's Greatest Store — THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED

Service Giving

Carpets - Rugs - Linoleums

The business that mounts highest in volume and that keeps growing steadily is serving the people best.

The store that is serving a few thousand people best is the store that can best serve more thousands.

It hasn't been an easy climb to first place in favor in the vicinity of Napanee.

Growth was the result of careful work—volume of business was necessary—but we planned to get along with volume as it might come. The growth we wanted was the growth of permanency.

Having come to the large responsibility of a public utility, it becomes more and more our duty to safeguard the interests of the public that depends on us.

We are doing that—and will.

We have acres of new Floor coverings in the way of Carpets, Rugs, Oilcloths and Linoleums. We are badly handicapped for display space, while building is going on. We should have had our windows for last Sept. However, we have to make the best of it. The goods are here and a more complete stock it will puzzle you to find.

FOR PARLORS.—A beautiful range of Wiltons, Axminsters, Brussels, with borders to match. Price range to fit all depths of pockets. Rugs by the dozen, all reliable makes that we can recommend.

FOR HALL AND STAIRS.—We are showing some of the choicest sets that it has been our privilege to see. Reds, Greens and Fawns, $1.00, to $2.00 yard.

FOR DINING ROOMS —Rugs in the popular Oriental shades and designs. By the yard Carpets, Tapestry, Brussells and Velvets.

FOR KITCHEN.—Oilcloths and Linoleums, any width you wish, from one yard wide to four yards. Better get them down before stoves are put up. They keep out the drafts, and save labor in keeping clean.

FOR BEDROOMS.—Double fold Tapestries, work to good advantage. Yard wide wool Carpets and Rugs. For Blue rooms we are showing two beautiful sets of Brussels, with borders to match.

Dress Goods That Are Attracting Crowds Daily to Napanee's Greatest Store.

The crowds that throng our dress goods counters every day are ample proof that the values we are giving are right. Every now and then we notice new faces among the host of merry shoppers who are joining our list of satisfied customers. Once you stop and examine our new fall dress fabrics it requires no argument to convince the most careful buyer that their money is well spent here. Just to give you an idea of some of our offerings we quote the following:

AT 50c.

Mixed tweeds in greys, browns, greens, and blues, in a cloth 42 in. wide.

Plain Amazon Cloths in navy, browns, Burgandy, greens, black, reds, etc.

Special black Viceus, 54 in. wide. Note the width at this price.

Bengalines Cords in wine, brown, olive, black, etc.

AT 75c.

Mixed tweeds in all shades, in cloth 54 in. wide, extra weight, worth $1.00 yard.

Amazon Cloths, many shades, with a beautiful rich finish.

Bengalines, in 46 in. widths, in shades of wine, green, brown, pearl grey, black, etc.

AT $1.00.

The finest line of Chiffon Broadcloths in the wantable shades. Few can show you its equal. It's all we claim it to be. Other prices range from $1.25 to $3.50 per yard.

Our special suitings in Ombre Plaid and Stripe effects are much admired, and frequently chosen as the new fall suit or dress.

This week we passed into stock a few special numbers in fancy homespuns, in colorings of black and red, blue and black, brown and green, etc. These are fine, 54 in. wide, at $1.50 per yard.

When you select your suit and are considering your linings, remember "Skinner's Satin," guaranteed to wear. We are sole agents for Napanee.

Fall Millinery All Ready.

The words of praise in the Millinery Department on Opening Day were not framed as pleasantries,—they were exclamations of appreciation that just welled up. It is a collection of millinery that will win out on most comparisons. As to its general beauty, that is because Fashion ordained most beautiful things. Our selections were made with unusual care. As new styles develop we replace sold lines with new patterns. You of course know that more trimmed patterns are here for your choosing than any time later in the season. You are cordially invited to inspect.

Babies' and Small Children's Coats

We have a number of very pretty novelties that are quite different from previous seasons. We refer now to coats for ages one month to three years. Navy plush in Mole shade, navy and red plush trimmed with white silk medallions, white bearskin cuts, in a range of prices $1.50 to $6.00. The better qualities are almost equal to fur for warmth

Men's Hats—Derby and Soft.

Pick any of the many styles in hats here that happens to suit head and fancy and you will get a hat correct and up-to-date.

A dozen or twenty shapes in "King" hats, $2.50.

The "Buckley" hat at $2.00 and $3.50. Others at from 50c up.

Some odd sizes at half-price.

Boys' soft hats in different shapes.

Unlined Mitts and Gloves

For early fall use, for picking apples, etc. We have many lines to choose from at 10c, 15c, 25c, 35c and up.

Boys' Clothing.

Just as a surgeon has to know the human body, our experts have to know where to put their work to give the best results in boy's clothing. Boy's clothing used to look as though it was cut out by a circular saw, and put together with glue.

That's changed now,—boy's clothing is made to fit and hold its shape It's stylish too. In fact there are more styles in Boy's clothing than in Men's clothing.

Boy's Blouse and Russian Suits, ages 2½ to 8. Prices $2.00 to $6.00.

Boy's Norfolk Suits and Pleated Suits, ages 5 to 12. Prices $2.00 to $7.50.

Boy's 3-piece Suits, ages 9 to 16. Prices $3.00 to $8.50.

Children's Fancy Overcoats, 3 to 12 years. Prices, $2.50 to $7.50.

Boy's Overcoats, 6 to 16. Prices from $2.50 to $10.00.

Boy's Reefers, $2.50 to $6.00.

Boy's odd Knicker Pants, 50c to $2.00.

Novelty White Waists for Evening Wear.

Just recently placed in stock a few very choice Waists in white washable materials. They show you what experts the St. Gall people are. The fronts, cuffs and collars are hand made shadow embroidery. The garments were made in Canada to suit the style of our people. Just the thing for evening wear, and only $5.00.

Coats for School Girls.

Our first frosty morning make the school girls hunt up their wraps. It is too early to put on clumsy winter weights. We made it our business several months ago to have garments made for just that kind of wear. We call them reefers. They are medium weight and medium lengths. A child can play about with them on and not be burdened.

Women's Black Coats Will Have a Big Run.

If you are interested in Black Coats, the immense range we are showing will open your eyes. We have made several sales recently to stockers from other towns. All were very complimentary in their remarks. Our long Black Coats at $10.00, $15.00, $20.00, $25.00, and $35.00 will speak for themselves. All we urge upon you, is that you see them.

Long Black Coats for the Very Large Woman.

As usual we look after the needs of the very large woman. There are some towns that do not think of keeping sizes over 40 or 42. We had made to our order several garments in a real good quality of black cloth, with lots of fullness around the hips, big armseyes and bust measures. Sizes run 42, 44, 46, 48 inches bust. When present supply is sold we could not repeat this season.

Women's and Children's Hosiery and Underwear.

All we suggest is that you think of us when you start out for your season's supply.

We have several makes that have become staple with us. Lines that we have bought year after year. We continue to buy them because they have stood the test. We aim to stock such numbers that will not shrink and that we know will wear and fit well.

Fabric and Kid Gloves for Women and Girls.

This section is now complete. Assortment in all sizes. Fabric and kid. You will pay more before you pay less. So do not hesitate to buy as you need at present prices.

Umbrellas.

The man or woman who wants to get caught in the rain before buying an umbrella will be sorely out of suit to the tune of several times the price of these umbrellas.

OUR PRICE, $1.00

Value $1.50: American taffeta umbrella, paragon double braced frame, steel rod, self opening, trimmed natural wood handles in crooks and straight.

OUR PRICE, $1.50

Value $2.00:—An extra large size of the above, being 2 inches longer ribbed than the standard man's umbrella, covered with an extra strong fast colored cloth.

Men's Top Shirts.

A full assortment of heavy flannelette, drill, and fancy top shirts for fall and winter wear. We believe we can give you better value than you will find in six stores out of seven. We know we can give you as good.

THE WORLD LIKES TO MEET THE WELL DRESSED MAN, JUST AS THE WORLD LIKES TO HELP THE SUCCESSFUL MAN AND TO DRESS WELL WEAR ROBINSON CO.'S CLOTHING. ARE YOU A ROBINSON CO. CUSTOMER? IT IS WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

FAREWELL DINNER.

The clergy of the Rural Deanery of Lennox and Addington took dinner together at the Paisley House, Napanee, on Monday, Sept. 30, for the purpose of bidding farewell to Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe on his departure from Camden East to his new field in Brandon, Man. Sincere regrets were expressed at his removal from their midst and cordial good wishes for GOD's blessing upon him in his new sphere.

TRULY A WORK OF ART.

One of the most beautiful and comprehensive catalogues ever got up by any educational institution on this whole continent has been issued by the famous Picton Business College, and is just to hand, for which we must thank Mr. Sayers, the principal and proprietor. Although but five years old the college ranks very high, and has its standard, perhaps, the highest in Canada. Any student desirous of taking a course in either shorthand or telegraphy should not fail to send to Mr. Sayers for a copy of his Work of Art. We understand Mr. Sayers' rooms now last fall by young men and women with certificates of good character.

THIEVES CAPTURED AT NAPANEE RECEIVE SENTENCE.

The three young men so cleverly captured here by Chief Graham a few weeks ago, were on Monday sentenced by Judge Deroche, at Belleville, as follows:

Arthur Delaire, alias Lachapelle; three months in the common jail. His Honor stated that Delaire was evidently not so guilty as his companions.

A. Villeneuve, alias Laborchere, two years in the penitentiary.

Dusten Leclair, alias Plouffe, was handed the severe sentence of five years in the penitentiary. His Honor said little could be adducted in Leclair's favor. He was the more guilty of the three, and his carrying a revolver and attempting to use it was against him.

BRISCO OPERA HOUSE—

Manager Brisco is to be congratulated upon having booked "The Bonnie Brier Bush" at the Brisco Opera House on Tuesday evening, 15th October, that is if enough advance subscriptions can be secured to warrant the appearance of the company which is particularly large and an expensive one, numbering twenty people and carrying its own special car of scenery. The standard set in the past is fully maintained, and the company includes a remarkable aggregation of talent, including such artists as Miss Palmer Collins, who, since Mr. Stoddard's retirement, has played the role of Lachlan Campbell, and who was Mr. Stoddard's personal choice as his successor in the role; Daniel Jarrett, Jr., Robert Graham, late Pipe Major of the 48th Highlanders; Marion Macdonald, who this season plays the part of Jean Maclure, a remarkably young leading woman; Adelaide Matthews, late leading woman of "Arizona", plays "Kate"; Ann Carter still is seen as "Marget"; Ethel Harbord, who will be remembered as "Nug" in Lord Chumley, is "Annie"; Ward T. Ressseller plays "Posey". A pleasing feature of the performance will be the singing of "Annie Laurie," "Loch Lomond" and other Scotch songs by the quartette of Scotch favorites, and also the dancing of Scotch reels. If this town is fortunate enough to secure this great attraction, it will be the biggest event in the history of local theatricals.

ODESSA.

Council on Monday, and a good stroke of business we suppose was done, as it was of the directions.

Surely we had a great rain last week, enough to satisfy us for the present. Pastures will be greatly improved, which will be a great benefit to the stock.

We have been an exceedingly poor year for the fruit crop. Very few apples, and the early varieties have been a failure all over. One near here has given a large crop of very large apples. So large is one of the varieties we will have to dispense with.

Miss Annie McCormick is home for her holidays from Three Rivers, Que.

Mr. Berleigh has moved his belongings from Watertown, but is not quite settled yet.

Mrs. Ferguson has gone on a visit to Belleville and Stirling friends.

Mr. Bert Spafford has built a barn which improves the upper part of the village.

A concert will be given in the town hall, Friday evening, Oct. 4th. J. H. Cameron, Toronto, the most versatile of entertainers. Miss N. P. Gunn, soloist, of Toronto College of Music. Miss Lela Chalmers, Belleville, accompanist, assisted by Miss M. McCamus, Odessa. No effort prepared to stay after the fair.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. James Devere is off a building and broke his leg besides other injuries. Hope it may not be as serious as first reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Montgomery, Clevedand, are visiting his brothers, Calvin and George Montgomery, of this place.

Mrs. Richardson, of North Bay, is here for a few days, and will meet her mother here, who is over from Watertown on a business trip.

Miss Ida Mrs. Douglas Laidler are visiting their sister, Mrs. Lemuel Bell.

Mrs. Bell Dafoe, of Latchaw's, Kingston, is spending her holidays at her sister's, Mrs. Ali. Kenyon.

HEART RELIEF IN HALF AN HOUR.—A lady in New York State, writing of her cure by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, says: "I felt that one breath more took me to the dead, so great was my suffering from heart trouble and so almost miraculous the recovery through the agency of this powerful remedy. It saved my life to it."—For sale by T. B. Wallace.—19.

Pimples & Face Sores

are a common trouble. Impurities which should be thrown off from the body have a disagreeable habit of coming out on the face, and are very annoying to the person and giving rise to all sorts of disagreeable skin troubles. Sam-Buk applied to the affected parts will soothe the irritation, heal the sores, and helps the skin to throw off any impurity and leave the complexion clear.

Sam-Buk is the best household balm you can have. Mrs. Jas. Smith, Lot 15, 5th Line, Bentinck, Ont., writes: "I have much pleasure in testifying to the virtues of Sam-Buk. Both myself and children made use of it for pimples and blotches on the face, and in this instance, as in the case of all other complaints, it acted very like magic."

Sam-Buk is an Herbal Balm. Ulcers, Scrofula, Poisoned wounds, Festering Sores and all Skin Diseases yield to it. Sam-Buk is in the form of an ointment for Hemorrhoids, Eczema, etc. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or Sam-Buk Soap, 25 cents. Toronto for prize, P. Sharon, or E. S. Co., C. P. Fulford

MISS BRUTON.

Miss Bruton's millinery display on Saturday last was the success of the season. The store presented a color scheme and in all the exquisite autumn tints, palms, and autumn leaves formed a conspicuous and appropriate decoration and background for the many beautiful hats displayed.

One lovely model, decidedly noticeable, and universally admired, was a jaunty little dress hat of Copen blue velvet, silk faced. Encircling the crown was a wreath of roses in the pastel blue shades, while a beautiful shaded feather swept across the crown, being caught at left side with large rossette of blue and white ribbon in the new shot effect, and completed by long loops and ends falling gracefully off back.

The hats are to be distinctly different this season. The shapes are varied and ever a wide choice, that individual choice is possible to a great degree. They are large, the brims continue to droop. Velvet and felt hats are both popular, and it is hard to say which will predominate.

DOXSEE & CO.

Oh, how beautiful, from one end of the millinery department to the other. One could hear this exclamation from the mouths of many ladies, and even if ladies are naturally inclined to be enraptured over the products of the artistic milliners, in this case, the unanimous verdict that the millinery display was beautiful, was not at all exaggerated. The showing is equal to any of the New York millinery displays, although possibly not so extensive. It would almost be impossible to enumerate the pretty hats shown, but the description of a few of these will be of interest. The varieties, a large mushroom shape of white quilted silk trimmed with guipure wings and black velvet; a pink hat with brim covered plain with silk and faced with val. lace, the side trimming being a mink band around the crown fastened on each side with a bunch of dahlias; black velvet hat, mid-crown shape, high crown, faced with black moire, silk draped around the crown with a black ostrich fox-tail plume, and fastened at right side with a chou of velvet. The children's hats are very pretty, particularly the little Dutch bonnets in white felt.

There is also a fine display of flowers, foliage, wings and feathers, in all the latest shades, tan, purple and green.

MADILL BROS.

A glorious array of regal, magnificence was the only expression to employ in starting a discussion of Madill's new fall merchandise. In fairly bewildering fashion, in the rich colorings and profusion of handsome patterns of silks and dress goods, new all over laces, dress trimmings and costume velvets, which were noted displayed at the left of the east entrance. Directly opposite the beautiful new collars, belts, combs, beads, etc. About the centre of the store large elegant Axminster full swing. These particular lines are entirely confined to them. The rear of the east store all wool materials, such as novelty suitings, shawls, wool, scarfs, toques and underwear.

On entering the third store mammoth carpet and fur department we were confronted with one of with a most excellent array of beautiful floor coverings of every style and design. In the same store a most elaborate display of fine furs occupied a space close to the west entrance. This portion of the store was well crowded with inspectors of furs. The "Madill quality" is notorious throughout the store.

In entering the third store through a beautifully draped arch, we walked into what we consider the most up to date ready-to-wear and dressmaking departments in Eastern Ontario. All the new models of latest fashions were nicely displayed of suits and jackets, both ladies' and children's, while at the rear of this store the very latest novelties in lace curtains were displayed. The store interior was beautifully decorated and well lighted. The windows were as usual in keeping with the season under the careful eye of the trimmer.

Music also added to the affair, and altogether a rainy, disagreeable evening, the store was well filled with pleased patrons.

THE ROBINSON CO.

The building operations now going on prevented this firm from making their usual opening window displays. Inside exhibits sustained this company's reputation for making a high class showing. Everything was as bright and nicely arranged as if operations were not going on. On reaching the first floor, the Fur exhibit was the first to take our attention. The displays were arranged in sections. Women's Fur Lined Coats were strongly featured. Such assortments makes choosing easy. Besides black, you can take your pick from navys, brown, red, and fancy. A whole section was devoted to sable muffs, another one to caps, another to scarfs, and capes. Women's fur coats made another group.

Passing on to the Carpet section, pyramid after pyramid of Royal Wiltons and Victorian Axminsters, deep pile rugs, etc., were an index to this store's beautiful stock of Carpets.

The Women's Ready-to-Wear section was crowded with models showing the leading styles in Tailored Costumes, Fall Coats, Shirt Waist Suits, Skirts and Evening Wraps.

Returning to the Dress Goods section we noticed that an elaborate color scheme was carried out in this arrangement. It is only with an extensive stock like The Robinson Co. carry that a color scheme such as this can be carried out successfully.

The first group was an effective arrangement of the browns, starting in with the leather shades and running up to the dark tones. The next group started with the Burgandy and shaded out to the Madeira. The blue family shaded from the indigo to the Copenhagen. The greens from the moss down through the olives to the dark shades, and the violet family run from the dark prune to the mauve.

Novelty suitings in plaids and stripes formed another section. The last but not least in this section was a class trimmings to match made a very pretty picture under the electric lights. We were shown a few garments that were being sent out from the Dressmaking Department. They certainly looked fine. It is current news with the ladies, that Miss Murphy is a success as a dressmaker.

Now a few remarks about the millinery. Chic and exceedingly Parisian were the models shown by the Robinson Co. Although the day was unfavorable for the opening, it did not prevent the people from coming out, and judging from the orders that were taken, and the beautiful patterns sold, were not think the weather interfered with business. One of the features which possibly adds more beauty to the hats than any other is the fact that the materials and particularly the trimming effects are of such beautiful quality. The velvets, silk and ribbons are simply superb in their colorings, and as they are used in abundance they add a richness and beauty to the hats which is indescribable. Flowers are used extensively on the patterns, the chief favorites being roses, morning glories, and orchids. Ostrich plumes, wings, breasts, fancy pins, buckles, and ribbons are the chief trimmings. The shades that will be worn chiefly are navy, Copenhagen blue, purples, brown, tan, green, terra cotta and old rose. Among the many beautiful patterns we will try and describe a few.

One was a large hat in Copenhagen blue felt, turned high in front close to crown with a very long back, the top being in the light shade, and faced with the darker. The front was caught with a large bunch of roses of same shade. Around the crown was a beautiful silk band, two plumes of the darker shade on the right side and two of the lighter on the left side, falling over to the back. A large osprey at the front completed this much admired hat.

Another was in old rose felt with short front and long back, faced with velvet, with Persian band of same shades around crown. Rose bud of same shade with foliage, pale blue covered the crown. A large velvet rose faced the front, faced with buckle of same shade was in front, and a large fox tail plume of old rose shades, pale blue flowers from left side.

The fall assortment of children's hats and bonnets were shown, and were much admired.

BEST OF PROOF.

THAT HYOMEI WILL CURE ALL FORMS OF CATARRHAL DISEASES.

Testimonials could be printed by the thousands from many of them in Napanee and nearby towns, that Hyomei is an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles, but the best proof of its unusual curative powers and direct influence is that it always gives with every outfit that he sells, "Money back if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it."

Hyomei is not a secret remedy. Its formula is given freely to physicians who want to know what they are using before prescribe Hyomei. It is guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Law by serial No. 1418.

By breathing Hyomei, the healing medication goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages where the catarrhal germs may lurk, and disinfects and heals. To be convinced of this you have only to give it a trial, remembering that if it does not cure, T. B. Wallace will refund your money.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and in most cases is sufficient to cure the worst case, making it only a scientific treatment but one that is highly economical. Get an outfit to-day from T. B. Wallace if you have any catarrh.

THE STOMACH ON STRIKE

THE TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL.

Loss of appetite, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, heavy dull headache and a dull sluggish feeling —these are the symptoms of stomach trouble. They mean that the stomach is on strike, that it is no longer furnishing to the blood the full quota of nourishment that the body demands, hence every organ suffers. There are two methods of treatment, the old one by which the stomach is humored by the use of pre-digested foods and artificial ferments, and the new one—The Dr. Williams' Pink Pills method — by which the stomach is toned up to do the work nature intended of it. A recent cure by the tonic treatment is that of Mrs. Jas. W. Hassell, Port Maitland, N.S. She says: "For years I enjoyed perfect health, but suddenly headaches seized me. I had a bad taste in my mouth, my tongue was coated; I grew pale and lost my appetite left me entirely and such food as I did eat only caused distress. I had severe pains in my back, and I got so bad I could not get often seized with vomiting. At different times I was treated by some of our best doctors, but although I followed their treatment carefully I did not get any better. One day while reading a paper I came across a case similar to mine which had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I immediately purchased a supply and it was not long before they began to help me. I grew stronger day by day till now I am as healthy as I ever was. I have a good appetite, am strong and active and can attend to my household duties without fatigue. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from indigestion."

Rheumatism, kidney trouble, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, headache and backache, palpitation, general weakness, and a host of other troubles, find their root in bad blood just as in the case of stomach trouble. That is why the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills treatment is always successful—because they are a powerful blood builder and nerve tonic. Sold by all druggists or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

Amherst Island Fair.

Amherst Island annual Agricultural fair was held at Stella, on Thursday, the 26th day, of Sept. Fortune favored the exhibitors with a fine day, and the residents of our Island turned out en mass, besides the usual large attendance from the city and ports along the Bay. They were also favored with a visit from the popular member of the Cove mons, Mr. Uriah Wilson, who looked hale and hearty, and of if he was quite fit for another election paign.

The English church party provided the lunch for the Judges and others attending the fair, in the Victoria Hall, which was served in good style no matter how fastidious his taste. The long tables arranged up and down the length of the hall, were well laden with choice eatables, and ample justice was done to the good things provided. The proceeds of the lunch was devoted to assist in paying off the debt on the Agricultural building.

There was a good exhibit of live stock, and more pedigreed animals exhibited than formerly. Owing to the dryness of the season the crops may not have appeared in the best condition, especially the cattle which looked as if a good pasture would have improved their appearance.

There was very much wanted, and the grain plumper than last year. In the Ladies' department there was a fine display of their work.

A lark of sports after the judging was through was very much wanted, and a hint should suffice to have this remedied before another season comes round. Not allowed trap-shooting, still something might be provided in the way of foot races, jumping, etc.

There is a fine opportunity afforded at the fair for the purchase of horses, and every year this custom is becoming more common, and no less than four horses were sold this year to parties from across the Bay.

NOT A NAUSEATING PILL.

The excipient of a pill is the substance which enfolds the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they may be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep from adhering, are rolled in powders, which prove nauseating to the stomach. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

HOW TO CLEANSE THE SYSTEM. — Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of scientific study of the effects of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the liver and the kidneys, purify the blood, and carry off all morbid accumulations from the system. They are easy to take and their action is mild and beneficial.

OCTOBER 'CANADIAN PICTORIAL'.

A brown October maid, matching the tints of the waning season, looks out from the cover of the current issue of the 'Canadian Pictorial' (142 St. Peter street, Montreal). She is truly Canadian, healthy, out-of-doors girl, and leaning on her rifle, is proud of the trophies of the hunt which she has secured. The Canadian public man of the Month is the Hon. G. P. Graham, the new Minister of Railways. As promised last month there are two pages of gems from the recent photographic competition. The terrible disaster near Quebec, in which more than three score and ten men lost their lives, is strikingly illustrated. The discoveries of ruins of the massive steel of which the bridge was composed are shown with wonderful clearness. The stirring events in Morocco have made necessary two full pages illustrating the Sultan's army and navy, the latter consisting only of two small vessels. This is in sharp contrast to a page showing Britain's naval strength demonstrated in a review which brought out 83,000 officers and men who, with their ships, made twenty miles of a frowning might. There is an intimate picture of the King as he is now and another taken in Canada forty-seven years ago. Those who are interested in the Chinese famine fund will be interested in a page showing how the refugees lived before the steps were taken to relieve. The riots in Belfast, the great pageants in England and signs of current events are depicted. The woman's department includes seasonable furs, autumn millinery, rare old jewels, and many other interesting features. The magazine has been enlarged considerably this month.

Ten cents a copy, one dollar a year, post-paid to any part of the world.

MOSCOW.

(From The Canadian Courier.)

Mr. Alfred Wood, a well known Montreal merchant, was travelling in the West some time ago and came to the thriving community of Yarmilion, which is not so red as it is named. One of the citizens undertook to inform Mr. Wood as to the lightning progress which the town had made.

"Look at that," he said to the Montreal visitor, pointing to a shop a house and a half-erected hall, "just a year ago that was nothing but virgin forest."

"It's wonderful, perfectly wonderful," warmly agreed the Easterner. "Your towns simply amaze me. The other day I was over in Warman and I noticed a pile of lumber. As I was passing a certain corner. A few hours after, I returned to that same corner and, if you'll believe me, handsome two-storey building has been erected out of that lumber!"

The Vermilion man was discouraged by such enthusiasm.

Pain anywhere, puts it in the hand, painful periods, Neuralgia, toothache, Headache, can be promptly relieved by one dose only of Dr. Shoop's Little Pink Candy Tablets, known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. Pain simply means congestion — tablets loss congestion at once. Pain ceases, pain exists. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets quickly equalize this unnatural blood pressure, and the pain immediately departs. Write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., and get a free trial package. Large box 25 cents. T. B. PARISH OF CAMDEN.

Harvest Thanksgiving services were held at St. Anthony's, Yarker, and St. John's, Newburgh, on Sunday last. The churches were most tastefully decorated. The services were well attended. The offerings for W. and O. Fund were liberal, $18.60. The service at St. Luke's, Camden East, was also well attended, considering the down pour of rain. Rev. J. Radcliffe, B.C.L., preached farewell sermons at all the churches, prior to leaving for Brandon, Manitoba, where he goes as curate to the Rev. Rural Dean de Pencier, M.A. The Rev. Charles de Pencier, M.A., of Wellington, has been offered the Parish of Camden by the Bishop of Ontario. Rev. G. Waller, of Japan, will conduct divine service on Sunday next, Oct. 6th, at St. Luke's church, Camden East, at 11 a.m.; Yarker, at 3 p.m. and Newburgh, 7 p.m.

THAT CUTTING ACID that arises from the stomach and almost strangles, is caused by fermentation of the food in the stomach. It is a foretaste of indigestion and dyspepsia. Here's one cure Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets immediately after eating, and it will prevent all this misery. Pleasant to eat. 35 cents.—For sale by T. B. Wallace.—6.

RIVERSIDE.

Mr. Frank Quinn lost his valuable fox driver last week. She died of blood poison due to the kick from a horse.—Threshing is over in this vicinity, except a few jobs which B. Grohams will thresh later in season.—Geo. Quinn made a business trip to Deseronto last week.—Mr. Tom. Quinn will help J. Donovan the rest of the season, after which he will run the cheese factory.—B. Abrahams, who has lots of work to do yet.—Cupid is polishing up the wedding bells. Several will likely be used into service soon.—Messrs. J. Larkin and A. Garrett spent Sunday at P. Quinn's.—The sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mrs. Richard Sulter and Mrs. McKeown, who are very ill.—George Quinn secured some snapshots lately which might give some funny impressions.—Mr. Robt. Finn has left for Watertown, where he will enter the service of the R. W. & O.—It looks as though baseball was ended for this season around here.—The absence of Miss Mary Quinn leaves a very noticeable vacancy in riverside circles. She reports a splendid time in Watertown.—Mr. Frank Quinn will probably spend Sunday in Portland and give some current events are depicted. The woman's department includes seasonable furs, autumn millinery, rare old jewels, and many other interesting features. The magazine has been enlarged considerably this month.

FAINLESS TEETHING.

There is no period in baby's life that mothers dread more than teething time. The little gums are tender and inflamed, the child peevish and is sleepless and cross, and the mother is usually worn out caring for the child. The cause of Baby's Own Tablets allays the inflammation soltens the tender swollen gums, and brings the teeth through painlessly. Mrs. N. Sauvy, St. Rose de Lima, Que., says: "When my baby was cutting his teeth he was feverish, cross and did not take nourishment. After giving him Baby's Own Tablets he cut six teeth without the least trouble. I have never used any medicine for children I prize so highly as the Tablets." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ry's sympathy toward Louis, for the young queen soon took it upon herself to make life a burden to "the Father of His People," and in that particular line no suppose she had an equal in all the length and breadth of Christendom.

I heartily detested King Louis, largely, I think, because of prejudice absorbed from Mary, but he was, in fact, a fairly good old man, and at times I could but pity him. He was always soft in heart and softer in head, especially where women were concerned. Was he easy attorney to seize the Countess of Croy while he was yet Duke of Orleans, and his infatuation for the latter's mother-in-law when he built the elaborate burial vault—much it must have comforted her! Then his gentle letter, because of prejudice absorbed from Mary, but he was, in fact, a fairly good old man, and at times I could but pity him. He was always soft in heart and softer in head, especially where women were concerned. Was he easy attorney to seize the Countess of Croy while he was yet Duke of Orleans, and his infatuation for the latter's mother-in-law when he built the elaborate burial vault—much it must have comforted her! Then his gentle letter to dictatorial Anne of Brittany, for whom he had induced Pope Alexander to divorce hi.. from the poor little crooked Joan. In consideration of this divorce he had put Cesar Borgia, Pope Alexander's son, on his feet, financially and politically. I think he must have wanted the owlet back again before he was done with her, because Anne was a termagant and ruled him with the heaviest rod of iron she could lift.

A MEDICINE FOR THE MINER'S PACK.—Prospectors and others going into the mining regions where doctors are few and drug stores not at all, should provide themselves with a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It will offset the effects of exposure, reduce sprains, and when taken internally will prevent and cure colds and sore throat, and as a lubricant will keep the muscles in good condition.

NEWS NOTES.

Over a hundred and sixty persons have been drowned in the recent floods in Spain.

Charles Ellingsworth, a Toronto Railway conductor, was killed by being struck by another car.

A Montreal report says the section of the Grand Trunk Pacific between Portage la Prairie and Minota is ready for traffic, and may be opened next week.

The coroner's jury at Caledon refused to be guided by the Toronto verdict in the accident there, and will continue the inquest they had already started.

TELLS HOW TO MIX IT.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large city and rural district the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to almost surely cure any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained and without injury to the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicited the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Oranges, nice and bright; Valencia Oranges, good size; fresh Lemons and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—Coffee, of course, that goes without me saying much about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

PARISH OF SELBY.

The Harvest Thanksgiving services which were to have been held last Sunday throughout the parish, will be held next Sunday, Oct. 6th. Kingsford, 10.30 a.m. Selby, 3 p.m. Strachan, 7 p.m. The Rev. A. H. Creegan, of Tyendinaga, will preach at all services. Offerings for Canadian church missions.

ACCIDENT AT MORVEN.

While working on the upper floor of his new cheesehouse on Monday, Mr. James Denyes, Morven, stepped on a loose plank which caused him to fall among the sleepers about ten feet below, the plank following struck him on the leg causing a compound fracture below the knee, also injuries about the head. Doctors Vrooman and Simpson reduced the fracture and he is doing as well as can be expected. Mr. Denyes is 65 years of age.

DO YOU USE OLIVE OIL?

The use of Olive Oil both as a food and for medicinal purposes has been a decided increase on this continent. Perhaps in no other article of commerce is there a greater amount of fraud and adulteration practised. PARISH OF CAMDEN.

The Rev. Edwin Radcliffe was tendered a splendid farewell at Hinch's Hall Tuesday, Oct. 1st, by the united congregations of Camden East, Yarker and Newburgh. Mr. Charles Riley was called to the chair. A good programme was ably and well rendered in which Mrs. C. H. Finkle, Miss Helen Finkle and Miss Evelyn Berman took part. Mr. R. S. O'Loughlin, delegate for some twenty-five years, from Yarker, addressed the audience in his usually happy manner, and then read the following address:—

Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe, B.C.L.,
Rector of the Parish of Camden.

It is with feelings of sincere regret that we have learned of your decision to sever your connection with us and the diocese of Ontario. During the five years you have labored amongst us we have ever found you a faithful priest responding promptly to the call of duty, and never sparing yourself in your efforts to extend Christ's holy church amongst 'mes. W.' trust that the labors you have exerted and the seed you have sown may continue to its leavening influence and spur us to greater efforts in the future for the advancement and welfare of the church. While duty cognizant of our loss we would embrace the opportunity of congratulating the Diocese of Rupertsland on securing the services of such a priest who will inspire his people with zeal in the Master's cause. We feel morally certain you will entirely fulfil the expectations entertained of you and will accomplish a noble and grand work in that portion of God's vineyard wherein you are now called to labour. We desire to embrace this opportunity of giving you a more tangible expression of our gratitude and goodwill by asking your acceptance of this communion service and accompanying purse, and trust that God in His infinite mercy may continue to bless your earnest efforts in the furtherance of His kingdom. Signed on behalf of the parish, Arthur Baxter, John Ewart, John Robinson, Charles Riley, William Sutton, J. J. Shorey, church wardens. A private communion service and a purse containing $70.00 in gold was then handed to Mr. Radcliffe who made a fitting reply, thanking all present for their kindness and invoking God's blessings spiritual and temporal upon all. He realized they had placed him under a debt of gratitude he could never repay. Refreshments were then served, and after votes of thanks tendered to the chairman the ladies and gentlemen and all who had helped to make the evening the success it was, God Save the King terminated the proceedings.

Monday evening, Sept. 30th, the Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe was tendered a farewell banquet at the Paisley House, Napanee, by the Rector, Wardens and clergy of the Deanery of Lennox and Addington before going to Brandon in the Diocese of Rupertsland.

LETTER FROM REV. C. E. S. RADCLIFFE.

My dear Parishioners of Camden East, Yarker and Newburgh,—Permit me by an open letter to the papers to thank you all for your sympathy and love in my work in the parish during the past five years, and for your splendid liberality and kindness to me when taking my departure to Brandon, and for the enjoyable evening and farewell given me at Hinch's hall. I thank my best thanks to the wardens at Camden East, Messrs. J. Robinson and C. Riley, to Mr. John Robinson for many personal acts of kindness which it is outside of my power to repay, to Messrs. Baxter and J. Ewart, of Yarker, and Messrs. W. Sutton and J. J. Shorey, Newburgh. There are many names in the three parishes I would also like to mention but space does not permit. To one and all who have helped so willingly and so well in church work I tender my warmest thanks. Packing up and attending to the sick at the last moment must be my plea for not having visited all the families in the parish to say farewell. I shall remember all in my prayers as I trust to be remembered by you all.

Very sincerely yours,
C. E. S. RADCLIFFE.

OBITUARY.

ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL CLARKE,

a prominent and highly respected citizen of Napanee, died on Friday evening last, after a lengthy illness. Some time ago he contracted typhoid fever, partially regained his health, and was able to be around again. About three weeks ago he suffered a relapse, but was seemingly a little better until last Thursday night, when hopes of his recovery were doubtful and death claimed him Friday evening, at the early age of 32 years and 2 months. Deceased was well known in Napanee, having been a resident here most of his life. He was for many years, before taking up photography, in which vocation he became an artist of rare ability and successfully conducted a studio until his death. He was also a prominent member of the Masonic Order and Independent Order of Oddfellows. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to the Eastern cemetery, and was largely attended by his brethren of both societies, as well as friends from the town and country. Besides his wife, deceased leaves to mourn his loss, Campbell, Victoria and Dorothy, besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Clarke, and three brothers, Charles, Frank and Cuthbert, of Rochester, N.Y. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the sorrowing family in this, their hour of bereavement.

WILFRID PRINGLE.

Wilfrid Ira Pringle, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Pringle, of 128 Dundas Seville ave., Oak Park, Ill., died Tuesday morning, 24th Sept., of cerebro spinal meningitis, after a most agonizing illness of six days. The nature of the disease was not known until after his death, the symptoms being similar to those of typhoid fever and appendicitis. He was 23 years old, and exceedingly bright and winsome boy, the high esteem in which he was held by old and young alike being manifest at the funeral, which was held at the house on Thursday morning. The large attendance, drawn from the wide circle of the friends of the family, was deeply moved with a sense of personal loss and with an outpouring of sympathy for the bereaved parents and brothers. The Sunday School class, which Wilfrid attended at the present Congregational church, was present in a body, and the floral tributes were many. The floral trifectas sent as a token of regard at the death of one so young. Rev. Dr. Sirdefield, Stirling, his former pastor, who knew and loved the boy in days gone by, had charge of the service, and spoke tenderly and appreciatively of his brief life and manly character. Madame Asselta and Miss Jean Carlisle sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "My Jesus, as Thou Will." The body was borne by three uncles of Wilfrid, H. S. Pringle, of Victoria; Geo. B. Hall, of Tamworth; Grange, and F. D. Kilmer, of Austin; and a nephew, Harry Pringle, of Napanee. Interment was private, at Forest Home. Wilfrid was a student at the Oak Park high school, and was a member of the Hawthorne school. He leaves one brother older than himself, Frederick Pringle, and two younger, Frederick Pringle and Henry L. B. Pringle, who, with their parents, are deeply afflicted in his death.

Mr. Fred. W. Pringle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Pringle, Napanee.

ESTHER M. GRANGE.

Wife of Robert Grange, deceased, was born in Jefferson County, New York, Dec. 25th, 1826, and died in Seattle, Wash., Sept. 25th, 1907, aged 81 years, 9 months and 30 days. In 1857 she was married to Robert Grange, and in Selby, Canada, for many years made home of her parents, Henry and Jane Sweet. She had no children of her own, but became the foster mother of her nephew and niece, Mr. H. D. Sweet and Mrs. Ida M. Rose, on the death of their mother, during their early childhood. In 1903 she moved from Canada, where she had lived from the 6th year of her age, to Seattle, Wash., from thence she moved to Kenawick, Wash., in 1906. In addition to the above relatives she leaves two brothers, O. D. Sweet, of Tyrone, P.O., and A. J. Sweet, of Spokane Wash. Her home was with H. D. Sweet, of Kenawick, Wash., while visiting in summer months with Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Rose, of Seattle, she was stricken with typhoid fever. Sooo complications arose, and after three weeks of suffering she peacefully passed away. She was buried by the side of her husband in Tahoma cemetery, North Tacoma, Wa. She was converted in early childhood and united with the Methodist church, in which she remained a faithful, consistent member until death. Her Christian life was characterized by a cheerful, quiet, willing spirit, faithful in attendance upon church services, loyal to the pastor, always manifesting a deep interest in the prosperity of Zion. She was confident and hopeful concerning the future, and looked forward to the time of her departure without fear. Because of her gentle, considerate disposition she was loved by all who knew her. Methodist services were held by the pastor in the Methodist church in Seattle, on Sept. 28th, the Sunday after her burial. "She shall rest from her labors and her works do follow her."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor,—Kindly permit us to correct an error which occurred in the prize list of Camden show, in your issue of Sept. 20th. You had for grade pigs, aged under 2d prize to Joseph Tait, instead of to Vangorder Bros. It is not that we wish to take from Mr. Tait the honor this error might bring him, but we do not wish to have it said that we showed a grade pig. When I have that our stallion, Sandy, was a prize winner at Toronto and a first prize at Ottawa in his fifteen, supposed to be the best in Canada, and he is just as good now as ever he was old. But we are beginning to get used to, and tired of, this kind of thing. You would not wonder at it when we explain to you that four years ago we showed Kelser Wilhelm, the imported German coach horse, that weighed over 1200 lbs., and took first prize at London, Toronto and Ottawa, against the best in the Dominion, and against the best blood stallion that we owned last season, and he was beaten by some one a size little horse, but with more breeding (being just horse), or anything else to compare with Kelser Wilhelm, so the judges gave Black Mack first and Kelser Wilhelm second.

Then again last year we showed Sandy at Harrowsmith, against a horse that had not a registered pedigree, and was not as good a horse in any way, yet we could find that class (general purpose) was not intended for such horses with a registered pedigree, and they gave the mongrel first and Sandy second. We are not kicking at the awards of those horses who were in every case because the owners themselves, although it is so natural for a person to think his horse is the best, often see that prizes are not awarded according to merit. We were told by a man a short time ago that he showed a team in competition with his horses, and no one team he said was worth $100 more than his own, while the other was worth $200 less, but the man who owned the poorest team got second, and he got third. The judges were good, but the best team got third. The judges were not to blame for this, but we would something on the judgment, but we think it is time that the Agricultural Societies fill hand and appoint competent judges, who are strangers to all parties concerned, and until there is something of this kind done, unless we change our minds, you will not see us competing for prizes with horses, especially at the two places mentioned.

It does not make us think any more of Sandy, for we know, as many others do, that he is second to no sire, he is as sure as sure as travels, and has some of the finest colts to his credit that ever were foaled. Several members of the Vangorder at your County fair, and we have seen some of them, and many others of Sandy's colts that have taken prizes (perhaps not justly) two the past three falls, at Centreville, Belleville and Napanee, are proud of this fact.

Thanking you for space in this correction and explanation, we are

Yours truly,

LENNOX AND ADDINGTON TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

An unusually large number of teachers and model students attended the sessions of the Teachers' Association held in the N. C. I., Thursday and Friday, Oct. 3d and 4th.

The general business of the Association and discussions on the Resolutions of the Ontario Educational Department occupied the forenoon session.

The afternoon session was opened with an address from the President, inspector Nowlan, who spoke of the utility of the new equipment, of the transformation it would effect in the schools, and of how much the health of teacher and pupils depended on the proper ventilation and cleanliness of the school room.

The subject "Reading," dealt with by Dr. Goggin, Toronto, was most interesting and helpful. Dr. Goggin's method of teaching reading was very simple. The child is taught to think when he reads, and to think when he is told what is being read. Nothing is to be given, with nothing to interest or arouse a desire for reading as the child sees the end, and the improved methods of teaching reading create a desire for reading as created at first by stories related, objects given or other devices followed.

Dr. Goggin also gave a practical talk on "Nature Study" which is, he said, "nothing more than the right kind of reading." "Development from Observation" up in the Public School on "Nature Study," He illustrated the principles involved in the spiritual side of it.

Too much praise cannot be accorded the cleverly written papers on "Fourth Class Composition" by Miss Hall, and "Canadian Literature," by Miss Hall, N. M. S. They were so highly classical in their style the Association passed a resolution that the Editors be asked to publish them in the local papers.

A lecture on Art by Miss Beeman, N. H. S., showed appreciation that will be helpful to the inexperienced who have to teach drawing, and encouraging to those at work.

A good programme was given in the Opera Hall, Thursday evening, consisting of vocal and instrumental music by ladies and gentlemen from Napanee and Newburgh, recitations, and addresses. The Principal of the School from a business Standpoint," by Mr. Gordon Gallagher, and Economy," by Dr. Goggin.

The very excellent papers and addresses must have been an inspiration to all who heard them. They will be an incentive to teachers to return to their work with renewed energy and enthusiasm to their work, aiming to give of their best to mould the minds and characters of the future men and women of Canada, that they may become moral, spiritually, esthetically and spiritually.

The officers elected were:—

President—Mr. J. Denyes, Principal N.H.S.
Vice President—Miss Hall, N. M. S.
Secretary-Treasurer—Miss Haggerty, Glenvale.

Committee of Management—The Principals of Napanee and Newburgh High and Public Schools, and Both Inspectors and Model Teachers.

Auditors—Messrs. Flach and Edwards.

Mr. D. L. Hill, manager of the Dominion Bank at Napanee, and Osborne Walker, Honorary members of the Association.

A vote of thanks was tendered all who assisted in making the Convention a success and to the retiring Secretary.

A Robbery In Napanee

Of $15,000 or $20,000

Would startle people like that of the Dominion Bank. Under some combination or agreement, a deal has been sold in Napanee for some years at 20c and 25c.

Singer Canadian and American coal oil has cost the retailer 14½ cts., and Canadian 13 cts. per gallon, delivered weekly at their stores, and for some time previous to. In the fall of 1905 it cost 15½ cts. for American.

When we opened our Napanee branch May 1st, and started selling groceries at our regular Picton prices, a delegation from the grocerymen and oil dealers informed us that by a united effort of all the dealers they would force us to join the combine, raise our price of oil to 25 cts., or they would sell us the low cost till we raised our prices or left the town. We replied that we were in Napanee to stay, that such a combine was illegal, that we considered such a threat robbery, and when they sold below cost to force us in the combine, we would expose the deal in the local papers.

Failing in other methods, they sold Canadian oil below cost, but only at 23c., 23½ cts. refused to sign their combination agreement or raise our prices.

Our average price in Picton of American oil has been 17 cts. equals 2 cts. profit. Allow the credit to system retailer an extra 3 cts. per gallon profit, call the extra 5 cts. illegal robbery, and the oil sold under this combine estimated 300,000 gallons at 5 cts., $15,000.00, or 824,000.00 above our cash price.

This is only one of many things sold in Napanee much cheaper than May 1st, and no drop in the cost to retailers.

We make our own prices, run our own business, get reasonable cash profits, but consider the days of 50 or 75 per cent. profit on groceries or staples a thing of the past.

Bamhardt's, Hyde Manor, spent Sunday with Arthur Sattler and Albert Macdonald at Enterprise.

COLEBROOK.

Death has again visited us and taken one who was dear and loved by all, in the person of Catherine Middleton, beloved wife of Frederick Middleton, died, in Fredericksburgh, on December 22d, 1839, and was the daughter of Christopher Lake. She died 6th, 1862, and departed this life September 29th, 1907, aged 68 years, 9 months and 7 days. She was married to Mr. Middleton for years, but always bore her suffering with Christian fortitude. Her husband and family were maintained a firm, loving wife and mother. She was a kind neighbor, a kind friend and loved by all who knew her. Her funeral was her daily attendance for months. The funeral took place from the house to Ernestown, every kindness that loving hands could give, was rendered her. The service was conducted at the family residence on Tuesday last, at 2 p.m. by the esteemed pastor, the pastor, the Rev. E. Farnsworth. Interment was in Ernestown cemetery. She passed peacefully away on Sept. 25th, in the 68th year of her age. She was a kind neighbor and a loving mother, and will be sadly missed by the loved ones. She leaves to mourn her loss, Mrs. Chas. Phillips, of this place; Mrs. Wm. Taylor, Kingston; Mrs. Kingsley, of Manitoba, and one brother, Mr. Christopher Middleton, Napanee, in their loss. The remains were placed in Bath's vault to await the burial in the spring, in the church cemetery. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in the hour of bereavement.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Wartman, on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, when their daughter, Miss Ethel Maud, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Edwin Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hickey, Superintendent of the Benjamin Mfg. Co., Napanee. The bride was given away by her father, and looked very handsome in a costume of white silk muslin. The groom was assisted by Mr. Ernest Wartman, brother of the bride. The presents were numerous and costly. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hickey left on the afternoon train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and other points. The best wishes of all accompany them.

Freddie Hewitt, a little boy, was burned to death at his home in Bay of Quinte, a few days ago. He was left alone with his baby brother. While he was playing with matches the house was burned down.

The Reason Why

Zutoo

Is Used by Thousands.

It would probably surprise you to know how many thousands of people are using Zutoo Tablets who had never before used a headache cure.

This is due to three facts.
They tried the tablets.
The tablets cured their headache.
The tablets did not hurt them.

Like sensible people, they do not suffer from headache any more. They either let Zutoo ward off the headache—nip it in the bud—or assist nature in stopping it.

Which do you do? Do you suffer from headache or do you take Zutoo?

Weak Women

To sick and ailing women, there is at least one thing, but with that, two unanswerable truths. One is local, one is constitutional. Both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. Together Shoop's Night Cure—in a topical and internal combination—is a remarkable, positive, yet harmless, specific for weak women. Shoop's Night Cure—in a topical way—relieves the inflammation, the pain, the soreness, the nervousness, the sleeplessness, the irritation, the hysteria, the weakness, the faintness, the dizziness, the nausea, the backache, the headache, the bearing-down pains, the neuralgia, the rheumatism, the sciatica, the leucorrhea, the displacement, the irregularity, the suppression, the unnatural discharges, the itching, the burning, the internal chills, the internal fever, the internal heat, the internal cold, the internal nervousness, the internal fretfulness, the internal worry, the internal fear, the internal dread, the internal sadness, the internal grief, the internal indifference, the internal apathy, the internal stupidity, the internal forgetfulness, the internal impotency, the internal sterility, the internal barrenness, the internal emptiness, the internal coldness, the internal heartlessness, the internal lovelessness, the internal shamefulness, the internal wickedness, the internal sinfulness, the internal hopelessness, the internal helplessness, the internal worthlessness, the internal uselessness, the internal nothingness, the internal deathfulness, the internal hellishness, the internal damnableness, the internal everything that is bad, that is sad, that is good for nothing, that is worthless, that is useless, that is hopeless, that is helpless, that is damnable, that is hellish, that is death, that is

THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED — 18 — Napanee's Greatest Store — THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED

Fownes' Kid Gloves.

True economy in glove buying begins and ends with getting good gloves. The style and fit of FOWNES' GLOVES need not be emphasized. But that quality of material and workmanship which makes the Fownes' glove prominent in appearance makes it the most durable and economical as well. The Eownes' Glove Company have been established one hundred and thirty years. The world is their leather market, experience is their guide. The result is quality, and again quality.

If it's a "Fownes" that's all you need to know about a glove. Fownes confine their business to us for this district. For women's and men's wear.

From Millinery Section.

Since Opening Days we have opened a lot of new shapes. Styles that are strictly correct. We have a particularly nice lot of headwear for the very little folks such as bear and angora bonnets, velvet and silk makeups: Price from 50c to $3.00.

RIBBONS—Keep us in mind for ribbons. An assortment here in different widths equal to some wholesale houses.

VEILINGS—The popular veil to day is wide width chiffon in such shades as brown, navy, black, white, grey. 25c to 50c yd.

Our Message From Dress Goods Dept.

Every week scores of our customers anxiously await the arrival of the newspaper, eager to learn what exceptionally good value we are providing for you in our dress goods dept., and knowing this encourages us to be ever on the qui vive for such values as have made Napanee's Greatest Store so widely known.

It won't be long before the temperature will drop very low, in fact it has commenced already, and then for warmer garments.

A new long coat, a new eton coat, perhaps a coat for the girl in her teens. The wee babe requires a cosy cloak these chilly days. You might appreciate a few suggestions along these lines.

Beaver Cloths—We show some extra values in heavy beaver cloths, 54 inch, in shades of black, navy, brown, red, etc, at $1.00 yd. Other qualities at $1.25, $1.50, $2.00.

Heavy Tweed Coatings—This is a specially heavy weight goods adapted for winter coats. The material is 54 in. wide and comes in plaid and stripe effects, in shades of greys, greens, browns, etc. Prices range from $1 50 to $2.25.

A special coating we are showing is a dark green mixed tweed, extra heavy, rain proof, 52 in. wide, at $3 50 yd.

Blanket Cloths, Eiderdowns, Bear Cloths—You know what comfort the children have in these warm garments. Blanket Cloths in shades of grey, navy, reds, etc., full 1½ yd wide, at 81.00. Eiderdowns, pinks, sky, reds, white with blue, red with white, etc. Prices, single width 50c, double width $1.00 yd. We stock bear cloths in the different lines ranging to $4.50 per yard. Extra fine angora surface.

French Waistings—We announce the arrival of something new in French Waistings. The cloth has a beautiful rich finish which is not found in the ordinary line of flannel waistings. The shades are navy, black, sky, reds, pale green, etc., with white embroidered designs, 27 in. wide, at 50c yd.

Black Rekartahs—From past experience you know just what to expect when you learn of our full line of Black Rekartah being again in stock. We are now showing this beautiful cloth in a 46 in. width, at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50.

Ombre Suitings—We are in receipt of a few specials in Ombre Suitings. This beautiful cloth with its dark subdued plaid and stripe effects are being spoken of as being exquisite. A glance at these will decide what your new fall dress will be.

Fur Section.

Our showing of Furs will immediately commend itself to you. Never has the value giving been so evident as at the present season. Every approved novelty of the season is represented as well as the more conservative designs.

Sables occupy a leading place and our display of these is unrivalled in Ruffs and Muffs from 7.50 to 32.00.

Caparines in all the leading kinds of furs made up with a good deep collar, just the fur for you if you have much driving to do. From 6.00 to 70.00.

A splendid assortment of Muffs from 2.00 to 50.00.

For the little ones we are showing a nice range of Muffs, Caps, Boas, Collars and Scarfs in Grey Lamb, White Thibet, Iceland, Muffton and imitation Tirmine. Nothing better than nice white and grey furs for the children.

In Ladies' Fur Lined Coats we are better prepared than ever. A nice showing in shells of black, navy, brown, red and myrtle, lined with best Canadian Muskrat, Grey Squirrel or Hamster, with Mink or Sable collar and lapels. In stock now 50.00 to 85.00.

SPECIAL—Ask to see our Special Russian Mink Set, stole and muff, Stole trimmed with braid ornaments and four tails. Stole is long and comes well out on shoulder. Muff trimmed with head and tails. A limited number only. $17.50 Set.

Fur Repairing Department.

This is a busy time for this Dept. Any garments requiring an alteration before snow time better be booked at once.

Jackets for Girls in Teens.

The average girl in her teens requires a jacket entirely different in model from a small woman's size. We have for several seasons been doing business with a German maker that caters for girls wear. He knows the right length of sleeve, the length of waist and proper bust measure for the average girl. We have this season brought out a greater number of garments than usual. They are mostly hip lengths and a little longer, others are 46 inches long. Lots of good choosing around 6.50, 7.50, 8.00, 10.00.

Women's Skirts—Ready-to-Wear.

There is a vast difference between the Ready-to-wear Skirts of to-day to what you could buy three or four years ago. We are selling Skirts right along at 5.00, 6 50, 7 50 that will stand criticism from any quarter. You cannot get truer stitching, better pressing or more perfect fit at any price. The style of every skirt we show confined strictly to us for Napanee.

New Shirt Waist Suits, $5.00, $7.50, $12.50, $15.00.

$5.00- Dark mixtures of brown and white, navy and white, pleated skirt, and tucked waists, size 34, 36, 38.

$7.50—What we have at this price is an odd line, not all sizes, mostly navys, regular price 10.00, to clear at 7.50.

$12.50—Made from an all wool Black Watch Tartan, cut in a pretty style, strappings and buttons.

$15.00—Brown Velvetta, self trimmed, a very handsome garment.

New Kimonas.

Just received a good assortment of short Kimonas and belted Dressing Jackets, medium and dark colors, 1.00, 1 25. Another lot of long Kimonas just arrived. Last lot went out in a few days. They are made with girdle to match. Good patterns to choose from red, sky, fawn mixtures. $2.50 each.

Children's Dresses.

Don't forget that we are keeping a fine lot of dresses all ready to wear for the girls. To fit all ages from 1 1 2 to 14 years.

Cotton Flannels in dots and neat figures. 8oc to 1.50.

All Wool Panamas in red, brown, navy, well made and little priced, 3.50 to 5.00.

Roller Blinds—Special Designs for Your Own House.

We carry at all times a very complete stock of shades at the popular stock prices such as 35c, 50c, 75c, 1.00, 1 25.

If you are remodelling your house or building a new one, and would like an exclusive design for new window shades, we are in a position to make you any size and give you control of the lace or insertion that you use for trimming.

Floor Oilcloths and Linoleums

This is harvest time for selling Oilcloths and Linoleums. More housekeepers are using them every year. They save more labor and are cleaner than any other floor covering for kitchen and bath room use. Some people prefer them for dining room and halls. Doctors advise their use for bedrooms. Over one hundred bright up-to-date patterns to choose from. Bring measures.

Special Orders for Hand Embroidered Xmas Linens

We are prepared to take special orders for hand embroidered bed and table linens direct from Ireland and have them here for Xmas. Monograms, initials and special designs worked out to your order. Lunch sets and tea setts a specialty.

Infants' Cloaks

We have them cream cashmeres, braid appliqued, 2.25, 3.00.

Wrappers, Large Sizes

What just came in are in navy, black and white and greys, cotton flannels, all made with lots of width in skirt, collars are made to fit. Stitching is better than you look for in wrappers at $1.50.

Silk Petticoats.

The smartly dressed woman demands Silk Underskirts. So much so that we stock full range of shades such as navy, brown, black, pink, sky, white and grey. Price range from 5.00 to 10.00.

Special Black $5.00—Just now we are showing an extra value at this price. It is made from a rustling taffeta silk with a dust frill flounce of percaline.

Special $7.50—This skirt is all silk and made wider than any silk skirt we ever showed at the price.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

—TWAIN AS A MECHANIC.

According to the men who associated with Mark Twain in his early days he showed absolutely nothing of the talent that has made him famous and rich. He was a silent young man who didn't mingle much with the young fellows he worked with. He never joined them in their sprees. In appearance he was tall and gawky, and his clothes were always a size or two too small for him. Anthony Kennedy, of St. Louis, worked with Twain on the old St. Louis Dispatch, in 1853. He were sticking type at 40 cents per thousand ems, says Kennedy, "and while the rest of us were drawing from $12 to $14 per week, it was all 'Sam Clemens' (Mark Twain) could do to make $8 or $9. He always had so many errors mark ed in his proof that it took most of his time correcting them. He could not set up an advertisement in acceptable form to save his life."

—RICE AND SALT.

There is no denying the fact that salt will not run out of a shaker in humid weather. It is a very clever material; knows enough to stay in when it rains. There is no better barometer.

But the best thing ever known to cause the salt to run is rice. Heat a teaspoonful of rice on the stove and put it in the salt shaker with the salt. The hot rice quickly absorbs all the moisture and the salt runs forth as dry as the sands of the desert. Twenty grains of rice are sufficient for a small shaker. Although it has only pinholes in top, the salt will not pack in the most humid weather.

ENGLISH SPAVIN LINIMENT removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, ringbone, sweeney, stifles, sprains, sore and swollen throat, coughs, etc. Save $25 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful Blemish Cure ever known. Sold by T. B. Wallace.

I have now on hand a full assortment of Mitts, Horse Blankets, and Robes and Leather Halters, etc. M. S. MADOLE.

IN THE SEWING ROOM.

One of the most helpful things in the sewing room is found in the small wire fasteners—or clips—used in offices to hold papers together. Two, placed on a seam, moving the one in front of the other as reached, does away with all basting, saves time and thread, and the disagreeable part of pulling out basting threads. Placed at the proper spaces, a dressmaker can do without making gathers at all. A box of these will last indefinitely.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The bulbs for fall distribution among the members of the Horticultural Society have arrived, and are now in the hands of the Secretary, ready for distribution. The members who have not received them should call upon the Secretary and get them. The caretaker of the park has during the past week put in 1000 Crocuses and 400 tulips, and has the ground in fine shape, and spring to the cheerful aspect of this little spot on. Some 200 Narcissus have been added to the school children to experiment with, and prizes will shortly be awarded to those who were most successful last summer with the seeds that were given them.

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT.

On Thursday evening, Oct. 17th, an entertainment of an interesting character will be given in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Model School Literary Society, when an illustrated lime-light lecture will be given, dealing with Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, by Rev. Howard Hayden, and Howard Hayden, as well known clergyman and author, whose lectures have been given in all parts of Canada, and whose selection of views are of the very best, and exceeding beautiful, the oxy-hydrogen gas being used, which gives the very best light for illustrated lecture purposes. The members of the Society will also introduce several selections of music, so that a pleasant evening may be spent. The prices of admission are 25c and 15c. Tickets can be obtained from the members at the public school.

THE GINGERBREAD MAN.

"A decided hit" was the verdict of the New York critics in their reviews of "The Gingerbread Man," the musical farce in which Nixon & Zimmerman will present at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Tuesday, Oct. 15th. Full to overflowing with the best efforts of Frederic Ranken, who wrote the lyrics, and A. Baldwin Sloane, whose melodies have been whistled and sung for years, redolent of the good cheer of Christmastide, the merry jingle of sleigh bells and the coming of old Santa Claus, it appears to all as a welcome visitor. The principals who have scored a success including Evelyn Kellogg, Margaret Natoal, Leslie Vere, Rose Beaudet, Bernice Major, Fred Nice, John Holden, James H. Lichter, Lute Vrooman, John Sanders, Annie Devalet, Fannie Martine, Fred. Walt, Frank Manstield, Ed. Hime and many others, with a big singing chorus of 30 individual beauties. The jewelle environment is superb, and the trodlows us to scenes that our youthful imagination have seen in the days gone by, when Jack Horner, Margery Daw, Simple Simon, Sallie Lunn, Sole Kringle, etc., were our only heroes and heroines.

ONE RIGHT REASON FOR MARRIAGE.

We often hear it said that marriages are made in heaven, but we have no proof of this; but marriage should be approved in heaven, and is never happy unless so blessed. The most pitiful marriages in the world are those which take place without cause or reason. There should be a reason in the heart of every girl for marrying a man, and it should be the holiest and purest. The perfect love for some one person above all others in the world. The girls who marry for other than this cannot be happy or make another happy. Some girls marry so heedlessly, and yet it should be something sacred. It is something which every girl should share with God, for his care, his guidance and assurance, that whatsoever she does will be with his approval. This is when heaven approves of it, and any girl who has not this spiritual feeling in the matter is only selfishly thinking of herself.

Don't marry for a home, money, to help relatives, or for any convenience, but when you do, let it be for a wiser purpose. A good woman has a great deal of influence with men, and just these little things are what are necessary for every girl to take into her heart and life before she marries a man. She can help him in his life or destroy every prospect he ever had in view, and selfish love will do all of this. True love may come to you early in life, it may come when your mind is more settled, but unselfish affection is recognized by an unselfish nature, and the longing to have all that is good and true in your life.

A DAY AT WINDSOR CASTLE

By DR. W. E. PRICE

The following article is contributed to the columns of The Beaver by Dr. W. E. Price, of Oakland, Cal., who, with Mrs. Price and son Harold, recently returned from a trip to England and the continent:—

The morning was one of the brightest we have seen since we came to England, and after breakfast we decided to visit Windsor. We walked two blocks to Euston Road, and took a top seat on an auto bus for Paddington Station, the terminus of the Great Western Railway of England. We bought tickets to Windsor and return, for which I paid six shillings, for two. The distance from London is twenty-one and a quarter miles, through a charming country, beauty everywhere, fields of the freshest verdure, grand old trees, nearly trimmed hedges, and winding roads, so clean and hard which give charm to a landscape never to be forgotten. We took a compartment in a third class car and I assure you it was as comfortable as the most fastidious could desire.

It is said that only American and fools travel first class in England. On a train going sixty miles an hour, you are soon in sight of the grand old castle. The railway station is only a short distance from the entrance to the palace, and a short walk brings one to the gate of Henry VIII., which admits the visitor to the castle yard. A guide conducted us to the curfew tower, which was built in the thirteenth century by Henry III. It has long been used as a belfry or clock tower, even from the time of Edward III., and it is believed that the clock has always occupied the same position.

It has a chime of bells which played while we were in the tower, and the guide showed us the works of the clock, and also those of the chimes, which portrayed made by a blacksmith hundreds of years ago. The clock keeps good time to-day, after ticking away the hours of several centuries. The wall in the tower is twelve and a half feet thick, and is a perfect specimen of the architecture of this period.

A subterranean passage from this tower leads under the Thames to Burnham Abbey, about three miles distant, and is supposed to have been constructed to facilitate the escape of a queen at time of peril. The passage is six feet in width, six feet high, built of solid masonry, and arched with massive stone work.

On entering the castle of Henry VIII., the visitor is shut out in the lower ward, the first object presented to the view being St. George's chapel, a beautiful example of the perpendicular style of architecture, begun by Edward IV., and completed by Henry VIII. The remains of Edward IV. are deposited in the chapel, as also those of his rival Henry VI.

Queen Mary, after her marriage with Philip of Spain, came to Windsor in great pomp. Charles I. resided here when he first came to the throne, but was retained as a prisoner at the end of his reign.

The Albert Memorial chapel is said to be the most splendid interior in England. Without viewing the edifice it is impossible to realize the beauty of its magnificent decorations, the lustrous surface of the marbles, the brilliancy of the stained glass windows, the mosaics, gold ground in the mosaics, and the variety and richness of the colors, which all combine to produce an effect that is past description. The interior was fitted up at great expense by Queen Victoria in memory of the Prince Consort.

The entire vaulted roof is covered with mosaic figures, covering in all more than one thousand English square feet, and forms a fitting crown to the beautiful decorations. Each panel of the blank window is filled with full length figures in armor of illustrious persons formerly connected with the chapel, among them appear Henry VIII., Charles I., Cardinal Wolsey, etc., etc.

The walls under the windows are inlaid with marble work. The stained glass windows around the chapel are of surpassing richness in color, and contain full length portraits representing the ancestors of the Prince Consort. In so short an account it is impossible to give but a poor idea of the splendor of this chapel.

On entering St. George's chapel the admiration of the visitor is immediately excited by the grandeur of its architecture, which was executed in the reign of Henry VII., is remarkable for the beauty of its tracery, and is supported by fluted figures, the ribs and groins sustaining the roof with admirable symmetry. The great west window is also a thing of beauty, and contains six tiers of stained glass. The font is made of alabaster and is munificent in design. The richness of the roof of the choir, the carved work, the memorial window, above the altar, combine to present to the eye an almost unrivaled union of sublimity and grandeur.

The vaults of Henry VIII., his Queen, Jane Seymore, and also that of Charles I. are to be seen in the floor. The royal pew is in an elevated position in the north east corner of the chapel, in a recess. We were conducted through the State Apartments.

At the top of the first flight of stairs is to be seen a colossal statue of George IV. The ante room is next seen. It contains tapestry, and carvings of fish, game and flowers by Gibbons.

The next is the Ruben's room, which contains ten masterpieces by this old master. In the Council room the walls are covered with fine paintings, as also the king's closet, where I counted forty-eight masterpieces. The Queen's closet also is adorned with some twenty-two famous works of great merit, and fifty-seven more are hung in the Picture Gallery.

The Queen's audience chamber is very grand, and is only surpassed by her presence chamber, the walls of which are covered with Gobelin tapestry.

The Guard chamber is seventy-eight feet long, and thirty-one feet high. The walls are hung almost entirely with arms, trophies of the wars in which the English have been engaged. St. George's hall is 590 feet long, 34 feet broad, and 32 feet high. The dimensions are surpassed by the magnificence of the embellishments.

The Knights of the Garter have occupied this room since the order was founded in the year 1350, in the fifth year of the reign of Edward III., about 550 years.

The grand reception room is 90 feet long, 34 feet wide, and 33 feet high, and the walls are covered with fine specimens of Gobelin tapestry. From the ceiling four splendid chandeliers are suspended.

The throne room is all in rich blue and very gorgeous. The state room is embellished with pictures.

Waterloo chamber or Grand Dining room is 98 feet long, 45 feet high, 42 feet broad. It is a repository for the portraits of eminent men. The furniture is new, and of the richest style. The state room is paneled, doors, chimney pieces and picture frames are adorned with carvings by Gibbons.

The Gold Pantry contains the gold plate which is valued at £1,800,000. It includes a gold dinner service for 100 persons, 30 dozen plates worth £10,000, and cups, tankards, salvers and vases too numerous to mention.

The Royal Library contains 80,000 books, some of great value, and a collection of manuscripts and curiosities.

We were allowed to go to the top of the Round Tower, from which a delightful view of the Thames and the landscape is obtained.

We put in the hand of our guide opened gold piece to the highest pinnacle of this highest of all the towers, where few are allowed to go.

Many times royal personages have been confined in this tower. King John, David of Scotland and David of Scotland being among the number. In the centre is a hill, taken in the Crimean War, and brought here from Sebastopool in 1855.

We went through the Royal mews and saw the king's horses and carriages. Parliament spent £70,000 per annum to maintain about fifty horses and ten ponies. Buckingham palace cost about £300 each. We viewed the royal stables and also the carriages, some forty of them. They are richly painted black, upholstered with red, and have the Royal coat of arms.

The horses are driven and exercised two hours every day, one man having the care of only two horses. The latest Queen's favorite was a white pony she called Belle. She is the oldest animal now in the stables. The name of each horse is to be seen on the stall, where I saw such names as Silverley, White Heather, Orange Blossom, Queen Mary, Gray Lad, Union Jack, Victory Fairy, etc.

At Buckingham Palace in London there the king spends most of his time, he has a stable of 150 horses. The carriage horses are all dappled greys.

Around the castle is what is called the Home Park. It contains about 2,000 acres, and beautiful and elegant are words which fail to convey its charms. There is no attention neglected which can add to the attractiveness, and the park is as near perfect as art and nature can make it.

We took a drive through the Great Park, which contains 4,500 acres, and is stocked with 5,000 head of Fallow deer. It lies on the south side of the castle, and is intersected with many roads, the principal of which is called the Long Walk, which is over three miles in length. It has a carriage drive in the centre, which is perhaps 200 feet wide, and on either side are two roadways for equestrians and pedestrians. There are rows of noble elms along the way, which are said to be the trees planted in 1680, and have attained an enormous size, the trunks being five or six feet in diameter. The road extends from the Grand entrance to the castle to the top of Snow Hill, on which stands an heroic equestrian statue of George III. It is placed on a lofty pile of granite, and is by far the grandest avenue I have ever seen, and I doubt if anywhere on the globe one of greater beauty or grandeur can be found. We got back to the depot just in time to take the 5.30 train for London, every moment of our time having been filled with thoughts and scenes connected with this historical old castle.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS.

Believing fully in up-to-date methods in conducting business we have for some time been investigating different systems of handling charge accounts, and our decision has finally rested on the Huber Account Register, with its complete System.

The HUBER SYSTEM renders with each purchase, whether by phone or in person, an itemized bill with the past account added, thus showing the correct standing of your account at all times. The slip accompanying each order is a duplicate copy of the original being placed in your individual department in the Huber Account Register. This method absolutely prevents any over charge, and does away entirely with the many petty annoyances accompanied with the old way of handling accounts.

We solicit your patronage and appreciate our efforts in this direction. There is nothing too good for our customers.

Respectfully yours,

Odessa Fall Fair

The last, and certainly one of the best, fall fair to be held in this County, occurred at Odessa, on Friday last, and was attended by one of the largest crowds in the history of the Society. The weather may took liberties on Thursday night and early Friday morning, but the fact that Odessa Show was to be held on that day seemed to clear the sky and a more beautiful and pleasant day would be hard to find than that of Friday last. The roads were very muddy, but the people attended the show just the same.

The exhibits were excellent this year, and the officers of the Society are to be congratulated on the success attending their efforts. Our thanks are due to Mr. R. W. Aylsworth, President, and Mr. A. M. Fraser, Sec.-Treas., for their kindness and attention. A game of football was played in the afternoon between Odessa and Newburgh Juniors, the latter winning by a score of 7 to 0.

Odessa Band enlivened the proceedings of the day with choice selections, and Mr. H. Sager's merry-go-round was also the place of attraction for old and young.

The list of prizes awarded was unusually large this year and keen competition resulted, as they were well worth looking for.

Following is a list of prize winners:

DETLOR IS INNOCENT.

Judge Madden presided at a special session of the County Court at Kingston on Friday 27th Sept., when Benjamin F. Detlor, Ardoch, was charged with stealing six boxes of Government cartridges from the premises of Capt. T. Fripp, of the 47th Regiment. The case was allowed to have been committed in November last, and the missing articles were not found until last week, when a young lad named Wartman found them in Detlor's mill. The arrangement of a stable John C. Hayes were accused, and told armed with a search warrant to examine the mill, finding the other boxes.

After counsel was placed under arrest, came up before the Justice of the Peace, pleaded not guilty, and was committed for trial. Reasonable bail was accepted, and the prisoner released.

Mr. L. Whiting looked after the interests of the Crown, and Mr. Hanley defended for the prisoner.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Capt. Fripp, Brigade of the 47th Regiment, the complainant. He told how the cartridges were lost in his keeping as to their disappearance, and to the finding. Witness had never been the best of friends with the accused, and on July 13th last paid a fine of $2.00 and costs for using abusive language to defendant and his son. Witness was not on speaking terms with any of the neighbors when leaving, giving give more in men who went to camp with the 47th. Witness was examined by his counsel Mr. Hanley, and out that his son was away when the theft was committed by him, and he did not think his son until the early spring, letting six cartridges per lot

The Difference in Clothes

It's the easiest thing in the world to buy poor clothes, but it's a mighty hard thing to get your money's worth of satisfaction out of them, no matter how little you pay; but when you buy good clothes, satisfaction is uninterrupted. Try it if you never have. Let us show you that the true road to economy lies in good clothes—clothes that are a reality of value to the wearer; all excellently well made, hand-finished for shape's sake. There isn't anything better to be had anywhere at our prices, which range from $8.00 to $20.00.

Come on in for your Fall Clothing.

MUSIC.

Mr. Chas. Fisher proposes to establish a music class for young people, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 4th, to continue nearly throughout the winter months. A limited number of boys and girls, not over 18 years of age, will be admitted, and a central place of meeting will be provided. Mr. Fisher intends to give them a thorough course of lessons in the elementary stages of music, and will be prepared to charge $2.50 for 12 lessons, payable in advance. Apply between 7 and 8 p.m., except Saturday, to CHAS. FISHER, Centre st. 40d

GOOD ROADS INSPECTION.

Mr. W. A. McLeod, civil engineer of the Department of Public Works, Toronto, was in town on Thursday and Friday morning, in company with Reeve Lowry, he drove over the County Road system in Richmond, Camden, Sheffield, and Ernestown, arriving in Napanee on Saturday night. He speaks very highly of the work done on the roads this year, as well as of the new steel bridges. He also inspected the County machinery, and made several good suggestions in reference to the material being put on the roads. On his return from the east he will inspect the balance of the system.

Himsel (not known within $5,000 how much these palatial homes cost yearly to maintain, but the annual cost has been said to make a very big hole in $500,000. Is Wentworth Woodhouse, which is only one of his four palaces, Lord Fitzwilliam owns the largest private house in England. It has a frontage of 600 feet, its hall is so enormous that a fashionable villas could be built inside it, and its owner could live in a different room every day for six weeks and still leave seven rooms unseen.

The Duke of Portland owns five regal homes in England and Scotland, the value of which runs into millions and which, with the attached garden and estates, keep hundreds of servants employed. At Welbeck he has over 30 acres of kitchen gardens alone; in the glass houses and garden proper he employs about 70 men and boys, and his horticultural bill for this one house is said to exceed $30,000 a year.

Blenheim palace, the Duke of Marlborough's Oxford seat, is so colossal that the late duke used to declare that he spent $4,000 a year on putty alone for his window panes. It actually cost $1,500,000 to build, in days when money was more valuable than it is to-day; it is 348 feet long, has 15 staircases, and when it was repaired some time ago his grace found it necessary to sell his pictures and books to defray the cost, which amounted to more than $1,500,000.

The Duke of Northumberland owns five stately seats, at one alone of which—Syon House, Isleworth—a staff of 30 or 40 men is kept busy, largely in the magnificent kitchen garden and fruit houses, and yet the duke spends only a small portion of the year in this princely home, the rental value of which probably exceeds the lord chancellor's official income.

The Marquis of Bute has five seats in Scotland and Wales, and another one of them, Mount-stuart, Rothesay, covers an acre of ground, has 150 rooms, and has actually cost over $10,000,000, representing, even at a modest 4-per cent., a value of $400,000 a year. The Bute family understand that his lordship's income of $1,150,000 a year is not a penny too much for the demands on it.

Of Lord Londonderry's four seats, Wynyard Park, Sedgefield, has 100 yards long, and boasts a sculptured marble hall 100 feet long and 58 feet high, while Goodwood, one of the Duke of Richmond's four magnificent seats, with its two wings, 378 feet, and requires about 60 domestics to keep it in order.

Castle Howard, the splendid Yorkshire seat of Lord Carlisle, has 125 rooms; Castle stands on two acres; Stafford House, the town residence of the Duke of Sutherland, covers an acre, and to some 60 servants and costs about $100,000 a year to keep going, and Eaton Hall cost over $5,000,000 to build.

It is said that there are at least 60 country houses in the United Kingdom which require a staff of from 250 to 500 servants and involve an annual bill for wages ranging up to $100,000, and in many of these the gardens alone employ more than $25,000 a year.

Expensive as country seats are to maintain, with a few exceptions such as those mentioned they are little more than luxuries. Even for a tiny house in Park Lane, such as would be procurable in a London suburb for $300 a year, a rental of $15,000 is asked, while some of the larger houses command a rent running into five figures. In Grosvenor square the rents range from $5,000 to $20,000 for the season, with its costly entertainments, may easily account for $50,000.

And town and country houses are but a part of the expenditure of the wealthy class. A steam yacht may cost $250,000 or more, while for a similar sum is by no means uncommon for a grouse moor and a deer forest in Scotland season, with its costly entertainments, may easily account for $50,000.

COSTLY PALACES.

English Houses, the Cost of Whose Maintenance is Enormous.

The Duke of Devonshire has no fewer than seven stately homes—six in England and one in Ireland—each of them fit for the reception of a king and not one of which, as he confessed the other day, he has lived in long enough to explore thoroughly himself, or has ever been out. know within $5,000 how much these palatial homes cost yearly to maintain, but the annual cost has been said to make a very big hole in $500,000. NEWBURGH.

The first annual convention of the Tamworth division of the recently divided Napanee Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held in the Methodist church here on Thursday last. The district was well represented by delegations of earnest women workers, and an inspiring convention was the result. Mrs. D. E. Rose, of Tamworth, District Organist, presided, and Mrs. J. M. Denyes, of Newburgh, was elected Secretary. Six of the eight auxiliaries of the District reported, each report showing progress and increased interest. Reports were also received from the Mission Circle of Trinity church, Napanee, which belongs to this Branch for Convention purposes, and from the Mission Bands in Napanee, Newburgh and Enterprise.

The programme was excellent. Rev. Mr. Duke made an address of welcome on behalf of the local auxiliary which was replied to by Mrs. A. W. Grange, of Napanee.

Papers were read as follows: "Do our offerings represent self-denial?" written by Mrs. E. Wagar, Enterprise, and read by Miss Hattie Wagar; "Is auxiliary work done at the expense of other church duties?" by Mrs. H. A. Baker, of Moscow; "The progress of women in the 20th century" by Mrs. Finkle, of Napanee. These were of a high order and were thoroughly enjoyed. Especial mention might be made of the very searching paper by Mrs. Wagar. Mrs. A. W. Grange led in a discussion of the question, "Does it pay to send boxes to our missionaries abroad?" The consensus of opinion, based on personal experience, was that great benefit and inspiration is derived. The resolved from the Branch meetings, and it was suggested that if the auxiliaries were weak, two or three should unite in sending a delegate who would report to each. Mrs. J. P. Wells, of Tamworth, gave the convention the names of Miss M. Sissionaries in Japan, where they were stationed, and the nature of their work.

A much appreciated musical programme interspersed the papers and addresses. There were solos by Miss Cairns, of Napanee, and Mrs. Stanley Wagar, Tamworth, and a pleasant solos by Mrs. Smith, of Napanee, and Miss Limbert, Newburgh. The convention was entertained at dinner in the church, the Newburgh ladies assisted in this feature by the auxiliary at Wesley. Mrs. Rose, who presided with grace and dignity, was elected organizer for the ensuing year.

Mention should not be forgotten of the consecration service led by Mrs. E. Farnsworth, of Yarker, and Mrs. R. Price, of Wesley. Revds. Duke, Mears and Clancy were present during the convention and took part.

The inauguration of field day of sports at the High Schools was successfully carried out on Friday last. The afternoon was given up to a programme of 24 events, and the programme was put through without a hitch, nearly every event showing a keen contest for supremacy. The boys entered the games with enthusiasm and set off, or lose, half the satisfaction of having done their best. The prizes were given at the end of fun, and some terrible pounding of the nails fairly flew into the final breaks. The 100 yard run for seniors, furnished the pretiest race seen here in a long day, the first three at the wire having a very close finish. Messrs. W. A. Dunwoody, W. B. Dunn and W. A. Meacham were very capable judges, and Mr. Fred. Shorey a most efficient starter. The townspeople showed their interest in the games by their attendance in large numbers, and there were also a number of spectators from Napanee. Prizes will be presented to all winning points, at the H. S. Commencement exercises in December. The Athletic Committee, who with the principal, had the arrangements in charge were Wm. Skinner, Percy Shewell, Geo. Paul, Ross Dougan, Fred. Young, Irvin Storms and Percy Abbit. The results in detail as follows:

Senior.

100 yards run—P. Nesbit, P. Shewell, Geo. Shorey.

Running high jump—A. Emberly, Shewell, W. Skinner.

Running hop, step and jump—Skinner, Emberly, Shewell.

220 yards run—Shewell, Shorey, Emberly.

Putting shot—Emberly, Skinner, Shewell.

Running board jump — Shorey, Skinner, Emberly.

Intermediate.

Running high jump—Duff Wartman, P. Williams, C. Dean.

Kicking football—Wartman, Deare.

Putting shot—Wartman, Williams.

100 yards run—Williams, Skinner.

Running hop, step and jump — Wartman, Deare, Williams.

220 yards run—Williams, Wartman.

Running broad jump—Williams, Wartman, Deare.

Junior.

Running hop, step and jump— R. Pomeroy, L. Kennedy, C. Skinner.

Kicking football—C. Skinner, L. Robinson, C. Darling.

100 yards run—Pomeroy, Robinson, Kennedy.

Running broad jump—Pomeroy, Babcock, Kennedy.

Running high jump—Babcock, Pomeroy, Kennedy.

Girls.

50 yards run—Beryl Amey, Flossie Clancy, Maud Salsbury.

Egg race—Sadie Kennedy, Kathleen Finn, Lillian Foster.

Nail race—Lillian Foster, Beryl Amey, Nellie Lockridge and Flossie Clancy.

The senior championship was won by Arthur Emberly with 14 points, closely followed by Percy Shewell with 13, and William Skinner with 12 points. Duff Wartman led for the intermediate honors with 24 points, beating Percy Williams by 2 points. Reynolds Pomeroy had a long lead for the junior championship, with 18 points. The programmes of the events, issued by the Beaver Office were exceedingly neat, being an excellent sample of the printers' art.

Miss Marie Johnston received the hearty congratulations of her fellow-students at the N. H. S. on winning the medal in the elocution contest in that school.

The missionary debate at the Epworth League on Monday night was very interesting and instructive. The affirmative, taken by Miss A. Clancy and Miss Nellie Lockridge, sought to prove that medical work had more influence than educational work in the foreign field, while Mr. W. Meacham alone upheld the negative in a shower of his assistants, Mr. Percy Shewell. Both sides were well argued, and the decision awarded the affirmative by the judges, Rev M. Duke and Mrs. Stickney. Miss McKim, missionary vice-President, presided. Miss McKim and Miss Clancy were appointed delegates to the District Convention at Napanee.

Mrs. (Rev.) Gandier is again confined to the house through illness.

Miss Connoly, of Yarker, is the guest of Mrs. Ryan, this week.

Miss Helen Finkle attended the "Made-in-Canada" exhibition in Kingston on Saturday, returning on Monday night.

Miss Scott, of the Deaconess Home in Toronto, will address the Methodist congregation here next Sunday night, on the deaness work of the church. Rev. Mr. Duke will assist that day in the dedication of a new church at Moscow.

Dr. M. I. Beeman returned from New York on Monday. With Dr. Hall, of Chatham, he represented the Provincial Board of Health at the meeting of the Association of Public Health Association at Atlantic City. This gathering comprised about 300 of the leading medical men of the continent, and was presided over by Mr. Mesiran, a physician. From this meeting Dr. Beeman went to New York, where he spent ten days at the Polyclinic and in visiting the leading hospitals of the city. He reports a very pleasant and profitable trip. In the metropolis he met Dr. Lorne Ryan, who is now first assistant physician to the company engaged in constructing the terminal buildings and tunnel for the Hudson and Manhattan Railway Co. The office building of this railway is the largest in the world. The tunnel was also on board the Lusitania, after her record trip across the Atlantic, and proclaims her a wonderful boat.

Miss Maude Woods, of Napanee, spent Sunday with Miss McKim.

Dr. and Mrs. Lindsay spent Tuesday evening at E. W. Stickney's. Mrs. Lindsay (nee Winnie Tayl

Serious consequences were averted at Kingston, when Zam-Buk, Blood Poison through sucking dye has as more than one occasion proved, and such might have been the case with Mr. Thos. Foster, of Kingston, had it not been for Zam-Buk. Mr. Foster, formerly an officer in the Horse Artillery, stationed at Kingston, says:—

"Last fall I had a nasty sore on my foot caused by the irritation from a protruding eyelet in my shoe. Before I was aware of it blood poisoning had set in, and the pain was fearful. I suffered much in consequence. I tried a good many salves and ointments, but there was no improvement, until I began with Zam-Buk. This ointment drew out all the inflammation and poisonous matter and healed the sore in several days' after applying. You can publish this statement if you wish for the benefit of Zam-Buk cannot be too widely known."

All Zam-Buk is purely vegetable. Rub it well into the skin, and you will find no poison left in the body. Zam-Buk is also unequalled for piles, eczema, bad legs, ulcers, scalds, cuts, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere. Not the cause—congestion, pain is blood pressure. Relieve pressure—all pain is relieved. Or, at least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he has created a little pink tablet. The name is Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. It acts away from the brain, relieves congestion, relieves pressure, relieves pain. Relieves surely, promptly, delightfully. Gently, but mightily. It surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If you have brain trouble, some organ congestion, restless, nervous, it's blood pressure you possess. That surely is certain. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop pain. Relieve pressure. Simply relieve pressure. Just finger, and doesn't it get red, and pain pain? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is. It's simply Common Sense.

Why wait at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

When Knighthood Was In Flower

You remember well, I doubt not, when there first didst catch me, this new decree. Ah, how delightful it was, and yet how at first it did frighten and anger me. Thou canst not know how my heart beat during all the time of that first dance. I thought, of a surety, it would burst, and then the wild thrill of frightened ecstasy that made my blood run like fire! I knew it must be wrong, for it was, in truth, too sweet a thing to be right. And then I grew angry at thee as the cause of my wrongdoing and scolded thee, and repented it, so much. Truly didst thou conquer, not win, me. Then afterward, withal it so frightened me, how I longed to dance again, and could in no way stay myself from asking. At times could I hardly wait till evening fell, and when upon occasion thou didst not come I was so angry I said I hated thee. What must thou have thought of me, so forward and bold! And that afternoon! Ah, I think of it every hour, and see and hear it all and live it over and o'er, as it sweeter grows with memory's ripening touch. Some moments there are that send their glad ripple down through life's stream to the verge of the grave, and truly blest is one who can smile upon and kiss these memory waves and draw from thence a bliss that never fails; but thou knowest full well my heart, and I need not tease thee with its outpourings.

There is yet another matter of which I wish to write in very earnestness. Sir Edwin spoke to me thereof, and what he said hath given me serious thought. I thank him for his words, of which he will tell thee in full if thou but importune him thereto. It is this: The daughter, Francis d'Angouleme, hath fallen desperately fond of me and is quite an importunate and almost as foolish as the elder lover. This people in this strange land of France have, in sooth, some curious notions. For an example thereto, no one thinks to find anything unseeming in the daughter's conduct by reason of his having already a wife, and more, that wife the Princess Claude, daughter to the king. I laugh at him and let him say what he will, for in truth I am powerless to prevent it. Words cannot scar even a rose leaf and will not harm me. Then, by his help and example, I am justified in the eyes of the court in that I so treat the king, which otherwise it were impossible for me to do and live here. So, however much I may loathe them, yet I am driven to tolerate his words, which I turn off with a laugh, making sure, thou mayest be certain, that I come to nothing more than words. And this it is, however much I wish it not, that I do use him to help me treat the king as I like, and do then use the poor old king as my buckler against the glances of too great familiarity. But, my friend, when the king comes to die, then shall I have my fears of this young Francis d'Angouleme. He is desperate in love, and I know not to what length he might go. The king cannot live long, as the thread of his life is like rotten flax, and when he dies thou must come without delay, since I shall be in deadly peril. I have a messenger waiting at all hours ready to send to thee upon an hour's notice, and when he comes make not a precious errand. I may mean all to thee and me. I could write on and on forever, but it would be only to tell thee o'er and o'er that my heart is full of thee to overflowing. I thank thee that thou hast never called me awful nor said that thou hast hereafter only good cause for better faith.

MARY, Regina.

"Regina!" That was all. Only a queen! Surely no one could charge Brandon with possessing too modest tastes.

It was, I think, during the second week in December that I gave this letter to Brandon, and about a fortnight later there came to him a messenger from Paris, bringing another from Mary, as follows:

Master Charles Brandon:

Sir and Dear Friend,—Greeting—I have but time to write that the king is so ill he cannot live the o'er morning. Thou knowest that which I last wrote to thee, and in addition thereto I would say that although I have, as thou likewise knowest, my broad-purposed reasons for whom I wish, yet as I have his one consent it is safer that I so act upon that rather than be so scrupulous as to wait for another. So it were better that thou take me to wife before the one ruler shall make the necessity of having to do it without me. I say no more, but come with all the speed thou knowest.

MARY.

It is needless to say that Brandon started in haste for Paris. He left court for the ostensible purpose of paying me a visit, and came to Ipswich, whence we sailed.

The French king was dead before Mary's message reached London, and when we arrived at Paris Francis I. reigned on the throne of his father-in-law. I had guessed only too accurately. As soon as the restraint of the old king's presence, light as it had been, was removed, the young king opened his attack upon Mary in dreadful earnest. He begged and pleaded and wooed like a lover, which was surely manifest enough, and within three days after the old king's death offered to divorce Claude and make Mary his queen. She refused that flattering offer, his surprise was genuine.

"Do you know what you refuse?" he asked in a temper. "I offer to make you my wife—queen of 15,000,000 of the greatest subjects on earth—and are you such a fool as to refuse a gift like that, and a man like me for a husband?"

"That I am, your majesty, and with a good grace. I am queen of France without your help and care not so much as one penny for the honor. It is greater to be a queen of England, and for this love you avow, I would make so bold as to suggest that you have a good, true wife, to whom you would do well to give it all. To me it is nothing, even were you a thousand times like King you are. My heart is another's, and I have my brother's permission to marry him."

"Another's! God's soul! Tell me who this fellow is that I may spit him on my sword!"

"No, sir! You would not. Even were you as valiant and grand as you think yourself, you would be but a child in his hands."

Francis was furious, and had Mary's apartments guarded to prevent her escape, averring he should not go free.

As soon as Brandon and I arrived in Paris we took private lodgings, and well is that we did. I, for one, went out to reconnoiter, and found the widowed queen a prisoner in the old Palace des Tournelles. With the help of Queen Claude I secretly obtained an interview and learned the true state of affairs.

Had Brandon been recognized and his mission known in Paris he would certainly have been assassinated by order of Francis.

When I saw the whole situation, with Mary nothing less than a prisoner in the palace, I was ready to give up all without a struggle, but not so Mary. Her brain was worth having, so fertile was it in expedients, and, while I was ready to despair, she was only getting herself in good fighting order.

After Mary's refusal of Francis, and after he had learned that the sacrifice of Claude would not help him, he grew desperate and determined to keep the queen dowager in his court at any price and by any means. So he set upon the scheme of marrying her to his weak minded cousin, the Count of Savoy. To that end he sent a hurried embassy to Henry VIII., offering, in case of the Savoy marriage, to pay back Mary's dower of 400,000 crowns. He offered to help Henry in the matter of the imperial crown in case of Maximilian's death, a help much greater than any King Louis could have given. He also offered to confirm Henry in all his French possessions and to relinquish all claims of his own thereto—all as the price of one eighteen-year-old girl. Do you wonder she thought an exalted estimate of her own value?

As to Henry, it of course need not be said that half the price offered would have bought him to break an oath made upon the true cross itself. The king was delighted, and made no delay in inbeut before it was given, stood not for an instant in the way of the French king's views, and Henry, with a promptitude begotten of cunning and hasty in sending an embassy to accept the offer as Francis had been to make it. It mattered not to him what new torture he put upon his sister. The price, I believe, was sufficient to have induced him to cut off her head with his own hands.

As Brandon and Henry were quick in their movements, Mary was quicker. Her plan was made in the twinkling of an eye. Immediately upon seeing me at the palace she sent for Claude, with whom she had become great friends, and told her all she knew. She did not know of the scheme for the Savoy marriage, though Queen Claude did and fully explained it to Mary. Naturally enough, Claude would be glad to get Mary as far away from France and her husband as possible, and was only too willing to lend a helping hand to our purpose, or Mary's, rather, for she was the leader.

We quickly agreed among ourselves that Mary and Queen Claude should within an hour go out in Claude's new coach for the ostensible purpose of hearing mass. Brandon and I were to go to the same little chapel in which Jane and I had been married, where Mary said the little priest could administer the sacrament of marriage and perform the ceremony as well as if he were thrice as large.

I hurriedly found Brandon and repaired to the little chapel, where we waited for a very long time, we thought. At last the two queens entered as if to make their devotions. As soon as Brandon and Mary caught sight of each other Queen Claude and I began to examine the altar and read aloud the Latin inscriptions. If these two had not married soon, they would have been the death of me. I was compelled at length to remind them that time was very precious just at that juncture, whereupon Mary, who was half laughing, half crying, lifted her hands to her hair and let it fall in all its lustrous wealth down over her shoulders. Then Brandon saw this, he fell upon his knee and kissed the hem of her gown, and she, stooping over him, raised him to his feet and placed her hand in his.

Thus Mary was married to the man to save whose life a few months before married the French king.

She and Queen Claude had forgotten nothing, and all arrangements were completed for the flight. A messenger had been dispatched two hours before with an order from Queen Claude that a ship should be waiting at Dieppe ready to sail immediately upon our arrival.

After the ceremony Claude quickly bound up Mary's hair, and the queens departed from the chapel in their coach. We soon followed, meeting them again at St. Denis gate, where we found the best of horses and four sturdy men awaiting us. The messenger to Dieppe who had preceded us would arrange for relays, and, as Mary, according to her wont when she had another to rely upon, had taken the opportunity to become thoroughly frightened, no time was lost. We made these forty leagues in less than twenty-four hours from the time of starting, having paused only for a short rest at a little town near Rouen, which city we carefully passed around.

We had little fear of being overtaken at the rate we were riding, but Mary said she supposed the world would die down for a month immediately upon our arrival at Dieppe. Fortunately no one pursued us, and we rode down for a month immediately upon our arrival at Dieppe. Fortunately no one pursued us, and we rode down to Claude, who had spread the report that Mary was ill, and, fortunately also, much to Mary's surprise and delight, when we arrived at Dieppe, as fair a wind as a sailor's heart could wish was blowing right up the chafnel. It was in part of the system of relays—horses, ship and wind.

"When the very wind blows for our special use, we may surely dismiss fear," said Mary, laughing and clapping her hands, but nearly ready for tears notwithstanding.

The ship was a fine new one, well fitted to breast any sea, and, learning this, we put once again our trust in God, sailing in England Mary and I should go to London and win over the king, if possible. We felt some confidence in being able to do this, as we counted upon Wolsey's help, but in case of failure we still had our plans. Brandon was to take the ship to a certain island off the Suffolk coast and there await us the period of a year if need be, as Mary might, in case of Henry's obstinacy, be detained, then revictual and remen the ship and out through the North sea for their former haven, New Spain.

In case of Henry's consent, how they were to live in a style fit for a prince Brandon did not know unless Henry should open his heart and provide for them, a doubtful contingency upon which they did not base much hope. At a pinch they might go down into Suffolk and live next to Jane and use on Brandon's estates. To this Mary readily agreed, and said it was what she wanted above all else.

There was one thing now in favor of the king's acquiescence. During the last three months Brandon had become very necessary to his amusement, and amusement was his greatest need and bane in life.

Mary and I went to London to see the king, having landed at Southampton for the purpose of throwing off the scent any one who might seek the chase. The king was delighted to see his sister, and kissed her over and over again.

Mary had as hard a game to play as ever fell to the lot of woman, but she was equal to the emergency if any woman ever was. She did not give Henry the slightest hint that she knew anything of the Count of Savoy episode, but calmly assumed that of course her brother had meant literally what he said when he made the promise as to the second marriage.

The king soon asked: "But what are you doing here? They have hardly buried Louis as yet, have they?"

"I am sure I do not know," answered Mary, "and I certainly care less. I married him only during his life time and not for one moment afterward, so I came away and left them to bury him as they him, as they choose; I care not which."

"But"—began Henry, when Mary interrupted him, saying, "I will tell you"—

I had taken good care that Wolsey should be present at this interview. So we four—the king, Mary, Jane and myself—quietly stepped into a little alcove away from the others and prepared to listen to Mary's tale, which was told with all her dramatic eloquence and feminine persuasiveness. She told of the ignoble insults of Francis, of his vile proposals—insisted upon, almost to the point of force—certainly concealing, however, the offer to divorce Claude and make her queen, which proposition might have had its attractions for Henry. She told of her imprisonment in the Palace des Tournelles and of her deadly peril and many indignities, and that she had nothing in the telling. Then she finished by throwing her arms around Henry's neck in a passionate flood of tears and begging him to protect her, to save her, save her, save her, his little sister!

It was all such perfect acting that for the time I forgot it was acting, and a great lump swelled up in my throat. It was, however, only for the instant, and when Mary, whose face was hidden from all the others on Henry's breast, smiled slyly at me from the midst of her tears and sobs, I burst into a laugh that was lucky I made sobbing everything. Henry turned quickly upon me, and I tried to cover it by pretending that I was sobbing. Wolsey helped me out by putting a corner of his gown to his eyes, when Henry, seeing us all so affected, began to catch the fever and swell with indignation. He put Mary away from him and, striding up and down the room, exclaimed in a voice that all could hear:

"The dog, the dog, to treat my sister so! My sister! My father's daughter! My sister! The first princess of England and queen of France for his mistress! By every god that ever breathed, I'll chastise this scurvy cur until he howls again. I swear it by my crown, if it cost me my kingdom," and so on until words failed him. But see how he kept his oath, and see how he and Francis hobnobbed not long afterward at the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

Henry came back to Mary and began to question her, when she repeated the story for him. Then it was she told of my timely arrival, and how, in order to escape and protect herself from Francis, she had been compelled to marry Brandon and flee with us.

She said: "I so wanted to come home to England and be married where my dear brother could give me away, but I was in such mortal dread of Francis, and there was no other means of escape, so"—

"God's death! If I had but one other sister like you, I swear before heaven I'd have you married to Brandon! Fool! Idiot! What do you mean? Married to Brandon! Jesu! You'll drive me mad! Just one other

If you should get an invitation to see our "reserve stock" rooms on third flat, you will more readily understand how we sell staple goods so close to old prices. There you will find cords of staple cotton goods that were bought many points below the level of to-day's price. Just so long as they last can we doie out at old values.

Our stripe Flannelettes, at 10 cents are to-day worth 12½ cents.
Light stripe Flannelette Shirtings, at 12½ cents, are worth 15 cents.
Stripes at 5c, 6c, 7c, and 8c, are worth 20 per cent. more.
Indigo Glasgow Shirting Flannelettes, are still going at 15 cents.
White Rochette Flannelettes at 15c and 20c. They are entirely free of chemicals.

Saxony Blankets, Silk Bound, $3.25

During the week we placed in stock a White Saxony Blanket, 64x76. Each blanket is bound with a wash silk Russian binding. They will stand the wash without shrinking. Before placing our order we were shown a sample blanket that had stood the wash test. Each blanket being bound separately you may use or have cleaned as required. Price, two blankets for $3.25.

Wool Blankets That Were Made in Scotland

We have found the Scotch made Blankets to be so satisfactory that this year we brought over about double the usual quantity. Each blanket is separately whipped. Easier for use and washing. $3.50, $4.50, $5.00, $6.00.

Cotton Bats that are Pure White and Sanitary

As a matter of fact there are a lot of bats on the market that are little better than breeding ground for microbes and vermin, the thought of which gives one the creeps and fears of all kinds of disease. Health is the first consideration. An enterprising manufacturer with all kinds of money behind him has established an immense plant for making Bats under strictly sanitary conditions. All the conditions were carefully considered by intelligent experts. We were offered the agency and jumped at the chance. The result is that we have these new improved Bats right in stock now. For comfortables they open up nicer, cover more space, and best of all do not cost much more than doubtful makes. At Staple Department.

Women's Ready-to-Wear Store

New Coats, new Waists, new Skirts, new Petticoats, new Wrappers, new Dresses, new Flannelette Under wear.

Zenith Unshrinkable Underwear for Women and Children

Any garment with "Zenith" label on is guaranteed absolutely unshrinkable. Careless washing even will not spoil them. We are so sure of our ground that we will replace any garment that shrinks.

The mill people tell us that the only possible chance of a garment shrinking is when a bunch of yarn may by accident miss the Zenith secret process.

All Zenith garments are cream white. With the vogue for white waists, Zenith garments are much appreciated.

Women's sizes are still 75 cents, and for extra outside sizes, $1.00 each.

Children's sizes start at 25 cents, and run to 70 cents each.

Long Sleeve Corset Covers—Spring Needle Knit

If you want a knitted Corset Cover that fits like a good glove, ask for the spring needle make. In bust sizes just like a waist, 34 to 42. Short Sleeves, 50 cents. Long Sleeves, 75 cents.

Long Fabric Gloves—Browns, Tans, Black Cashmere

By a very old contract we are able to sell you a cashmere glove long enough for short sleeve wear, at the short glove price, 50 cents pair.

Wool Mittens for Children and Women

What we have are woven with quite long wrists. All sizes in black, white, navy, red, 25 cents pair.

We have another line made with a long gauntlet cuff that can be worn with short sleeves. White, navy, black, 35 cents pair.

Our Dress Making Department a Success

We were slow to say much about our Dressmaking Department. With change of management and new conditions we waited until we knew ourselves. Miss Murphy, who is in charge of our Dressmaking Department has proved herself to be a successful modiste. We cannot speak too highly of her work. Every garment turned out speaks volumes for the success of the department.

Miss Murphy's tailored garments are equal to the product of the best city houses. We are giving our customers city style and city work at little more than half city price As an instance, some days ago we came in competition with a city house on same materials. Blank & Co.'s price was $90.00, ours $50.00. Speak for materials and time at Dress Goods counter.

Furs! Furs!

The cold weather is with us again. To take a drive in the country is not comfortable without Furs. We urge upon our customers the importance of selecting now while stocks are at top notch of completeness. Whether you wish a small scarf or a Fur Coat, we certainly can give you better choice now. In the matter of Fur-lined Coats we are now in a position to sell you coats at $50.00, $65.00, 70.00, $75.00, that we cannot replace at same price on account of advance in Muskrats, Greys Squirrels and Sables.

We have Astrachan Jackets at $35.00, trimmed with high collars and long rolling revers of Timber Sable, that we will compare with the run of values at $42.00 and $45.00. If you have any doubt about it let us compare.

Comfortable Looking Materials for Dressing Jackets and Kimonas

The range of prices gives you lots of choosing from 10 cents to 35 cents yard.

GERMAN FLANNELS.—This material is the best we know of for kimonas and dressing jackets. It does not rough up, is perfectly fast color. The designs are just like French Flannels, 35 cents yard.

Carpets

We have this week moved into new quarters for Carpets. The section now extends over what was the Fennell store and by the time this reaches you we hope to be well settled and in good shape to show you our beautiful stock of floor coverings.

It is without any shadow of doubt, the strongest and most complete stock of Carpets and Rugs that we ever attempted. We invariably deal with the makers direct. The figures at the customs office show that we do our own importing. Our values will stand comparison with the best city houses in Canada. All designs, patterns, and colorings selected by experienced, practical buyers.

Men's, Youths' and Boys' Fall and Winter Clothing

Wool—all wool—is an essential to the long life and continued good appearance of a suit. All our better grades of clothing are made of all wool. If a garment is not all wool we tell you so. It is sold for just what it is. On this assured foundation is reated The Robinson Co. clothing business :—

—the materials chosen only after careful study ;
—the styles from sources of unquestionable authority ;
—the designing by high priced experts.
—the making by skilled tailors.

Nothing left to chance—all watched at all points and directed by men of trained experience.

Men's Suits, from $5.00 to $17.50. Plain and fancy Tweeds, Worsteds, etc.
Men's Cravenette Raincoats, from $7.50 to $15.00. New fancy Tweeds, also Greys.
Men's Overcoats, from $3.00 to $20.00. Right lengths and weights.

Boys' Suits, Reefers, Overcoats

Robinson Co.'s Boys' Clothing not only looks well on the boy, but it is made well and hence wears well. We know how the clothing should be made; and the lining, the thread, the tailoring are all carefully inspected. We have some beautiful effects in the little Russian and Buster Brown effects for the smaller boys—styles entirely new—something a little different from the average make and the prices exceptionally low.

Boys' Norfolk and pleated two piece Suits at from $1.50 up to $5.00.
Boys' 3-piece Suits at $3.00 to $5.00.
Our Children's Overcoats are winners. We have no trouble selling them. There is style and character to each one of them, and they catch the mothers heart every time. Prices, $2.50 to $7.50 each.

Merchant Tailoring

We suggest that you give your order before we are too busy. We never had a fuller line of foreign and domestic fabrics. By the way, do not fail to look at our overcoatings. There's no trouble to find what you want.

Suits start at $15.00 and up to $30.00. The largest choice is at $20.00.

Overcoats, $15.00 to $35.00.

Trousers, $3.50 to $8.50.

Cardigan Jackets

Newly made for this season's selling. Good honest value in every one of them, and we can give you all sizes from the young man's to the extra outside large size. Better secure them before the sizes are broken up. Prices range from 75 cents each and up to $3.00 each.

Men's Neckwear — New—Just Arrived

Our Christmas stock of Men's Neckwear reached us this morning, and if the enthusiasm shown over it is any criterion, we never had such stylish goods. Plaids are still in popular favor, but the newest idea is quite wide diagonal stripes. But come and see them—that's the only way you can have any idea.

Men's 75c Domet Night Shirts at 50c

Just an accident that brings these warm domet nightshirts at 50 cents, instead of 75 cents. Big roomy and well made, regular 75 cent quality in every way but the price. Domet cotton flannel, you know is a cotton with a soft nap. Warm as toast! and 62 inches long. Collars attached.

Men's White and Fancy Shirts

We carry a very large and handsome line of "Crescent" brand shirts and highly recommend them. Prices, 50c to $1.50 each.

The "FLAXMAN" SHIRT is the strongest and best shirt made. We import it direct from London, England. It is extra large, is strongly reinforced, has every seam double tacked, and they are lined both front and back with cotton.

Men's and Boys' Knit Gloves and Mitts

These Gloves and Mitts are becoming very popular, especially so among the fown trade. They come in beautiful shades of Brown, Grey, Blue and Black; also mixed colors.

Toques

You remember the beautiful toques we had last year? We have more beautiful colored ones than ever. Better pick yours out before the assortment is broken up. Last year when we tried later in the season to repeat on certain lines we could not get them.

Stanfield's Unshrinkable Woolen Underwear

Our trade in this famous Woolen Underwear is growing by leaps and bounds. Where a few years ago we could only buy a small case occasionally, we are now getting a few dozen, now we buy by the reindeer, has every seam double tacked, and they are lined both front and back with cotton. increased sales is not far to seek.

A man came to us this morning wanting to buy two suits for his son. Says he, "My brother bought it last year, and he is so pleased by its praises that all of us in that section are going to buy it. I want to see it advertises itself. Each customer who buys it is another strong advertisement for it.

The weight which is most sold in this section is that which sells at $1.25 a garment, but many people desire a very heavy garment and for them we get the weight that make for the "Klondike", and which is $1.50 a garment. Remember we give you a new garment for one that shrinks.

38 DIFFERENT LINES OF UNDERWEAR.—We have 38 different lines of Underwear for you to choose from, and they range from 50 cents a garment up to $4.00 a garment.

CLOTHES OF QUALITY

At Moderate Prices

Dressed in one of our handsome suits a man will be his own letter of recommendation, for wisdom will tell you that while good clothes do not make the man or break him, they give him a lift along the lane of life.

You see many well dressed men on the street now a-days, and a large percentage of them are wearing our clothes of quality. There are no better fitting ready-to-wear clothes than the "Fergus Brand." We sell this make and give away with each suit or overcoat an accident policy for $1,000.00, good for one year.

Suit prices range $10, $12, $14 and up to $16.

Let quality influence you and not the price; so we ask you to come and see what the prices will buy here in the way of quality.

JUST NOW—Very many men are thinking of warmer underwear. It's worth while to know that we've got the best and largest stock of

"COMFORTABLE UNDERWEAR" IN TOWN.

If that's the way you're thinking,

Cost Oil, Dr at Wallace's Drug Store.

—Mr. J. G. Oliver has removed his grocery from Centre street to the store formerly occupied by J. C. Knowlton, in the Blewett/block, opposite the Royal Hotel.

Steam, Hot Water and Hot Air Heating a specialty. M. S. MADOLE.

—Messrs. Madden Bros., grocers, have added greatly to the appearance of their grocery store and market by neatly papering and painting the whole interior.

—Nine years ago this week hard coal was selling for $4.65 a ton. Cheese was sold on the local board for 8½c. Today coal is $7.00 per ton, and cheese sold last Friday at 13½c.

—Mr. John Parker, of Fort Meade, South Dakota, would like to know the address of his brother, Joseph Parker. The last heard from him at Marchmont Home he was at Newburgh, Ont.

Tooth Paste, 8c at Wallace's Drug Store.

—The B. of Q. Conference Epworth League Convention will be held in Cambridge St. church, Lindsay, on January 21st, 22d and 23d. We are informed a very strong programme will be presented.

—Word was received at the Beaver Office on Monday of the death of Mark Goodwin at Independence, Col., on Monday, 7th October. Deceased was a native of Ernestown and was 31 years of age.

—The young ladies of the Model School class entertained their friends on Thursday evening of last week in the Oddfellows' Hall. Games and dancing were the recreations indulged in. All report a good time.

CASTORIA. Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Exact Copy of Wrapper.

—Arthur Harris, superintendent of the Rathbun Mill Stock, in Addington county, died in the General Hospital, Kingston, on Monday night from an internal trouble which arrived while he was being treated for a sprained ankle. He was forty years of age, and leaves a wife in England.

—On Monday evening last, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lowry, Bridge st., east, entertained a few friends and relatives, it being the occasion of their eighteenth wedding anniversary. A dainty supper was served at about 10.30, after which a very pleasant evening was spent. Mrs. Lowry was the recipient of a number of beautiful presents.

All sizes of Glass, Also Paints, Oils, Glass and Putty. M. S. MADOLE.

—A wreck at Shannonville early on Saturday morning blocked the line for about eight hours, and the damage to rolling stock was very heavy. It seems that a No. 86 freight train known as No. 91, left Brockville at 8 p.m. for Belleville, overlooking one of the switches at the westbound way-freight at Shannonville about midnight, smashing the caboose to splinters and piling up several cars in such a manner as to block both main lines. The engineer George Wilson, and fireman, both Belleville men, saved their lives by jumping when the pile-up was inevitable. Their engine on coming to a standstill was crosswise of the tracks.

—Rev. Dr. Potts, D.D., educational secretary of the Methodist church, died at Toronto on Wednesday morning.

—W. H. Grass, grocer, will remove to the store on Dundas street, lately vacated by Mrs. O. A. Knight.

—Regular communication of Union Lodge, No. 9, A. F. & A. M., in the Masonic Hall, this (Friday) evening.

—Mr. Chas. Mackenzie has completed a new sign for Sweetland, and it was placed in position this week. It is a credit to the artist and Woodstand.

—On Chung has purchased the laundry business on the corner of Dundas and Robert streets from Charley You Kee.

—Look out for the announcement next week of the W. M. S. social at Gretna, to be held on Thanksgiving evening, October 31st.

—The Ladies' Aid of Stella Hall will hold a tea on Thanksgiving evening, Oct. 31st, in the Town Hall, Sillsville. Chicken, salad, cake, etc., will be served in abundance. An excellent programme will be provided. Come and enjoy a treat. Admission, 25c. 4sep

—If you wish to sell, buy or rent a farm, put an advertisement in The Beaver. This is the season when people are looking after farms, and everybody will know about it if you use those columns.

—Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, who has been suffering from a temporary attack of deafness for the past few weeks, has cancelled, on advice of his physician, all engagements to speak at public meetings during the next two or three weeks. An operation was performed a few days ago by Dr. Courtnay of Ottawa, since then Mr. Aylesworth's hearing has been improving. For the present, however, he is under doctor's orders not to take active part in any public meetings.

—Miss Myrtle Thompson, of Napanee, was visiting in the country as Mrs. A. N. Sager's. On starting to return home on Saturday last, the horse became unmanagable, and having a lady driver, ran away, throwing Miss Thompson and Mrs. Sager out of the rig. Miss Thompson received a bad bruise on her arm. She has been nursing it for a week, but is very much better now. A lesson like this some times costs more than it is worth.

ENGLISH SPAVIN LINIMENT removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, ringbone, sweeny, stifles, sprains, sore and swollen throat, coughs, etc. Save $20 by use of one bottle. —The De Wolf Hopper Opera Company in "Happyland" played to a bumper house at Kingston last Friday evening, many Napaneeans being present. The company had a special car experience after the show. They were to leave Kingston at midnight for London, Ont., where a matinee and night performance was to have been given on Saturday. Owing to the wreck on the track near Shannonville, they did not arrive in London until late at night. The matinee had to be cancelled and the night performance started at 10.30, and lasted until 1.30 Sunday morning. The play was one of the best seen in Kingston in years.

UNDER THE NERVE LASH.—The torture and torment of the victim of nervous prostration and nervous debility no one can fully estimate who has not been under the lash. All of these relentless human foes, H. Willard, of Ottawa, found to his sorrow a few years ago, but his bottle of South American Nervine worked a miracle, and his doctor confirmed it.—For sale by T. B. Wallace.—28.

ARDEN.

The frequent rains leave the roads in a very muddy condition.—Miss Ruth Barker, Napanee, is now home spending her holidays.—Quite a number from Arden attended the funeral of William Cox at the home of his father, Mr. J. Cox, Odessa. The young man was killed in a railway accident near Toronto.—Mr. Ed. Barker has purchased a new traction engine.—Mr. J. Hayes, New York, is home visiting his parents.—Miss Cora Miller, Arden, has gone to Newburgh on a visit.—Quite a number of boys are now going away for the winter.—Mr. A. Thompson and family have moved to the village.—Mr. H. Alexander is now at home.—The farmers are very busy gathering in their potatoes and corn.—The corn huskings are quite frequent and are a great enjoyment for young people.

PURE WATER AND SANITARY SEWERS

In view of the fact that the Provincial Board of Health has presented a very strong report in respect to the sewer system of the town and our water supply, the recommendations made by a competent sanitary engineer to the council of the neighboring Town of Picton which is respectful to both sewers and water supply is similarly situated to Napanee, may be of more than passing interest to our citizens. The following is a newspaper clipping which gives a summary of the report:

"Picton, Oct. 15—The town fathers have begun their educative campaign in the matter of the sewerage system. Every citizen is being sent the report of Wills Chipman, engineer, who surveyed Picton. Together with the installation of a sewerage system he educates a pure water supply for domestic purposes. He investigated Picton's source for water supply; discouraged Lake-on-the-Mountain, because of the expense involved in the five-mile distance; condemned Picton harbor because of contamination, and various springs were tried but insufficient for supply. He proposes erecting a new pumping station at Trout Creek, a small spring brook west of the town, which in his estimation, could supply 1,000,000 gallons daily. The cost of introducing this new water supply would be $47,000, and providing the pipe system was extended, $12,500 more would be needed. The proposal is to connect the sewerage of the entire town through a sedimentation tank to be located north of Mill street and east of York street, the effluent to be conveyed by a submerged pipe into the harbor. This disposal works and the main sewers would cost $25,000, and additional laying of pipes would amount to $31,500."

A VETERAN'S STORY.—George Lee, of Shamokin, Pa., writes: "I had a dreadful sore leg for years, was troubled with Catarrh for fifteen years, at one time had a running sore, Catarrh cured, but never had any benefit until I used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. One box cured me completely." 30 cents.—For sale by T. B. Wallace.—2.

An Englishman, an Irishman, and a Scotchman were one day arguing as to which of the three countries possessed the fastest trains.

"Well," said the Englishman, "I've been in one of our trains, and the telegraph poles have been like a hedge."

"I've seen the milestones appear like tombstones," said the Scot.

"Be jabers!" said Pat, "I was one day in a train in my country and we passed a field of turnips and a field of carrots, also a field of cabbage and parsley, then a pond of water, and we were going that quick I thought it was broth!"

Wonderland management gave away above on Wednesday evening last. The winner was Miss S. E. Young, Dundas st., holding coupon number 103 K. The six numbers drawn were 6 K, 49 F, 66 E, 188 F, 578 F, 6 G F. The ladies in charge of drawing were Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Dryden, Mrs. MacCarney, Mrs. Loucks, and Mrs. Schmalzer, assisted by Miss Ida Hart. Next week, Wednesday evening, 23d Oct., a gold locket, suitable for either lady or gent, will be given away, now on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Smith & Rose. The lucky boy who drew the winning coupon from locked box received a large box of bon bons.

"MADE-IN-CANADA" FAIR.

The "Made-in-Canada" Fair in aid of the General Hospital, which was held in Kingston last week, was a huge financial success, and a credit to the Limestone City as well as the neighboring towns and villages who helped materially in soliciting, contributing and by giving their services to further the worthy object. The grand march was a special feature and Napanee was represented handsomely by several of its citizens. The voting contest for the fur cloth offered by McKay's for the prettiest lady in Miss Martin, of Kingston, the other contestants being Miss Hunter and Miss Mahon. One Kingston gentleman says that he is for a Napanee lady, who assisted in the grand march every evening, would have won the coat had she allowed her name to go into the contest. About $6,000.00 will be cleared, fuller particulars of which will be given next week, as it is likely the financial standing will be published.

ROBINSON—EVANS.

At 8 a.m. Oct. 11th, at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 27 Winslow st., Watertown, N.Y., Miss Clara Maud Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Robinson, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Grover John Evans, of Michigan City, Ind. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gilbert A. Shaw, in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. The bride was for some years a most popular one of the Roth & Santee firm and was very popular among her co-workers and many friends, and she will be greatly missed by them all and at Sunday-school. The groom was also employed at the same firm for some time after which he entered the employ of F. M. Kirk at New Orleans, and later was sent as manager of Mr. Kirk's business in Michigan City. Mr. and Mrs. Evans left on the 9.25 a.m. train for Michigan City. Best wishes followed them.

WILTON.

A number from here attended the Made-in-Canada Fair at Kingston last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murphy and children, Lachute, Que., are visiting at the home of her father, Nicholas Simmons.—Mr. and Mrs. Arch. Asseltine and children, Moscow, spent Friday last at Earl Burt's.—Mrs. Jacob, Robbie Adolphustown, is visiting at A. F. Miller's.—Miss Lena Storms is attending Kingston Business College.—Miss Eva Gallagher, attending Kingston Model school, spent Saturday and Sunday at home.—The memorial window has come for the Methodist church and will be put in place this week.—The sale held by Mrs. Nathan Snider, Odessa, on Tuesday, at the farm of Geo. Simmons and formerly owned by Mrs. Snider, was well attended.—At the recent meeting of the Sunday School committee, J. E. Miller was elected for superintendent, J. B. Sanderson having resigned.

SCIATICA CURED.

MRS. CHAS. F. HALEY RESTORED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

"I was utterly helpless with sciatica. I could not move in bed without aid. Doctors treated me, but I did not improve. I used to be told Pink Pills and to-day am a well woman." This tribute to the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is made by Mrs. Chas. F. Haley, of Yarmouth, N.S. Two years ago she was taken most severely from an attack of sciatica, aged for a number of months was an invalid confined to her bed. She further states: "It is impossible for me to describe the pain from which I suffered. I endeavored to continue my profession as a music teacher, but was forced to give it up. The doctor said the trouble was sciatica, but his treatment did not help me. I could scarcely take a step without the most acute pain shooting through my back and down the limb. Finally I took to my bed and lay there perfectly helpless, and could not move without aid. The pain was never absent. I consulted another doctor, but with no better results, and I began to think I would always be a sufferer. One day a friend who was in to see me asked why I did not take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and on her advice I decided to do so. The result was beyond my most hopeful expectations. All the pains and aches disappeared and I have never since been troubled with sciatica. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the trouble from which I suffered."

When the blood is poor the nerves are starved; then comes the agony of sciatica, neuralgia, or perhaps partial paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which feeds the starved nerves, drives out pain and restores health. It is because these pills actually make new blood that they cure such common ailments as rheumatism, anaemia, backaches and headaches, heart palpitation, indigestion and the painful irregularities of growing girls and women. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OCTOBER.

The melancholy days are come,
The saddest of the year,
When ice, like stereopticy's mellow hum
Falls on the startled ear.

'Round the yard the leaves are blown;
At 6 o'clock it's night,
And father seeks by telephone
The price of anthracite.

From all over the country—east and west,
North, south—come pouring in
The annual tale—of fall the test—
Which ever thus begin:

"Last night there was a heavy frost
And Mrs Hiram Hay
Fired up a stove which she'd embossed
With polish yesterday.

"And Hiram Hay fell dead, 'tis learned,
And left his wife a wid.
Four hundred dollars had been burned
Which in the store he'd hid.

Ah, yes, it's never truly fall
Until there comes in droves
The annual news report of all
The money burned in stoves.

NEWS NOTES.

George Ritz was killed at Stratford by touching an electric wire.

Judge Hamilton, a former resident of Kingston, died at Clifton Springs N.Y.

John Lamont, a railway watchman, was killed by the cars at London, Ont.

A package containing $3500 was stolen from the postoffice at North Sydney, C.B.

The steamer Pieton, damaged by fire and sunk at the Yonge st. slip, Toronto, has been raised.

Prince Albert bye-election, the first held in Saskatchewan as a new province, resulted in the return of Mr. Bradshaw, the equal richter, by one majority.

Cassie Chadwick, whose doings in the financial world caused a sensation in Cleveland three years ago, died in the Ohio State penitentiary. The remains were brought to Woodstock for burial by relatives.

The Lusitania, the big new Cunard turbiner, has just crossed from Queenstown to Sandy Hook in four days, nineteen hours and fifty-three minutes, breaking not only the record of the great Hamburg-American line, but the record of her big twin-sister, the Lucania. Thus Britain continues mistress of the mercantile seas, having both the biggest and swiftest boats, and the shortest route.

Half an hour after a party of factory-makers had left Solomon Frank's home, where they had celebrated the approaching nuptials of Frank's daughter, Dora, fire swept through the house and six members of the family, including the betrothed woman, lost their lives. Only the mother and two infants soon escaped. Besides Mrs. Solomon Frank and his five daughters. They were suffocated by smoke.

A despatch from Grand Marais reports that the steamer Cypress, owned by the Ontario-Nawanna Transportation company, of Cleveland, was lost on Friday night, in Lake Superior, off Deer Park, twenty miles from Grand Marais. One survivor was washed ashore and is now in a critical condition. He said he was sole survivor of twenty-three persons on the boat. A fierce northwest gale prevailed on Lake Superior that night.

James K. Hazelton, living at San Annita, Tex., fell from a hay loft on his plantation, on Saturday, and was rendered unconscious. After two hours of unconsciousness his memory returned and he remembered having left his wife and four children near Montreal, Que., twenty-two years ago, following an attack of typhoid fever. A brief message informed him his wife is living after spending a fortune searching for him. Hazelton has lived fifteen years on the Texas plantation.

"Now, Johnny," asked a teacher of a pupil, "what do you live in the country besides grass, trees and flowers?"

"Patent medicine advertisements!" was the prompt reply.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS.

Believing fully in up-to-date methods in conducting business we have for some time been investigating different systems of handling charge accounts, and our decision has finally rested on the Huber Account Register, with its complete System.

The HUBER SYSTEM renders with each purchase, whether by phone order or in person, an itemized bill with past account added, thus showing the correct standing of your account at all times. The slip accompanying each order is a carbon copy, the original being placed in your individual department in the Huber Account Register. This method absolutely prevents any over charge, and does away entirely with the many petty annoyances accompanied with the old way of handling accounts.

We are sure that you will welcome and appreciate our efforts in this direction. There is nothing too good for our customers.

Respectfully yours,

THE MEDICAL HALL

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

WEAKENS THE TISSUES AND LESSENS ORGANIC VITALITY.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country, tends towards stomach troubles.

Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Napanee and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

It is not a mere digestive taker, after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition that it does the work nature expects of it.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that T. B. Wallace, with every 50-cent box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money if the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

SILLSVILLE.

Farmers are busy with their plowing, and apple picking is the order of the day.—The ducks are plentiful, also the hunters.—Miss Lulu Charters attended the W. M. S. Dock Worker—He fell in one day when he had them all on, and the weight of 'em sunk him.

An old maid is merely a woman who has been overlooked once too seldom.

"What is the most aggravating thing in married life?" asks Dorothy Dix.

"Sometimes it's the husband and sometimes it's the wife."

Mistress—Have you any recommendation from your last place?

Applicant—Yes, mum, I got three three months off for good behavior!

It was in the early days of California. A friendly game was in progress, and one of the players was rendered noticeable by the loss of an eye. The game progressed quietly for some time, but the luck was very one-sided until one of the gentlemen interested drew his pistol and placed it on the table. "Somebody's cheatin'," he remarked. "Cheatin' all the game, I don't mention no names, but if that cheatin' don't stop, whoever it is will lose his other eye."

A surgeon was conducting his students through a hospital, remarking on the various cases under treatment. They arrived at a bed on which a patient lay, and the professor inquired:

"From the nature of the illness this patient is suffering from," he said, "and by using my powers of deduction, tell you his occupation. You are a medical student, are you not?" he added, turning to the sufferer.

"Yes, sir," replied the sufferer.

"And you play a wind instrument, I can see."

"Yes, sir, I do."

"Just as I gathered from the symptoms! That pernicious blowing has done injury to the lungs than anything."

"Begging your pardon, sir," interrupted the patient, with effort, "I plays a concertina!"

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Mistress—How is it, Sarah, that whenever I come into the kitchen I find you gossiping with the baker or the butcher?

Maid—Well, ma'am, if you really ask for the truth, I should say as it was only because I'm certain ingredients don't pass through the stomach as to remove their torpor and arouse them to proper action. Many of these ingredients are to bear testimony to their power in this respect.

IN NATURE'S STOREHOUSE THERE ARE CURES. Medical experiments have shown conclusively that there are medicines in even ordinary plants growing in around us which give them a value that cannot be estimated. Study is held by some that Nature provides a cure for every disease which neglect and ignorance have invented for man. However, this may be, it is a fact, known to their torpor and that Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, distilled from roots and herbs, are a sovereign remedy in curing all disorders of the digestion.

The most important evidence at the coroner's inquest held at Trenton to inquire into the death of William Reinhardt, the tailor, who, from Buffalo, N.Y., who met his death on the railway track was the Grand Trunk Railway early Thursday morning, was that of Brakesman Thomas Wilson, whose carelessness or mistake in turning the wrong switch was responsible for the accident. The young man maintained throughout keen but rigorous examination that he would not have committed this error had the light on the switch he should have turned been burning. Witness said he turned the second switch, which he believed to be the first one.

The aim of most "cures" for Rheumatism seems to be to relieve the pain. When they have done that, their usefulness is gone. And the next time you take cold, or your feet get wet, or you over-exert yourself, back comes the pain.

Bu-Ju

is different. It does relieve the pain, as quickly as the best liniment. And it does MORE. It REMOVES THE CAUSE of Rheumatism, uric acid in the blood.

Every drop of blood passes through the Kidneys. These organs should filter out impurities. When they do not, infumbd or diseased, the impurities stay in the blood and are carried to the sensitive nerves. Rheumatism is simply this irritation of the nerves, caused by uric acid and other impurities being deposited upon them—their favorite place being the joints and muscles. Make the Kidneys filter the blood properly, keep the blood pure and rich, and there can be no Rheumatism. Bu-Ju does this.

Buy Bu-Ju on an unconditional guarantee that if you are not cured your money is refunded. At all druggists, 50c. a large box, or sent on receipt of price.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Of the Woman's Missionary Society Napanee District.

Deseronto Tribune.

The thirteenth annual convention of the W. M. Society of Napanee District was held in the Deseronto Methodist church, on Wednesday. Mrs. Gibson, of Napanee, district organizer, occupied the chair. Miss Anderson, of Napanee Western Methodist church, was elected secretary.

The reports from fourteen societies were given and were full of encouragement and inspiration. The past year has been a banner one; the total amount forwarded to the treasurer was $1850.

The programme was splendidly carried out and was inspiring and helpful. The organizer's address was well given; it was full of good things, that if followed would fully appreciated his splendid effort.

Mrs. (Rev.) Strike gave a map talk which called for much study and careful preparation. It was one of the instructive features of the convention. All of the W. M. S. missionaries were mentioned, and the work they are doing as well as their location geographically was briefly referred to.

Mrs. (Rev.) Boyce took charge of the consecration service. Her opening remarks were helpful and spiritually this service was above the average.

The Morven auxiliary conducted a monthly meeting just as they have done in their own society. Mrs. Valleau, of Morven, introduced the subject, "A Study of the Philippine Islands." She was assisted by four ladies, and when they had concluded the audience had a splendid conception of those islands, their position geographically and commercially, their needs spiritually, and the prospect of lifting these people up and making of them a grand, good people. The Morven people are to be congratulated upon their splendid preparation for this interesting part of the programme.

This was followed by a "Round Table Talk," when the by-laws, the report, etc., were discussed. How to interest those who are not in touch with this work, how to increase attendance at monthly meetings; arranging for quarterly prayer meetings, etc., were well discussed and many very helpful suggestions were offered.

Mrs. (Rev.) Real introduced the subject, "Systematic and Proportionate Giving" in a short, concise able manner, and made it very emphatic that a tenth is the Lord's and anything above that is giving to His cause.

The convention was closed with her and are endeavoring to be good stewards of their Lord and Master.

The duett and solo which had been given were enjoyed by all. "God be with you till we meet again" was sung, and Mrs. Gibson closed this, one of the choicest conventions with a suitable prayer.

The attendance was exceptionally good.

The church was artistically decorated with choice flowers and is an ideal church for conventions.

The lecture room was made a dining hall.

Everything that could be done was done by Deseronto Auxiliary to make the ladies comfortable and to make them feel a splendid welcome was extended to them.

CAREFUL CANADA.

(From The Canadian Courier.)

A small boy from Canada was spending the summer at a New England resort, where the usual fancy dress entertainments were held to kill the long evenings.

Bubbles, said a fair Bostonian, on one of these occasions, addressing the youthful Canadian, "we're going to have a search party tonight. Will you be our little Teddy Bear?"

"Yes," replied young Canada, adding with due caution, "if I don't have any fleas."

"Tubbs is somewhat of a snob, isn't he?"

"Snob! Why, he'd die happy enough if he could get run over by a millionaire's automobile."

AND THE ISLES OF THE SEA

"We use from 30 to 35 packages of Diamond Dyes every six months, and would go ten miles for them rather than use any other kind. We take pride in the goods dyed with Diamond Dyes."

Mrs. P. Boulter, Lennox Ferry, N.S.

DIAMOND DYES hold first place in the hearts of the women of five continents, because of their vast superiority over all others makes of dyes.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES for Diamond Dyes. These bad imitations will appeal to you with such false claims as "A New Discovery" or "An Improvement on the Old Kind," or "One Dye for All Material," Wool, Silk or Cotton.

We want you to know that when any one makes such a claim they are trying to sell you an imitation of our Dye for Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods. Mixed Goods are most frequently Wool and Cotton Combined. If our Diamond Dyes for Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods will color these materials as they are together, it is self evident that they will color them separately.

We send free to any address in Canada our valuable Diamond Dye Instruction Book, New Teddy-Bear Booklet and 40 samples of dyed cloth. You should have them.

SOME FAST WORK.

A Canadian Financial Manager Tells of a Flying Trip.

"Yes," said Mr. W. R. Travers, General Manager of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, in conversation with a friend the other day at the Queen's Hotel, "I have just got back from Europe, after a seven weeks' trip. No, I did not go for pleasure; I went on the bank's business, yet I got some pleasure out of the trip.

After placing a quarter of a million of the bank's stock at a premium with English capitalists with Viscount Templeton as honorary president, I was able to see a few of the sights. No, English capitalists are not easy by any means. On the contrary, Canadians will find them very conservative. Before going into any financial matter of importance they look closely into it, employ their own experts, but once the value of the enterprise is ascertained, none more prompt than they to invest, and none with a keener eye for a good thing.

I did not have time to see much of London, but saw enough to make me realize that it is the great city. One thing that was not on the list of things to see was to me very interesting. I can say from personal observation that the Queen's coach horses, eight in number, are so much alike that one would require to have watches on them for identification. Long flowing manes and tails of white, coats of cream color, and so glossy and clean that the finest linen or silk handkerchief could not be soiled on them. They did not put on any airs, but enjoyed my patting of their sides as though they were common ponies.

I took in Windsor and Buckingham Palaces and the King's stables. This I was able to do through the courtesy of Mr. William Melville, M.V.O., the King's private detective, who not only personally saw to my comfort, but also gave me letters of introduction to the proper authorities at Berlin, so that I was enabled to visit the Imperial palace and stables there.

My trip took in Paris, Brussels, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Edinburgh, Dublin, Liverpool and Queenston in each of which places I made arrangements, establishing representatives and agencies of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, so that our friends and customers here can have all the convenience of exchange, and letters of credit when visiting any of these European cities. It was fast work, so fast that "Around the World in Eighty Days" seems a lesser task to me than formerly.

Berlin is a city of wide, clean streets, good shops and clean, healthy and well-to-do people. St. Petersburg has the widest streets and the narrowest business principles probably in the world. It may some day be possible to adopt civilized methods in commerce there, but that will not be till the passport system is abolished.

Yes, I came back on the Lusitania. Fine boat? The finest possible. Table service? The meanest possible. I went over by the same line and had a return. The Cunards seem to look on a "return" passage as some people look on a note given for a horse that has died before maturity of the paper—worth a bonanza. So they do the best they can afford for the money. Shovel you into a stinky hole with your head against the furnace and your feet against the capstan bar and let you have something on the bill of fare, if you ask for it twice—and wait till you get it.

I am once more in harness for the bank and for business, and am glad to be at work again. My trip has been of great advantage to the shareholders, and while it was a busy one, it was very pleasant for me, being, as Dickens says, "while London is the great city, Paris is beautiful, and Berlin and every city I visited has its own particular beauty. I never felt so glad to see anything over there as to see once more Lake Ontario and to feel that I was at home again and in God's country."

Few men look a gift horse in the mouth because they never have a chance.

MARLBANK.

Mr. Harold Workman, who has been employed by The Canadian Portland Cement Co., here, during the summer as timekeeper, returned to Kingston Monday morning, to resume his studies at Queen's University.—Miss Lena Hayes and Miss Annie Allen were visiting at Roblin last week.—Mr. Boyce, representing The Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co., visited the cement works last week.—Dentist Wagar, of Napanee, made his monthly visit to Marlbank last Friday.—Mr. G. B. Miller, managing director of The Canadian Portland Cement Co., Toronto, visited the cement works here on Monday.—Miss Effie Kimmett, of Roblin, visited Mrs. Thomas Boyes, on Sunday last. It is reported that Mr. John Stinson has sold his hotel property here.—Mr. Hemin Bird has severed his connection with the Cement Co.

CAMDEN EAST.

The farmers in this locality are at present very busy getting in their potatoes, which appear to be quite plentiful, and of fair size.—The Rev. Mr. Williams, our new pastor, of Wilton Circuit, is giving general satisfaction to his many hearers. In the estimation of his congregation he is a sound, fluent and free preacher.—The Rev. Jacob Clancy, of Albion, Mich., who is visiting his numerous friends in this locality, will give an address on far away India, next Sunday night, in the Methodist church, and will also sing a solo, entitled "I have sighted the Golden Gate." A large attendance is expected.—The opening hour for Sunday service is now Methodist church is 7 o'clock, instead of 7.30 o'clock, as formerly.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and lymph system the poisons and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other troubles. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save them much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

ERINSVILLE.

A gloom has been cast over our vicinity, so many of our citizens having passed away in the last few days.—Mrs. A. J. Stewart is on the business trip to Kingston one day last week.—Mrs. Jas. Hopkins, we are sorry to state, is very low with consumption.—Miss Hattie Yorke is home from Sydenham.—Mr. Jas. Hopkins, we are sorry dence will make a great improvement.—Mr. Jas. Campbell intends leaving for California in a couple of weeks.—Everything is progressing favorable.—Farmers in this vicinity are carrying the choice flowers from their gardens, and will do themselves a favor not to carry away any more. They are known.

MUCH CONCERN FELT.

ORDINARY METHODS FOR TREATING CATARRH PROVE UNSUCCESSFUL.

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing, antiseptic medicines every spot where there are catarrhal germs destined to develop into future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly. Hyomei (pronounced Hi-o-me) is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by T. R. Wallace, under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to do just nothing unless it cures, but T. R. Wallace has no hesitation in doing so, power to cure all catarrhal troubles, that he is willing to take the risk, so if Hyomei fails to cure you there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Oranges, nice and bright; Valencia Oranges, good size; fresh Lemons and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—Coffee, of course, that goes without me saying much about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

A SPLENDID HULL.

Mr. M. B. Mills is busily engaged building a new sailing yacht for his own use. The boat is 40 ft. 8 in. in length and 13 ft. beam. The keel weighs two tons, and is composed of oak and iron, the latter being cast by The Rork Drill Co. The bottom is being built of white oak up to about eight inches above the water line, the boards being from 29 to 43 feet in length. It will be one of the staunchest and most comfortable crafts in this district when completed.

A NAPANEE BOY.

The following is clipped from the Parish Magazine of St. John's Church, St. John, N.B.: "It is with much pleasure we are able to announce that Rev. H. R. Trumour, M.A., B.D., of Rothesay College, Rothesay, has been engaged to preach once each Sunday, alternating morning and evening with the Rector, until the close of the school year. We bespeak for him the kindly sympathy and fellowship of the members of the congregation. A Bible Class is conducted by him every Sunday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock for young men. This extra assistance will enable the Rector to do what he has longed to do, viz.: to visit more frequently the members of the church."

HISTORICAL.

The first public meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will be held at the new hall in the Library building, on Friday evening, October, 25th, at 8 o'clock.

After a short business meeting a paper will be read by Mrs. Alexander Macdonald, describing her last summer's trip to the Pacific coast with the delegates to the annual convention of the Woman's National Historical Association.

MR. BARLOW CUMBERLAND, President of the Ontario Historical Society, will deliver an address on matters historical. Mr. Cumberland has had a long experience in the working of Canadian Historical Societies, and is an authority on Canadian History.

Every one will be welcome at this meeting, and it is hoped that all parts of the county will be represented. Admission free.

CHALMERS—GRAY.

A quiet wedding took place in Kingston, on Wednesday, Oct. 9th, at 11 a.m., at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, 6 Frontenac st., when their only daughter, Etta A., was united in marriage to W. H. Chalmers, Parma. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Mackie, of St. Andrew's church. While Miss Ethel Boyd, of Kingston, played the wedding march, the bride, who was prettily attired in cream, with veil and orange blossoms, entered the drawing room, on her father's arm. Both bride and groom were unattended. After the wedding breakfast the bride slipped away to don her going away gown of green broadcloth, with hat to match. The happy couple left on the noon train for Montreal amidst showers of rice and good wishes.

The team was entertained at the club house for supper and report a fine outing, although they had to accept defeat.

MANION—CARROLL.

A quiet and pretty marriage was solemnized at the R. C. church, Chippewa, on September 25th, when Miss Elina Carroll and Mr. Peter Manion were united in the hole bonds of matrimony. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. L. J. Connolly, and the ceremony was witnessed by the bride and groom's most intimate friends and relatives. The bride was beautifully attired in a handsome costume of white silk, and was ably assisted by Miss A. MacDonald, while similar functions were adequately performed for the groom by his brother Patrick, of Auburn. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's mother where a sumptuous wedding repast awaited them. The costly and numerous presents among which were a quarter oak sideboard, gift of the groomsmen, and a silver tea service, gift of the groom's brother, attested to the high esteem held of the newly-married couple. They left amid a shower of rice on the afternoon train for Niagara Falls, Detroit, Buffalo and Auburn. Mr. and Mrs. Manion are highly respected by their numerous friends and all join in wishing them every happiness in their future home at Yarker.

A SUDDEN CALL.

The citizens of Napanee were shocked on Monday evening upon learning that a highly respected resident had been called away, in the person of John R. Doller. During the afternoon he was out in the garden digging potatoes and about five o'clock was found lying on the ground, death being due to heart failure. Deceased had been in poor health for some time past, but was getting along nicely and able to be out around again. His sudden demise is deeply regretted by his host of friends in this county.

Mr. Doller was born in Ernesttown at Morven, on the 28th May, 1833, where he spent his younger days. From there he moved to North Fredericksburgh, and on the 29th Sept., 1857, was united in marriage to Catharine Mary Smith. About twenty years ago they moved to Napanee, where they have resided ever since.

Deceased is survived by his wife, and one son, William, of Toronto. He also leaves one brother, Mr. W. N. Doller, Napanee, and a sister, Mrs. Samuel Bell, Ernesttown.

The funeral, which took place on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended, Rev. Ensley, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, of which Mr. Doller was a member, officiating. Revs. J. R. Real, G. S. White and G. W. McColl also assisted. The remains were placed in Morven vault.

HELPLESS AS A BABY—South American Rheumatic Cure strikes the root of the ailment and strikes it quick. Mr. R. Wright, 10 Daniel street, Brockville, Ont., for twelve years a great sufferer from rheumatism, couldn't wash himself, feed himself or dress himself. After using but two bottles he was able to go to work, and says: "I think pain has left me forever."—For sale by T. B. Wallace.—S.

Before a doctor arrived he had bled to death.

Napanee's Cash Grocery

If You Pay Cash, You Should Get Cash Prices.

The credit system sold American Coal Oil, costing 14½c. for 25c., which equals 52½c. clear profit for filling a 5 gallon can. With cash system and our up-to-date self-measuring oil pump, a clerk would make the salary of a cabinet minister while selling coal oil.

In May, when a delegate from the Grocerymen and Oil retailers told us to combine had decided that we must raise our prices and join the combine, or they would force us to do so, our reply from our head office was that we were in Napanee to stay, that such a combine was illegal, the fine not less than $200.00, that we considered such a price robbery, and when they sold coal oil cost to force us into the combine we would expose the oil deal in the local press.

When they sold Canadian Oil at 3-cents per gallon below cost to force us join the combine, then Sept. 23rd sent us the agreement signed by every oil dealer in Napanee, except one, backed up by a threat that they would prevent the Queen City Oil Company supplying us with oil unless we signed the combine, we again refused to sign, agree, combine, or raise our prices above our regular prices in our neighboring town. Protest, and informed their delegate that their action compelled, us to do as well in May—cancel our order. Now that American Oil from the tank system has not cost over 15½ cents in 24 years, or over 14½ cents since last January, though retailed in Napanee and vicinity at 25 cents.

Also that those selling at and below cost were simply trying to force us to raise our prices from 17 cents to 25 cents.

Some people are willing to allow an extra 10 or 20 per cent. for a few months' credit.

Our customers all pay cash, and are entitled to spot cash prices. We give 10 per cent. off all package coffee or breakfast foods, 20 per cent. off yeast cake, soda, blueing, boot and stove polish, Diamond Dyes, etc. We sell Electric Paste at 5 cents, and everything at our own cash prices.

NOVEMBER CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

In the Canadian Magazine for November, Capt. H. S. Scott Harden replies to the articles that Saint N. Sing has written regarding British rule in India. Captain Scott Harden gets right down to the subject, and without theorising or philosophising, shows what Great Britain has done for India during the last fifty years. The number contains other interesting contributions, including "Shakespeare and the Latter Day Drama," by Wilfred Campbell; an introduction to the painting of Col. David Fanning, by Judge Sawyer, and the first of what promises to be a delightful series of articles on French-Canadian folklore, by Dr. Louis Frechette.

GRETNA.

We are having lovely fall weather at present, but occasional reminders of the winter coming. On Sunday night there was a heavy frost, and ice froze to the depth of a quarter of an inch.—A number from here attended the party at Mr. Shane's, Napanee, and report a good time.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Post and family spent Sunday at his mother's at Hay Bay.—Florence Loyst, Parma, spent a few days last week at her brother's here.—Pearl McWain spent Wednesday afternoon at C. Loyst's.—Miss Lloyd and daughter are visiting at her uncle's, Mr. Albert Sills.—Mrs. Hen. Young and daughter Aleda, spent Sunday at his sister's, at Hay Bay.—Arthur Sparks, Napanee, called in Gretna, on Wednesday night.

CLOYNE.

Farmers are busy with their ploughing and potato digging. All report a good crop.—Mr. Critsley entertained a few of his friends last Friday evening at the Helena mines. All went home fully satisfied with having a good time.—Mr. Elbern Wickwire has returned from Toronto with his fair bride, and rented part of the parsonage to live in for a while.—Elbern Levear is selling his farm to Jas. Meeks, and intends moving to Bath, near his daughter, Mrs. Adams Hawley.—Bert. Wickwire and family will soon go to Toronto for the winter.—Will. Benny has bought a steel range.—A number of our boys have gone out to New Ontario for the winter.—It is very cold here at present. There was quite a fall of snow on Friday.—Mrs. Hugh Ferguson returned to her home in Montreal on the 23d.—Mr. and Mrs. Harris Cole, visiting friends around Cloyne, will return to their home in Astoria, Oregon, in about two weeks. STRATHCONA.

An abundance of superior paper finds a ready market at quite an advance in price compared with one one year ago. The worthy proprietor, Mr. W. Finlay, deserves all the good luck that is now coming his way.—Messrs. Parrow and Ballance have annexed a device to facilitate the loading of the paper with ease and dispatch and have also had construction of the carpenter work of the two cement annexes in contemplation of erection soon.

Contrast the appearance of F. A. McDonald's premises now and one year ago when fire made it desolate. His bank barn erected last fall by Mr. Bonesteel and his house now in course of construction, both of which are a credit to contractor and owner.—Mr. Bonesteel is also making to improve the house on the Madden farm, recently occupied by Leslie Ballance construct ed them.

There was a good crop on J. T. Wilkins' farm for the first to complete the preparation of the soil. His industry and affable disposition commend success.

C. Blue, wife and children, visiting at Mr. Blue, of People's Store, returned to Madoc via Belleville, on Tuesday.—Miss Maude Blue, Mctis, Quebec, assumed the position of accountant and assistant postmistress on Monday.

Charles Lake, the genial station agent, took a run to Kingston, The school teacher, Miss Vanlaven, Napanee, is making rapid strides. Two parties have been inspecting the premises with a view of purchase. Hickory nuts, apples and vegetables are garnered in. Mrs. A. McLean, still at her mother's, contemplates returning to Montreal.

NEWBURGH.

Rev. Dr. Benson, accompanied by Mrs. Benson and two daughters, spent an evening last week with Mr. J. W. Courtney. They were enjoying a drive from Perth to Prince Edward County, where the Doctor was due to preach sermons in Picton, and were loud in their praises of the beauty on Ontario rural scenery as viewed on their enjoyable trip.

Mr. Ryan is building a substantial addition to his store-house, north of the drug store, and incidentally adding to the business block on main street.

Mr. T. A. Dunwoody had a rather lively experience one day last week with his funeral car and his black horse. While using the equine on the halter to pull the hearse up from the river bank after washing, the horse became frightened, and made off with the hearse at a furious pace, getting quite beyond control. However, Mr. Dunwoody managed to keep up with the procession, and at the foot of the hill succeeded in running the horse foul of a telegraph pole, which put an end to his flight, without occasioning much damage.

Miss Olive Forrester has received matriculation candidate at the July examinations, received her certificate from the Educational Department this week.

The Methodist church received a thorough cleaning last week at the hands of some of the members of the church. Last Sunday evening, in this church, Miss Scott, Field Secretary of the Deaconess movement of this denomination, presented to a large congregation the character and needs of this very important and practical department of the church's activity. Miss Scott, in an exceedingly interesting address, told of the training and work of the deaconesses of their fresh air work at Whitby, where nearly 400 children were entertained last summer, of the varied forms of work carried on in Toronto, and of the increasing demands from all over the Dominion for the services of deaconesses. A great need just now is for enlarged quarters for the Home and Training School in Toronto, a need which will be supplied as soon as money is subscribed to warrant proceeding with a new building. It is a most laudable work and one worthy of support.

The High School football team were defeated here by the Odessa seniors on Saturday afternoon last, 6-0. The game was very interesting and close, but the Odessa boys were much heavier, and played a splendid game throughout. They will be welcomed here again.

Miss Beaman returned to her duties at the High School, after an absence of a week on account of burns received in the accident at the chemical laboratory. The pupils who were burned are progressing favorably.

The first meeting of the High School Literary Society will be held on Wednesday afternoon of next week, at 3 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Duke will preside, and a good programme is being prepared. Thanksgiving Day and an essay on Hallowe'en and its observance will be read by Miss Grace Patterson. There will also be music, and the public will be welcomed.

Mr. C. H. Finkle has returned from New York, where he attended the annual convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers' Association, of which he is a member. The convention lasted three days, concluding with a banquet of 600 members, at the Waldorf-Astoria. In connection with the convention there was also an exhibition at the Grand Central Palace, of finished vehicles by all the leading manufacturers on the continent. It is a very distinct benefit for a carriage manufacturer to keep in touch with these exhibitions, where are to be found the latest styles in the accessory goods of the trade. Mr. Finkle is enthusiastic enough to keep fully abreast of the trade in all lines of carriage manufacture.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, of Kinmount, paid his friends here a flying visit last week.

Miss Fox met with a painful accident at the tannery last week, fracturing a rib in a fall while working there.

It is expected that Saturday, Nov. 2d, will be a holiday for football at the High School, when two teams from the school will meet Sydenham High School in a friendly game to take place in the morning, and a senior in the afternoon.

John Marsden, agent for C. H. Finkle, is on a trip in the north country this week as far as Sudbury, and Espanville, booking orders for the 1907-08 season in cutters and buggies.

HALLOWE'EN PROCLAMATION.

In former times, now happily removed, people were threatened over by both Church and State, 365 days in best every year; and all the nights but one. Hallowe'en night—the night of the last in October—by common consent laid ones broke forth into riotous license under the leadership of the mob-elected Abbot of Misrule. Then, encouraged by impunity, and screened as safety valves, those set in authority winked at wisely.

Now, all over this country men everywhere are free, all day, and every night but one. On evenings, many think, the bold boyers are somewhat too free.

On Hallowe'en all sensible people nowadays behave as well as at other times. All the others are hereby warned in time that the police officers on that night must be respected and maintained; and that any violation of either will be just as liable to be punished as if committed at any other time.

WEDDING BELLS.

PEW—ROSE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Enoch's (Presbyterian) Church, Toronto, on Tuesday, 22d Oct., Rev. Mr. W. B. Findley officiating, when Miss Nellie Norine Rose, youngest daughter of Mrs. R. Delane Pew, of Niagara Falls, Ont., became the wife of Mr. Sidney L. E. Rose, B.Sc., youngest son of the late D. E. Rose, of Tamworth. The bride was attired in a brown panne velvet suit, with hat to match. They were attended by Mrs. H. K. Wilson, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Mr. Clinton H. Rose, of Tamworth, sister and brother of the bride and groom. A supper was afterwards served at McConkey's, to the bridal party and a few intimate friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome diamond and pearl pin. After spending a short time with the groom's mother and brother at Tamworth, Mr. and Mrs. Rose will make their home in Lynn, Mass.

WARNER—ABRAMS.

A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mr. Isaac Warner, Belleville Road, Richmond, on Wednesday, 23d Oct., it being the marriage of his daughter, Pansy Warner, to Mr. Morgan S. Abrams, of Mount Pleasant. Miss Nellie Kitchen, of Deseronto, presided at the organ, and precisely at 12 o'clock, as the strains of the wedding march were being played, the bridal party entered the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, under an arch of evergreens, by the Rev. C. L. Thompson, of Selby. The bride was tastefully attired in blue silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Mabel Sexsmith, of Toronto, who was dressed in pink silk eolienne and carried pink roses. Little Alice Bell acted as ring bearer, carrying the golden circle embedded in a beautiful pink rose. She was dressed in white Swiss muslin over pink. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Fierra Oliver, of Mount Pleasant. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about forty, sat down to a sumptuous dinner, which all seemed to enjoy. Guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Shannonville, Deseronto, Odessa, and the surrounding neighborhood. The bride's going away dress was of brown cloth, white silk blouse, and large white hat to match. In the early afternoon they left for Kingston and other eastern points amid a shower of rice and old shoes, and good wishes for a bon-voyage on the matrimonial sea of life. The presents to the bride were extremely beautiful, showing the esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

DAVID WINTER.

A most respected resident of the Township of Richmond passed away on Sunday morning, October 13th, in the person of David Winter. He was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, July 20th, 1830, and came to this country with his parents in 1845, settling on the farm on which he lived and died. He was twice married. On March 6th, 1850, he married Miss Sarah A. Smith, and four children were born to them, Samuel G., Margaret A., Rosanna, who passed to their reward, and David, residing in Napanee.

On Sept. 12th, 1872, he married Miss Margaret McMurray, who still survives him, and who tenderly watched and cared for him during his illness. By their union two children were born to them, William T., on the homestead, and Mrs. A. Penny, Empey Hill. His two sisters, Mrs. Richmond, of Leinster, and Mrs. J. M. Sexsmith, still survive him, and were also with him when he passed from this earth. Two brothers are still living, Abram Winters, Selby, and Glasgow Winters, of Broadview, Saskatchewan. Through his good training he was led to give his heart to God in his youth, and all through life made Him a personal friend. He was a consistent member of the Methodist church, and while health permitted loved to go to the House of God. His life was an exemplary one, and he was a good husband, a kind father, a good neighbor, counsellor and friend. About seven years ago he received a stroke and since then had been ailing. On the 4th Sept., he had another stroke, which partially paralyzed him, and on October 13th, God took him to Himself. His end was peace, and through all he trusted firmly in his Saviour, and though speechless, he was often seen looking up and moving his lips in prayer to God.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, 15th October, and was largely attended, the service being conducted at the house, by Rev. C. L. Thompson, who administered to him during his illness. The remains were placed in Napanee cemetery to await interment. The community at large goes out in sympathy to the bereaved widow and family in the removal from this earth of one so dear.

GREAT INDEED

Will be the Advantage Derived From an Old Remedy in New Form.

MR. T. B. WALLACE, OUR LOCAL DRUGGIST, INTERESTED.

The Public Marvel, and Doctors Everywhere Pleased.

Probably no branch of science has made such wonderful strides as have been made in the practice of medicine. Diseases that a number of years ago were considered fatal, are now known to be curable. Even consumption is no longer looked upon with the dread that it formerly inspired.

It is right on this line of wasting diseases that we now have a most wonderful discovery—one that is bound to revolutionize the science of medicine and startle the world. Every one is familiar with methods that have been employed by physicians for years, in cases that were afraid would develop into a decline. In all troubles of the throat, lungs, bronchial tubes and other similar ailments that were known to end disastrously, about the first thing the doctor would do would be to recommend cod liver oil, for cod liver oil has been recognized for a great many years as possessing peculiar medicinal properties particularly adapted for the treatment of such troubles.

Every one knows the objection, however, to the use of this nauseating remedy. So extremely disagreeable is the taste and smell of cod liver oil that many people have actually been unable to take a single dose of it. Many others have made heroic efforts to take the medicine, but have been obliged to abandon it after struggling with the horrible stuff for a few days.

The consequence is that thousands have drifted into incurable diseases who might have been saved, had it been possible to administer this potent medicine. Enough people have been able to assimilate cod liver oil to prove to the medical profession and the world at large its intrinsic value. Such patients as were blessed with unusually strong stomachs derived benefit from cod liver oil. Why, then, could not a form of it be devised so that it could be administered to patients whose digestive organs had been weakened by disease?

This is exactly what scientists and chemists have been aiming at for years, and this is exactly what has been accomplished by two prominent French chemists. Their secret has been brought to America and our own Mr. Wallace has succeeded in connecting himself with the prominent firm of Boston Chemists who are placing this new preparation on the market. The preparation in question, now that it has been discovered, like all other great inventions, is simple. By a peculiar process the liver oil of the cod is treated in such a manner that there is obtained an extract which contains all, and only all, of the curative properties that have made cod liver oil famous. The horrible smelling, nauseating-tasting fat that has always been a part of this remedy has been entirely discarded.

This curative extract is the basis of Vinol, which Mr. Wallace is presenting to the public. It is combined with Organic Iron and Beef Peptone, dissolved in a specially made medicinal wine, and the result is a preparation that is delicious to the taste and extremely comforting to the stomach.

Mr. Wallace has indeed been fortunate in making arrangements to handle this new remedy, which goes under the name of Vinol. It is worth any one's while to talk to him about it and to learn directly from him the good that is being done by finding a way to administer what has always been a horrible and much dreaded medicine, in a form that is actually delicious, to say nothing of being a hundred times more efficient.

THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED — IN — Napanee's Greatest Store — THE ROBINSON CO. LIMITED

LET EVERY EMPLOYEE

Realize what the public expects, and has a right to expect. If a customer is betrayed into buying something for wool that isn't wool, depend on it the customers wrath explodes like this, "Robinson's lied and cheated me." You never hear anybody put it, "so and so at the small wear counter cheated me."

A stranger asks direction. It is wrongly given. The comment is "Robinson's is the most careless store."

If you do not really know the answer, get information from someone whom you have reason to know does know. The light of a satisfied customer's countenance makes your own day's work seem lighter.

Remember you are helping on the business of Napanee's Greatest Store. You are somebody. We haven't a number on the place knowingly. Be up and eager. Be in earnest, and if you are worthy you are a permanent part of the business.

Black Persiana Coats

LATEST PARISIAN GARMENT.

Paris started it, New York took it up and the exclusive trade over the line have adopted the Fur Curl idea for Coats. Some represent Astrachans, others Russian Pony and Persians. We thought the Persian Curls were the best. They come to us from France, are out after new Paris models. One is a short military style, another is a hip length, and another is a longer length. They are high class goods and very exclusive. Sizes 32 to 38. Prices, $50.00 to $65.00 each.

"Stork" Waterproof Baby Pants

Stork Pants are to cover the diaper. They are made from a soft, pliable white fabric, which is odorless and antiseptic. Stork Pants are easily adjusted to fit and require no pins. They keep baby clean, sweet and healthy. Mothers who have used them will not do without them. They say that their babies are less irritable, sleep better and feel better. Physicians and nurses are enthusiastic in recommending their use. Price, 50 cents.

Art Sateens and Art Cretonnes

When we say "Art" designs we mean designs and colorings in Sateens and Cretonnes that represent the highest type of designing in the textile trade. We are proud of the assortment that we are showing. If you give us the pleasure of a look we will show you many that will please you. There are many ways of using these art goods for home decorating, window seats, reading corners, box coverings, etc.

New Coat Models

ADDED TO LADIES' READY-TO-WEAR DEPARTMENT.

During the last few weeks some new Coat styles have developed. We did not lose any time in getting them. If you are interested in Coats depend upon it that you will find fashions approved styles here. Another thing we give you such a wide range of choice that there is no need of duplicating styles.

Fur Completeness

If there is any time when it is especially advantageous to choose Furs it is now. Stocks are fresh and complete. The Furs have been made during the summer months when the furriers were not rushed, consequently you will find very careful workmanship.

There is a splendid variety of NECKPIECES and MUFFS, plain and fancy, of Marten, Mink, Fox, Sable and many other furs you may choose at prices to suit your purse.

LADIES' FUR LINED COATS in Black, Navy, Green, Red and Brown and of a quality we can recommend.

FUR JACKETS in Persian Lamb, Astrachan, Electric Seal and Russian Lamb.

SABLE THE WINNER.—Sable is very popular the world over, but in no country is it of better quality than in Canada, for this is the home of the Sable.

It makes a very pretty collar for a Fur Coat, and it is exceptionally good in small and large Muffs and Ruffs. Our stock of Sable garments this year is unusually complete. Great care has been taken in the selection of these Muffs and Ruffs, and they are all moderately priced, at $7.50, $8.00, $8.50, $9.00, $10.00, $12.50, and up to $32.00.

OUR STOCK OF FUR GARMENTS IS DISPLAYED FOR THE INSPECTION OF ALL WHO COME TO OUR STORE. NO OBLIGATION TO BUY. IT IS ALWAYS A PLEASURE TO SHOW GOODS.

Fur Repairing Department

Don't wait until November before bringing in your Fur repairing to us. November and December will find us rushed with fur lining making. We do all kinds of remaking and repairing of Fur garments. Modern all kinds of skins, tails, barrels, etc. on hand.

Flannels for Underwear and Shirting

The day for people to wear hard board like flannels is a thing of the past. We insist on having flannels that will stand the tub. For instance greys and navy we find that the Canadian Wool Flannels made at Campbellford are the best. They are used mostly for underwear.

For White and Cream Flannels of a kind that is good for shirting, the imported flannels are best. For Men's and Boys' Shirts we have proved the Scotch makes the best.

TILLICOUTRY DEMY makes comes from a town in Scotland. It is spoken of as being very warm, and every fibre in it are twisted. It does not shrink a bit, is unbreakable, and we have colors to suit all. We can tell you how much we have had garments and not one complaint yet. Patterns are very neat, either mixtures, grey checks and stripes. Some of the patterns we have are for small boys' suits and for men's dressing gowns. Same price as last year, 40 cents yard.

Women's and Girls' Coats

REGULAR $13.50, FOR $10.00.

We have run low in long tweed Coats about the $10.00 mark. We could not replace them from the makers, so we have taken several regular $12.50 and $13.50 Coats and marked them $10.00. You are in luck if you need one, and get one of these Coats at that price.

"Acorn" Table Oilcloths

Acorn table oilcloth is a brand that we control. It is the best table oilcloth made in Canada. Customers tell us that our patterns are a great improvement on the old styles. You will find "Acorn" brand stamped on the back of every yard. There are dozens of ways of using Table Oilcloths that one does not think of. For instance, you can take an imitation oak design and transform a screen door into a storm door in a few minutes. That is only one example. Yard and a quarter, and yard and a half wide. 25 cents and 35 cents a yard.

Good Clothes for Boys

The big regular stocks? Yes, and were never better. But the nugget of good luck is this: 25 SUITS FOR BOYS, 12 YEARS TO 17 YEARS OF AGE. REGULAR PRICES, $5.50 TO $7.50. FOR $4.75 EACH.

Men's Overcoats

MEN'S OVERCOATS.— Black Beavers and Meltons, from $7.50 to $20.00 each. Grey and Fancy Tweeds at from $5.00 to $15.00 each.
MEN'S OVERCOATS — Black Imitation Fur Lining, interlined with Rubber, German Otter collars, $20.00 and $22.50.

DEMAND FOR APPLES IN THE UNITED STATES.

In spite of the duty of seventy-five cents a barrel, there will be a considerable export of Ontario apples to the United States this year, according to Mr. P. W. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Fruitgrowers' Association. There are already a large number of American buyers in the Province, taking what they can get now and making contracts for further supplies during the season, at an average price of $3.00 a barrel f. o. b. on this side of the line. Severe spring frosts, and subsequent bad weather in the southern and western States were disastrous to the apple crops, and the cause of the demand for Ontario apples. Similar conditions in Britain and Europe have caused a shortage there, and the export to those countries will be heavier than usual. In addition, Manitoba is making big demand for apples, so that the outlook for apple orchard owners in this Province is bright. The crop in the best apple sections of Ontario is a good average one. Prices of apples for home consumption, range from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel at the point of shipment.

LEARN DRESSMAKING BY MAIL.

In Your Spare Time at Home, Or Take a Personal Course at School.

To enable all to learn, we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school each month, dates commencing last Tuesday of each month. In this class each learner is taught the full principle of any garment, from the plainest shirt waist up to the most elaborate dress. The whole theory can be learned in from one to three months. We have taught hundreds by mail, and have graduated pupils from the class who earned more than double the wages at 14 and 15. You cannot learn dressmaking as thoroughly in any other system. If you want a shop for years. Beware of imitations, as we employ no one to canvass or solicit. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada, and excelled by none. Write for free catalogue and full particulars, or, for only fifty cents, we will send you a full set of tailor system measures, and a 24-page booklet, explaining how to take measurements, how to use them, how to cut and make a perfect fitting garment. Regular price of measures and booklet, $1.00. Send fifty cents to-day, and you will be delighted with your purchase. Don't delay, but write to-day.

HUMAN AND YET DIVINE

CLAIM OF JESUS CHRIST TO THE ALLEGIANCE OF MANKIND.

HIS PERSONALITY MOST UNIQUE

Reverence For the Ideal—Excellence Excites Admiration — Why Jesus Was Misunderstood—Secret of His Power to Draw the Multitude—Remedy For Social Ills—Peace Not Anarchy.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Dwyer, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 22.—The claims of Christ to the homage of all races and all times as a divine being and the greatest of teachers are eloquently presented in this sermon from the text John vii. 46, "Never man spake like this man."

What a strange world this is! As soon as a novelty ceases to be a novelty we look upon it as quite commonplace. What once aroused our admiration and enthusiasm is now considered one of the ordinary, prosaic incidents of everyday life. We marveled not long ago at the revolving wheel of the horseless carriage along our boulevards, which made thousands of pedestrians line the curbstones with interest. But that "nine days' wonder" soon came to an end. Now we grumble at the speed limit of the automobile, apply opprobrious epithets to the helpless driver of the street car in fear and trembling lest one of these onrushing machines hurl us into eternity without a moment's notice. Once the sound of the telephone bell would make us take down the receiver with joyful anticipation to find who next of our friends had ordered his name put into the telephone book. But now, instead of being impressed with the wonder of the telephone serve, we are irritated by it as an annoyance. Once we said: "Marvelous! Marvelous invention!" Now we say, "I wish this miserable telephone had never been invented, for then I could have a few hours in quiet for rest."

But, though a novelty may cease to be a novelty in reference to some of the great inventions of the world, yet some creations of God and man have never ceased to be novelties because they stand out from all other creations as absolutely unique. Why do the tourists in multitudes annually go to visit Niagara Falls? Because those waterfalls are different from all other kinds of waterfalls. Why do the visitors marvel at the world's Yellowstone Park? Because when they see the geysers in full play and the "Giant Paint Pot" and "Hell's Half Acre," where the ground, as in an earthquake, is moving and crumbling under their feet and where they can catch a fish in one pool and without moving their feet throw that living fish into a natural cildron not ten yards away and there cook it and take it to the table to be eaten, these people say, "There are many wonders in this world, but there is no wonder anywhere else just like the wonders of Yellowstone Park." The same is true about the pyramids. If we knew how they were built and why they were built, and if there were pyramids in every land like the Egyptian pyramids, we would have but little interest in climbing the Pharaoh's marvels; but because the Egyptian pyramids are different from all other piles of stone and of thousands of tourists annually make pilgrimage to Cairo as to a sacred Shrine.

What is true of inanimate things is also true of every man in whom you find a man radically different in capacity from all other men, then that man stands out conspicuous among his fellows. Paganini, the master wizard of the violin, was such a man. The musical critics of his day declared that he developed a tone touch which was peculiarly his own. No other man ever possessed it before he did. No man has ever possessed it since. He was different from all other musicians. Because he was different, the whole Christian world set his feet and listened and marveled. Edgar Allan Poe was such a man. There were a host of poets before the author of "The Raven." Many have risen and flourished since, but he was different from them all. Never was there a man who could make such rhythmic music out of mere words as he. Read his famous poem "The Bells." He transforms every word into a bell note. There the sleighs ring their bells, and the church towers ring their bells, and the fire alarms ring their bells, and the solemn funeral dirge rings their bells. And because Edgar Allan Poe was different from all other poets we find his books and almost every library shelf.

Infinitely grander, supernally unique, even from a human standpoint, is he of whom I speak to-day. Christ was and is different from all other men. When he gave laws from Sinai, Moseth and began to teach the people tried to analyze his power. They tried to find similarities between his personality and that of other prophets, but the more they studied him the more they found he was a unique himself. And because he was so peculiar his individual the people began to flock after him in great multitudes. At last every man and woman who came in touch with this new teacher confessed that he was absolutely and intensely unique. Even the officers of the law who were sent by the priests and Pharisees to arrest Jesus would ask apprehend him, for they said, "Never man spake like this man." Do you wonder that a man like Jesus, who was of such a unique individual type, should have gathered about his personality such an interesting multitudes and that he astounded them with his doctrines? I want to show you this morning some of the respects in which Christ was different from other men and why he wants us to be like him and be in our way different from the great world at large.

Christ was different from all other men, in the first place, because he claimed that he was the divine source of spiritual life. He spoke as a prophet, but he was more than a prophet. He spake as a priest, but he was more than a priest. He spake as a divine king in whom was all power. He stood up in the midst of the people and said, "I am the Christ whom the prophets foretold." He said, "I am the Messiah who has come to establish a kingdom." He did more than that. He compared himself to a fountain of living water of which if any man should drink he would never thirst again. He did more than that. He said that if any man should believe on him the divine power which he possessed would flow through the human heart as through a living channel. In all the history of the world was there ever a human being who took to himself such divine authority as did Christ? Do you wonder that when the officers of the law, who were sent by the chief priests, went to apprehend Jesus they stood amazed at his claims, and, "Never man spake like this man?"

But the exalted claims of this divine Nazarene did not end with mere words. He said, "I am the Christ." Then he again said: "I will prove it by working the most wonderful miracles man ever witnessed. Do you see that young man who was born blind? I touch his eyes and they are opened. See, here is a deaf and dumb man. I place my finger in his ear and on his tongue and he is able to hear and speak. See, here is a dead man. Decomposition has already set in. That body is a corpse. I will call him and he will rise up and turn his face into a couch. I do these miracles to prove to you that I am divine. All power is in me. I and my Father are one." Thus did Jesus to prove his divinity. Thus did he claim that he was born the or bone and flesh of our flesh, yet at the same time he said: "I am God. I am the Messiah whose advent was prophesied from the earliest time. Listen to me! If you not realize that this claim of divinity makes Christ stand forth from all other men as distinctively individual?

Now, my brother, if this divine Christ has any divine strength to give to you which you can receive from no other source does it not behoove you to seek Christ and ask for this divine blessing? If Jesus is truly God, are you not bound to kneel down and ask for his pardon and his love? And especially would you not have this divine creature when it is offered freely to the vilest and the most flagrant sinners as it is offered to you?

Prof. Phillips tells the story of a burglar who broke into a seaside mansion. He hastily ascended to the middle of the parlor floor all the valuables which he wished to take away, but in the center of that parlor was a beautiful figure of Guido's "Ecco Homo." There could be seen the face of the Italian master could paint him. Jesus' head was crowned with thorns. With a look of ineffable pity he seemed to say, "I am dying for you. I am dying that you might be saved from sin and live forever with me." The burglar stopped in his work of theft and looked steadily that face. Then he seemed to say, "O Christ, I cannot steal while thus you look upon me." And so he turned the face of Jesus to the wall. O man, O woman, O child, are you going to turn the face of Christ away? Remember his sacred, bleeding lips are ready to speak words of eternal life to you. Are you going to turn your back upon this Christ, who is man and yet God? Can you not hear Christ saying to you, "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink?" God is speaking. Christ the God is speaking. He is speaking to you. He is speaking to me. He is speaking to all sinners. Yea, he is speaking to the whole world.

But Christ did more than claim divine kinship. When he opened his lips he taught a new social doctrine. He upset all the foundation stones upon which the society of his day had been built. He came to the rich man and said, "That poor man is thy neighbor." He came to the man who had a grievance against his neighbor and said: "Your Master law is not to force now. It is not eye for eye or tooth for tooth. It is love for hate, forgiveness for injustice, mercy for transgression. Bless them which persecute you. Bless and curse not." Could there have been a more revolutionary doctrine preached, than that which Christ taught in his message of the new kingdom?

I once heard an anarchist, a woman, preach her horrible doctrine. That night after the meeting when I lay in bed with all my better nature blood revolting from the despicable teachings of this dangerous woman I thought of the sheath Christ's teachings must have given to those scribes and Pharisees of his day. But what a difference! She preached murder and revolution. He preached peace and good will to men. Every word of her address was fiery with hate and malignity; all his words were tender and loving. She demanded fire and sword for her foes; his prayer was: "Father, forgive them. They know not what they do." As I tried to compare the sermon on the mount with the teachings and the tenets of the Pharisees I could understand how they would be shocked. Every one of the gentle, humble Christ in his coarse garments pointing to the rich robes of the high priest and saying, "Thou shalt not make my Father's house a place of merchandise." Then I saw Jesus placing his loving hand upon the rich ruler's shoulder and tenderly saying, "Sell all thou hast and give to the poor." Then in the darkness of the night after I had attended the anarchistic meeting I said to myself: "What poor doctors for a world awry men are! This woman perceives social injustice, and she would tear society to atoms, but the divine Christ, perceiving social injustice, bids society pattern itself on his kingdom which is in heaven. Yes, Christ did more than claim his divine kingship. His teachings were the messages of love. When Jesus appeared the old Mosaic dispensation of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth as the principle of social life disappeared forever. And I going beyond anything when I declare that in reference to Jesus the teacher, "Never man spake like this man?"

But there was another fact about Christ which individualized him as the most unique of all personalities. He claimed that his dominion should yet cover the round world as the waters cover the sea. And yet, when the Hebrew people wanted to make him their earthly king, Jesus refused all temporal power. He said: "My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but now is my kingdom not from hence." In other words, the man who would reveal David's throne deliberately turns his back upon it, and yet he claims a divine kingship. From a human standpoint, could you imagine anything more inexplicable?

While thinking along this line my mind naturally ran back to the scene of Christ's great temptation. You know the story. After Jesus had fasted forty days the devil came to him and said, "If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." But Christ said: "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Then the devil took Jesus upon one of the temple's pinnacles and said: "Throw thyself down, and God will send his angels to keep thee from being decayed." But Christ said, "It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Then the devil took Jesus up on a high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and said, "All fall down, worship me, and all these will I give thee." But Jesus said: "Get thee hence, Satan; for it is written Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." In plain English, Satan wanted Jesus to demand a visible manifestation of God's power. He would have Christ do something practical. He knew men, and he knew that they would follow a man who could turn stones into bread; who could fling himself from the pinnacle of a high and mighty temple and alight unhurt; who could achieve world-wide rule by compromising with evil. But not by such means would Jesus win the world's faith and love. Satan could not understand the spiritual; could not conceive of that ineffable power by which if Christ was lifted up he would draw all men unto him.

Now, I always used to look upon this story as an allegory. I never believed that in truth this happened. But the older I grow the more I believe it is literally true. Satan always was and always will be of a carnal mind. He can never comprehend anything which does not appeal to the carnal mind. He is a practical, matter-of-fact, brutal man who one day asked Benjamin Disraeli why he had married so unattractive a wife. Disraeli was inconspicuous until he married a widow who was some years older than he, but who had her wealth upon him and gave him his first step in political life. The gentleman only answered: "My friend, I cannot tell you because I do not think you could understand my motive. You do not know what gratitude means." So Satan was and always will be a carnal mind. If Christ could not sit upon an earthly throne and mansole Satan with scepter, he does not believe Christ was the Christ. Thus with the Hebrews. They could not understand why Christ, the spiritual king, would not become Christ the temporal king. They could not understand why Christ, who claimed to be a spiritual ruler, would not re-establish the David throne in Jerusalem.

And yet is it not always the men who have willingly turned their backs upon thrones of earthly power who have established kingdoms of spiritual power? Take the life of Wesley, with his marvelous organizing ability, his wonderful literary skill, his silver tongue and his power of polemics—could he not have been the greatest statesman or lawyer or ecclesiastic of his time had he wished? Was not the palace or the archbishop's chair within his grasp had he sought it? And yet to-day do we not honor and love Wesley as the Methodism more than if he had been an archbishop? England has produced many great men, but seldom a greater than David Livingstone. But do we honor him to-day because he gave up all for Christ?

I do not care where you go in history the men we honor most to-day and whom God honors most have been and are men who have turned their backs upon thrones of temporal power in order to spread the higher kingdom of truth and love and spirituality. The carnal mind cannot grasp this sacrifice, but the spiritual mind can. In order to truly appreciate the divine sacrifice we must first have the divine love in our own hearts.

Lastly, the Hebrews of old could not understand this new Teacher because he was going to establish his spiritual kingdom out of the vilest of the vile. He was not like the archbishop who goes to the purest and whitest quarries to get the stones for the walls of his marble palace. But he goes to the dirt and mire of sin. He collects the most debased. And out of the very lowest humanities he expects to build his purest palaces. If there was a man present he always banned him out if he could do that sinner any good. He even went and lodged in his house with a man called with Zacchæus. And yet, strange as it may seem, it is almost impossible to do God's most upright unless we are willing to associate with those who are despised by the respectable people. Now, a few practical questions: Are we, for Christ's sake, willing to become socially ostracised by those who think it is not proper for us to go with those who have gone astray? Are we willing to do this for Christ, as Christ did this for us?

Magnifying Choir Leader's Voice.

In the old village of Braybrook, in Northamptonshire, is a monster trumpet, 5 feet 6 inches in length, and having a bell-shaped end 2 feet 1 inch in diameter.

This trumpet is made up of ten rings, which in turn are made up of smaller parts. The use of this trumpet—only four of the band are now left—is exhibited at the present day—was to magnify the voice of the leader in the choir and to summon the people to the church service.

At the present time neither the choir nor the service is in need of this extraordinary aid, instruments having been introduced in the early part of the century, but the old relic is fond of showing it to all visitors.

A Fisherman's Luck.

WEAK, WORN AND ALMOST IN DESPAIR WHEN DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CAME TO HIS RESCUE.

"My strength was almost gone, my breath very short and I could hardly walk. I used many remedies but they did not help me. Finally a friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and today, thanks to the pills, I am a perfectly well man."

This very emphatic statement is made by Mr. R. L. Porter, of Maitland, N.S. Mr. Porter is a fisherman, and naturally a hard working man, subject to much exposure. Further says —"I was in a state of debility and bloodlessness. Sometimes I could attend to my work but often was too weak and miserable to do so. I was wakeful and restless at night, and could not eat in the morning. I was troubled with pains in the back and shoulders, sometimes I could hardly straighten up. Then indigestion came to add to my misery, and my condition was one that made me almost hopeless. I tried several medicines—but in vain. Then one day a friend said to me 'why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?' I took his advice, and I always be grateful for them. In a short time I began to regain my health. I could eat with more comfort and ate my kind of food. My strength and always will be at command to my work. I was in fact perfectly well again, and this is actually due to the Pink Pills alone."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the strength and drive out disease in just one way—by making pure, new red blood. That is all they do, but they do it well. They act direct on the bowels—they don't purge and weaken like common pills. They don't interfere with meal or occupation, they go right to the root of the trouble—the blood—that is why they cure anaemia, with all its wretchedness and backaches, and dizziness and pale complexion, that is why they cure indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, general weakness and the special troubles that growing girls and women do not like to talk about even to their doctors. But you must insist on getting the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ONLY A FEW YEARS.

When a few years are come!
Oh, Lord! help thou my soul,
That when the summons comes to me,
And I am near the coal,

I shall not be afraid
To meet my God on high,
But trusting firmly in His love,
Shall greatly long to die.

I'm glad as time rolls on My Lord's "Looks up to Thee,
And stronger grows my love for Him
Who has done much for me.

What's life that we should mourn?
'Tis promised every one,
A home eternal in the skies,
Where sorrows are done.

My loved ones, meet me there,
For I can not return,
When I have passed o'er Death's cold bar
E'en though for you I yearn.

The late Mrs. Jas. Cousins, of Enterprise, expressed a desire that Job 19, verse 25, be used as part of her funeral solemnities, which request was observed. The above has been written in memorial.

SPRING VALLEY.

The farmers in this vicinity have their fall ploughing all finished. —Quite a number of young people spent a pleasant evening last week at Mrs. J. Hinch's.—Corn huskings and quilting bees are all the rage around here.—John Dowling and family spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. F. Burns, Tamworth.— Chas. Jocfield, of Berlin, has rented the vacant house from Mr. Dowling, and intends moving in a couple of weeks. —Mrs. Patk. Dillon has purchased a new Enterprise range.—Mrs. S. Boggs spent a couple of days last week with her mother, Mrs. Brown.—Miss Lena Dowling spent Sunday with friends.—Mrs. C. Graham at Mrs. J. Burgess'.—Bell Aldridge and Wm. Wickliff passed through here on Monday buying cattle.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

WEAKENS THE TISSUES AND LESSENS ORGANIC VITALITY.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Napanee and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition that it does the work Nature expects of it.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that T. B. Wallace, with every 50c box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

Hastings county council appointed Thomas E. Wilson, Tweed, overseer of the new House of Refuge, at $450 per year, his wife being appointed matron at $250 per annum.

Loose boxing on the shaft is said to have caused the serious accident in the Dupont Powder Mills at Fontanel, Indiana. The dead now number thirty-eight, and 50 persons injured.

City Assessor H. P. Thomas has made his report to the Belleville Council. The total assessment is $4,180,995, and the population has increased 543, being now 9,515.

Mr. Kipling has apologized in Chicago for writing Our Lady of the Snows, and promises not to do it again 'until the snow comes.' Fitting words for a man, who, he found in Canada traces of annexation sentiment. To-day he finds none.

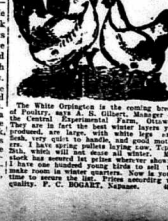
Canada's Best White Orpingtons.



The White Orpington is the coming breed of Poultry, says A. S. Gilbert, Manager of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. They are in fact the best winter layers yet produced, are hardy with white legs and beak, very quiet to handle, and good mothers. Each spring pullets laying Low, Tight Eggs, which do not cease all winter. My stock has been bred for years where they have to make room in winter quarters. Now is the time to secure eggs for hatching according to quality. F. C. BOGART, Napanee.

Health Insurance for Women.

"Woman's work is never done." There is always something to do —running up and down stairs, lifting, bending, straining—no wonder the Kidneys become affected. That is why so many women suffer with headaches, lame back, dragging pains through the hips, nervousness, weak spells. When the Kidneys are weakened or strained, the delicate female organs are disturbed and inflamed, bringing on a train of female complaints.

Bu-Ju
The Gentle Kidney Pill

Insures health to women who work. Bu-Ju keeps the Kidneys strong and healthy, purifies the blood, tones and acts as a gentle, strengthening tonic on the delicate female organs.

ADDINGTON ROAD.

The angel of death has once more visited us, taking away one of our most esteemed gentlemen, in the persons of Mr. Geo. McKeown, and Mr. Frank Sullivan, aged seventy-five and thirty-five years respectively. The former had enjoyed perfect health until three weeks prior to his death, and although all that medical assistance could do was done, he grew continually weaker, until Tuesday morning, when he sank into the calm and peaceful sleep of death. To mourn his loss he leaves a widow and nine children, and although his chair in the family circle is vacant, they can still fondly cherish the memory of a loving husband and father. The funeral, which took place from his residence here was largely attended. His remains were placed in the R. C. vault at Erinsville. The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. Sullivan, although a sufferer for many years, was in usual health until Saturday evening, when he was taken dangerously ill with a hemorrhage. From that time every hour found him weaker, and thus he pined until Friday afternoon, when the shades of death crept silently over him and released him of all earthly trials. The host of relatives, friends and acquaintances that followed his remains to the R. C. vault on Sunday, was ample proof of the respect and honor in which he was held. He leaves one sister and two brothers to mourn his loss. They have our heartfelt sympathy in this, the hour of their sad affliction.

DORLAND.

Mrs. J. W. Dorland, Mrs. Gill and Miss Palmer, of California, who have been visiting friends here, returned to their home this week.—Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Allison, of Williamstown, N.Y., are visiting their parents, at Adolphustown.—Mrs. C. C. Carlette is visiting friends at New York, and expects to spend the winter with her son, Mr. Arthur C. at the Cobalt, where he is located as manager of extensive mining companies.—We are glad to state Mrs. Sweeney is so much improved in health as to be able to visit friends in Picton. Fortunately on her return home the carriage wheel passed over her arm and she is suffering from the pain of it at present.—We will be very pleased to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Rickerson and Hawley back to their home here. His new house is nearly completed, and is another addition to the 3d Concession, which was so wrecked looking after the big fire which occurred in May.—Mrs. E. Lavelle and children, of Picton, have been visiting the mother, Mrs. E. A. Mallory.—Our school is progressing very favorably under the able management of Miss McCatherty.—Bath.—We sincerely hope she will be re-engaged for 1908.

(Too late week.)

The Jackson Bros., of Harrowsmith, finished building the cement walk last week. It is a great improvement to our village.—Mr. Edward Wemp and wife visited at Mr. Frank Mills', in Napanee, on Sunday last.—Dr. Anderson, V.S., who has been here for about 11 years, left on Tuesday for North Dakota, where he has secured a good position.—Mr. Robt. Blackadder moved into his house this week, which he lately purchased from J. John Stone.—Our coal dealer, Geo. A. Waitman, is kept very busy these days, delivering coal to his customers.—Mrs. A. B. Rowan Legge, who has been visiting friends in Ottawa, returned home this week.

"I find that Diamond Dyes are the best as I can always get good, bright and fast colors from them. I have used other dyes, but they are all inferior."
Mrs Thos. Lavin, Newark, Ont.

The most important thing in connection with home dyeing is to be sure you get the real Diamond Dyes.

Another very important thing is to be sure that you get the kind of Diamond Dyes that is adapted to the article you intend to color.

DO NOT BE DECEIVED. BEAR IN MIND that it is impossible to make a dye that will color Silk and Wool (animal fibre) and Cotton and Linen (vegetable material) equally well. Any color chemist will tell you this at once. For Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods use Diamond Dye Cotton Dyes; for Wool and Silk or combinations of Wool and Silk, use Diamond Dye Wool Dyes. When buying dyes, insist upon getting the genuine Diamond Dyes; see that the name is on each package.

Send your name and address, and we will send you free of cost our New Teddy-Bear Booklet, Novel Direction Book and 50 samples of dyed cloth.

Henderson's, on Thursday evening, was well attended.—A presented by the male inhabitants of this vicinity.—Mrs. Peche Osborne and daughter Edith were guests Mrs. O. S. Davis, on Thursday.—Mrs. W. Abrams, who has been on the sick list, is improving.—Mr. O. S. Davis, has his blacksmith shop remodelled and nearly finished. It is a credit to our street.—Quite a large crowd assembled at Mount Pleasant church on Sunday, it being "Rally Sunday."—Mr. S. Mc-Dole and Mr. Wilson, of Napanee, were present, and gave good addresses to an appreciative audience.

MUCH CONCERN FELT.

ORDINARY METHODS FOR TREATING CATARRH PROVE UNSUCCESSFUL.

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by T. B. Wallace, under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but T. B. Wallace has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles, that he is willing to take the risk, and so if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, but an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

RIVERSIDE.

Andrew Finn, jr., is helping Mr. Finn with the fall ploughing.—Miss Maggie Garrett spent Sunday with Miss Grace Finn.—Mr. Edward Mc-Guin sold a large bunch of cattle this week. The crowding of the market in this line has caused a slump in prices.—Mr. P. Hayes visited in this section on Sunday.—It is just beginning to dawn upon young men of marriageable age in this vicinity that they are too numerous here for their own benefit, while there are very few maidens who would be able to appreciate their attentions.—Miss Grace Finn visited with Miss Kirkpatrick, one day this week.—Mrs. A. Finn is not very well the last ten days.—The entire community feel very sad over the death of Mr. Francis Sullivan, of McGarvey's Corners. He was born and raised, and spent the entire thirty-five years of his life in this vicinity, except a few months spent visiting distant relatives. His fortitude and piety gained for him many friends, as in fifteen years of suffering from that dread disease, consumption, he never complained or despaired, but hid his suffering by his spirit of generosity and love for his fellow-beings. We all unite in extending condolence with his two brothers and a sister, who remain to mourn his death. We also extend our sympathy to Messrs. McKeown, over the death of their father, Mr. Geo. McKeown. He was an old and respected resident on Perry Road, and leaves many friends to mourn his loss.

CARMANVILLE.

The farmers in this part are all busy ploughing, and some of them are putting in a supply of corn and other feed, which is being shipped in to Enterprise.—The people of the R. C. church have their vault completed. It is a fine one, and was much needed in this place.—We are sorry to state that Mr. Thos. Shane is very ill, but we hope for a speedy recovery.—Mrs. P. Manion is settled in her new home at Yarker.—Our cheese factory, under the management of Messrs. Milton and Stewart Hughes, paid the patrons off at a little over $1.07 per hundred lbs., for their milk for September.—The C. M. B. A. hall will be held at Enterprise on Friday evening next, 25th Oct.

ONTARIO DIOCESE.

The congregation of St. Mark's, Deseronto, has made a unanimous request for Rev. F. T. Dibb, as rector to succeed Rev. E. Costigan, who becomes assistant at St. John's, Toronto. The former is pleasantly remembered for his services as assistant at Deseronto a dozen years since Rev. C. R. DePencier, of Wellington, has not accepted the offer of Camden East rectorship.

Rev. J. W. Jones has been successful beyond expectation in his visiting to receive Pan-American Thanksgiving offerings. In consequence of the call to Mr. Dibb, from Deseronto, and his late pressing duties, he had to retire from the same service in the eastern half of the diocese. Mr. Jones will visit that portion also, being given six months' leave from his parochial services.—Whig.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

"My Hair is Longer and Thicker than ever before"

THIS RECENT PHOTOGRAPH OF MISS BESSIE WOODRUFF, OF POWELL, PA., IS CERTAINLY STRONG PROOF OF THE VALUE OF

Newbro's Herpicide

Here is Miss Woodruff's letter: "Newbro's Herpicide is a delightful hair dressing and I find by its continued use that my hair is growing longer and thicker than ever before."
—(Signed) BESSIE WOODRUFF.

AN OWEN SOUND LADY RECOMMENDS NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE VERY HIGHLY.

"I have found Herpicide very beneficial in removing dandruff with which I have been troubled for years. Besides being a source of annoyance it is very injurious to the hair. I can with pleasure recommend your Herpicide treatment. I have known others who used it and with satisfactory results."
Owen Sound, Ont. Signed—MRS. R. McDOWALL.

It is so easy to learn, by actual experience, the value of Newbro's Herpicide, for dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., that no one in need of it should delay one moment in making the test.

A single application is enough to convey the impression of its worth, while the results of its continued intelligent use will speak for themselves.

Newbro's Herpicide is known as the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ," and its success, which is constantly increasing, has been phenomenal. Remember that permanent success is not built upon false claims. Get a bottle or send for a sample of Herpicide to-day. There are hundreds of imitations which should be avoided.

Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act June 30, 1906. Serial No. 915

Two sizes, 50c and $1.00 at drug stores. Insist upon Herpicide.

Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. L, Windsor, Ontario.

DIED IN NAPANEE.

Miss Cassie Mitchelson, who for a number of years resided in this city, died at an early hour Wednesday morning, at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Jas. Brandon, of Napanee. Deceased, who was somewhat advanced in years, had been ill for some months. Miss Mitchelson, whilst living in Belleville, was identified with St. Andrew's church. The lady was a fine type of Christian character, and was esteemed by all who knew her.—Belleville Intelligencer.

IN BUSINESS AGAIN.

I beg to announce that I am in business again, one door north of my residence, on Centre st., where I have opened up a full line of Groceries—no old stock, and will sell as cheap as the best of them, for cash or farmers' produce. I cordially invite all my old customers to give me a call, and thank them for their patronage in the past. All accounts past due must be settled at once. Be kind enough to call and pay up, as the books will soon be out of my hands.

43ep PETER GOULD.

THREE IN ONE.

The best weekly newspaper, a family magazine without an equal and an agricultural paper second to none is what one gets in the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. Three publications in one and each the best of its kind and all for one dollar a year is the explanation of the wonderful success of Canada's greatest newspaper. No home in Canada should be without the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal when it costs only one dollar a year.

THE REAL WIDOW BROWN.

You should seek the bright side of life, and in "The Real Widow Brown" you will find the brightest and merriest of all farce comedies. This is the very latest farcial success, and it is being presented by an evenly balanced company of well known fun-makers. It has a carefully planned and well sustained plot, full of absurd situations, delightfully amusing and thoroughly enjoyable.

The piece serves as the vehicle for the introduction of the newest songs, pleasing dances and first class specialties, and contains everything to please the senses,—melody, mirth and movement. Attractive organization, charming ensemble, comely girls, and exquisite costumes make this an ideal attraction of its kind, and if you visit "The Real Widow Brown" at the Briscoe Opera House, on Friday evening, 1st Nov., you will have the jolliest time in many a month. Popular prices. Plan at Hawley's music store.

ITCH, Mange, Prairie Scratches, Barber's Itch, and every form of contagious itch on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Wolfend's Sanitary Lotion. It never fails. Sold by T. B. Wallace. tf

TO-NIGHT.

The first public meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will be held at the new hall in the Library building, this Friday evening, October 25th, at 8 o'clock. After a short business meeting a paper will be read by Mrs. Alexander Macdonald, describing her last summer's trip to the Pacific coast with the delegates to the annual convention of the Woman's National Historical Association.

Miss Harlow Cumberland, President of the Ontario Historical Society, will deliver an address on matters historical. Mr. Cumberland has had a long experience in the working of Canadian Historical Societies, and is an authority on Canadian History.

Every one will be welcome at this meeting, and it is hoped that all parts of the county will be represented. Admission free.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The young men's Parliamentary Society met at the home of Mr. W. T. Gibbard, Thursday evening, 17th inst., and elected the following officers for the coming session:

Speaker—Mr. Geo. W. Gibbard.
Deputy Speaker—Mr. Dudley L. Hill.
Gov. Leader—Mr. W. Harrison.
Opposition Leader—Mr. A. E. Battle.
Minister of Finance—Mr. W. J. Robinson.
Clerk of the House—Mr. W. T. Shaver.

This Society is a comparatively recent organization, and is already becoming quite popular. The meetings are held weekly at the homes of its members, and are conducted under Parliamentary laws and principles. We trust that this Society will fill the deeply felt want of a Canadian club in our town, and if so, should receive strong support from every quarter.

The Supreme Court has reserved judgment in the Grand Trunk appeal against the two-cent fare order.

Commandant Sylvain, a doctor of laws, in Paris, and aide-de-camp to Emperor Menelik, was denied admission to a Montreal hotel because of his color.

The speaker of the House of Commons in an address in Kansas City, Mo., predicted that Canada was going to have some day a twenty-one-foot channel from the upper lakes to tide water.

Napanee's Cash Grocery

If You Pay Cash, You Should Get Cash Prices.

The credit system sold American Coal Oil, costing 14½c. for 25c., equals 52½c. clear profit for filling a 5 gallon can. With cash system and our up-to-date self-measuring oil pump, a clerk would make the salary of a cabinet minister while selling coal oil.

In May, when a delegate from the Grocerymen and Oil retailers told us the combine had decided that we must raise our prices and join the combine, or they would force us to do so, our reply from our head office was that we were in business to stay, that such a combine was illegal, the fine not less than $200.00, that we considered such a price robbery, and when they sold below cost to force us into the combine we would expose the oil deal in the local press.

When they sold Canadian Oil at 3 cents per gallon below cost to make us join the combine, then Sept. 23rd sent us the agreement signed by every oil dealer in Napanee, except one, backed up by a threat that they would prevent the Queen City Oil Company supplying us with oil unless we signed the combine, we again refused to sign, agree, combine, or raise our prices above our regular prices in our neighboring town, Picton, and informed their delegate that their action compelled us to do as we said in May,—publish the fact that American Oil from the tank system has not cost over 15½ cents in 24 years, or over 14½ cents since last January, though retailed in Napanee and vicinity at 25 cents.

Also that those selling at and below cost were simply trying to force us to raise our prices from 17 cents to 25 cents.

Some people are willing to allow an extra 10 or 20 per cent. for a few months' credit.

Our customers all pay cash, and are entitled to spot cash prices, viz. give 10 per cent. off all package tea or breakfast foods, 20 per cent. on yeast cake, soda, blueing, boot and stove polish, Diamond Dyes, etc. We sell Electric Paste at 5 cents, and everying at our own cash prices.

TENDERS FOR Pulpwood Concessions.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including the 16th day of December next, for the right to cut pulpwood on certain areas tributary to the Spanish River, in the districts of Thessalon Bay, and Rainy Lake, in the district of Rainy River, and make the same into pulpwood. Tenderers should state the amount they are prepared to pay as dues per cord, and the cost time as may from time to time be fixed for the right to operate a pulp-making industry on the areas referred to. Tenderers should also state the size of the area or territory, and the successful tenderer will be required to enter into a bond with sufficient sureties for the due performance of the conditions of the contract.

Parties tendering for the pulpwood rights will accompany their tender with a separate cheque for 25 per cent. of the amount tendered for, which will be forfeited to the Crown, and to be forfeited in the event of their failing to enter into contract on the terms and conditions, etc.

With respect to the Rainy Lake pulp concession, tenderers will be required to erect a pulp mill on the north side of the lake, Lamaren and Cedar on the territory covered by the concession, and to have the same in operation within the time mentioned in the contract, and to pay a royalty of $2.00 per thousand feet B.M. A marked limit of $5,000 will be payable to the Government of Ontario, must accompany the tender for pine timber, which will be forfeited in the event of their failing to enter into contract for the due performance thereof.

No timber shall be cut on either of the areas mentioned for a less diameter than 7 inches 7 feet from the ground.

The Government reserves to enter into agreements with the Government for the erection of pulp mills, immediately on receipt of application.

For full particulars as to the conditions, application should be made to the undersigned.

HON. J. F. COCHRANE,
Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By Anthony Hope.

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company.

"I wonder when in the world you are going to do anything, Rudolf?" said my brother's wife.

"My dear Rose," I answered, laying down my egg spoon, "why in the world should I do anything? My position is a comfortable one. I have an income nearly sufficient for my wants (no one's income is ever quite sufficient, you know). I enjoy an enviable social position, and my brother to Lord Burlesdon and brother-in-law to that most charming lady, Rose Rassendyll. Behold, it is enough!"

"You are nine and twenty," she observed, "and you've done nothing but——"

"Knock about? It is true. Our family doesn't need to do things."

This remark of mine rather annoyed Rose, for everybody knows—and therefore there can be no harm in repeating it—the fact—that, pretty and accomplished as she herself is, her family is hardly of the same standing as the Rassendyls. Besides her attractions, she possessed a large fortune, and my brother Robert was wise enough not to mind about her ancestry. Ancestry is, in fact, a matter concerning which the next observation of Rose's has some touch.

"Good families are generally worse than any others," she said.

Upon this I stroked my hair. I knew quite well what she meant.

"I'm so glad Robert's is black!" she cried.

At this moment Robert, who rises late if and when he comes home, came in. He glanced at his wife. Rose was slightly flushed; he patted it carelessly.

"What's the matter, my dear?" he said.

"She objects to my doing nothing and having red hair," said I in an injured tone.

"Oh, of course he can't help his hair," Rose retorted.

"It generally crops out once in a generation," said my brother. "So Rudolf has got them both."

"I wish they didn't crop out," said Rose, still flushed.

"I rather like them myself," said I, and I turned to the portrait of Countess Amelia.

My brother's wife uttered an exclamation of impatience.

"I wish you'd take that picture away, Robert," said she.

"My dear!" he cried.

"Good heavens!" I added.

"Then it might be forgotten," she continued.

"Hardly, with Rudolf about," said Robert, shaking his head.

"Why should it be forgotten?" I asked.

"Rudolf!" exclaimed my brother's wife, blushing very prettily.

I laughed and went on with my egg. At least I had shelved the question of what, if anything, I had ought to do. And by way of closing the discussion—and also, I must admit, of exasperating my strict little sister-in-law a trifle more—I observed:

"I rather like being an Elphberg myself."

When I read a story, I skip the explanations, yet the moment I begin to write one I find that I must have an explanation. For it is manifest that I must explain why my sister-in-law was vexed with my nose and hair and why I ventured to call myself an Elphberg. For, eminent as I must protest, the Rassendyls have been for many generations yet practicipation in their blood, of course, does not at first sight justify the boast of a connection with the grander stock of the Elphbergs or a claim to be one of that royal house. For what relationship is there between Ruritania and Burlesdon, between the palace at Strelsau or the castle of Zenda and 305 Park Lane, Piccadilly?

Well, then—and I must premise that I am merely perforce to rake up the very scandal which my dear Lady Burlesdon wishes forgotten—in fact, the case is this: Some years ago, when the throne, peace reigning at the moment and the king and the Prince of Wales being not yet of loggerheads, there came on a visit to the English court a certain prince who was afterwards known to history as Rudolf III. of Ruritania. The prince was a tall, handsome young fellow, marked (maybe marred) it is not for me to say by a somewhat unusually long, sharp and straight nose and a mass of dark red hair—in fact, the nose and the hair which have stamped the Elphberg type out of mind. He stayed some months in England, where he was most courteously received; yet in the end he left rather under a cloud, for he fought a duel (it was SCIATICA PUT HIM ON CRUTCHES.—Jas. Smith, dairyman, of Grimsby, Ont., writes: "Three times were I obliged to resort to from sciatica and rheumatism, and, notwithstanding I tried many cures for the trouble, I give the credit where it belongs, as a result of one bottle of Dodd's Kidney Pills, that I have not been lame since." The credit, it's a marvel. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—34.

ODESSA.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Snider, also Miss Minnie Clarke have gone to California. We wish them success. —We are glad to see Miss Lily Jones after her return from her visit at Berlin.—On Tuesday, Mr. W. A. Baker, with all his household effects, started for Winnipeg, where he will in future reside. Mrs. Baker will not go for some days. We are very sorry to lose him as a neighbor, but for himself it will be much better, as he will have greater opportunities there than here.—Shelly Denyes, who some time ago went to British Columbia, likes the country well, and no doubt as he sees more of it will like it much better.—A number from here attended a party at Enterprise, and though quite a long drive, enjoyed themselves well.—Mr. W. Garratt, for many years a resident of Camden, is enjoying her later years visiting her children. At present she is with her daughter, Mrs. H. Asselstine.—Mrs. Charlie Timmerman has returned from Montreal, where she spent some time.— Miss Flossie Murphy spent Sunday with friends at Wilton.—Mr. and Mrs. Carroll, of Enterprise, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire, of Strathcona, and Mrs. Lily Kennedy spent Sunday with their aunt, Mrs. H. Asselstine.—Mr. A. P. S. Donaldson, of the Crown Bank; spent Sunday at Mr. Byron Cole's.—Mr. Sunday, four or five from here attended the play given by Marks Bros., on Tuesday night.

STRONG WORDS BY A NEW YORK SPECIALIST.—"After years of test and experiment I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is the greatest heart saver known to the medical science. I use it in my own practice, believing it to be the most sure form of relief ailment inside of thirty minutes and never fails." Sold by T. B. Wallace.—34

NESTS OF THE GOLDEN EAGLE
(From the 'Saturday Review.')

Every pair of eagles whose habits I have had an opportunity of watching over a period of a few years would seem to have invariably at least two alternative sites for their nests; some have three and I know of one with four sites. In fact, I have found a certain pair out of many which habitually resort to but one place and only one. The reason for this is, however, apparent, for owing to its situation it has never been disturbed. The nest is in a small cavern on the face of an absolute wall of limestone rock some eight hundred feet high, at about four hundred feet from the summit. Above the nest there is a talus of loose stone at an angle of forty-five degrees or so, above which again rise other precipices which reach the nearest point above this nest would be a long day's work.

Instant Relief from Headache

"Hurry Zutoo Tablets. Everybody wants them. They give almost instant relief from headache. All who use them tell me the same story."

The above message was received from a well known merchant of Grantley, Ont.

Flattering to Zutoo Tablets, is it not? And yet, if you have tried these tablets you know that the words of that message are true.

If you have not tried them, you have yet to experience how quickly they will cure any kind of headache, and how bright and well they will always leave you feeling.

We will send samples for nothing.

CANTON, N.Y., OPERA HOUSE.

Those who had the pleasure of witnessing "The Wages of Sin," at Canton Opera House last evening are undivided in the expression that Ernie Marks has the usual run of repertoire companies skinned a thousand ways. The company is strong throughout. It doesn't run to particular stars with invisible satelities. It is well balanced and its repertory of plays is well selected and not of the days of Adam. The specialty artists that appear each night are well worth the price of admission alone. Bedard & Bedard are of the head-line order and are especially good. But so are Lyons & Lyons, Ernie Marks and Kitty Marks and Little Rose Maehan. The illustrated songs and moving pictures are of an excellent order. Will appear in Brisco Opera House on Monday, Nov. 4th, and two following nights. Popular prices, 10c, 20c and 30c.

CLANCY—DAWSON.

An event of unusual interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Miller, Newburgh, on the evening of Oct. 23d, at 8 o'clock when their eldest daughter, Minnie Ethel, was united in marriage to James A. Dawson, eldest son of Mr. Wesley Dawson, of Switzerville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Huffman, of St. Ola, uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. R. Dafoe, Newburgh, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and pastor of the family. The bride was tastefully attired in white silk trimmed with applique, and wearing a wreath of orange blossoms, worn by her mother on the occasion of her marriage to the bride's father, and carrying a bouquet of white rose buds. The bride was attended by her two sisters, Evalena and Flossie, each carrying a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was ably supported by Reggie Martin, of Newburgh, and Fred. Wales, of Switzerville. The bride entered the drawing room on her father's arm, while Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Pearl Grieve, of Napanee. After the ceremony the guests retired to the dining room, decorated in red, white and blue, where tea was served. Rev. R. Duke proposed the health of the young people in his usual characteristic manner, to which Mr. Dawson, father of the groom, responded. Rev. Jacob Clancy, of Ailsa Craig, Ont., relative of the bride, followed with congratulations.

At 12 o'clock a cab arrived from Napanee, which took the bridal party to meet the 1.30 train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and Detroit. The young couple left amid showers of rice.

The presents to the bride were numerous and extremely beautiful, showing the esteem in which she was held by her many friends. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and bracelets, to the bridesmaids, sterling silver brooches, and to the groomsmen, gold tie pins set with pearls. Both of the young people are popular and held in the highest esteem by their large circle of friends. Mrs. Dawson is an ex-student of Albert College, Belleville, and has been prominent in church work in the community where she resided. Mr. Dawson is a promising young farmer of Ashgtown, and we join with their numerous friends in wishing them bon voyage through a long life of unbroken happiness. The Beaver extends congratulations.

MEETING FOR DAIRYMEN.

A special meeting of the dairymen of Tamworth and Addington will be held in the Town Hall, Napanee, on Saturday, 9th Nov., at 1.30 sharp. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, and there will be much value in the addresses given to milk producers, proprietors and makers. It is to be hoped that dairymen generally will take advantage of this opportunity to learn of the plans for dairy instruction during the coming year. At this meeting a director will be elected to represent this district on the Board for the year 1908. A full attendance is desired. D. Derbyshire, M.P., Hon. President, of Brockville, has kindly consented to act as chairman. Addresses will be delivered by John R. Dargavel, M.L.A., President, Elgin; Henry Glendinning, 1st Vice President, Manilla; George A. Gillett, Supt. Dairyine, Toronto; J. W. Mitchell, Supt. Dairy School, Kingston; G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor, Kingston; R. G. Murphy, Secretary, Brockville, and the Local Instructor for the District. 44b

Mrs. Isabell Slater, formerly Cressy, has been granted an absolute divorce from her husband, Henry A. Slater, by the Supreme Court at Niagara Co., N.Y., final judgement being granted Oct. 15th. She will now assume her maiden name, Harrison.

JOHN GEORGE MORROW.

Entered into rest at his home on Amherst Island, on Friday, October 25th, J. G. Morrow. He was a great sufferer for the past three years from dropsy, and was tapped over one hundred times, but bore his sufferings with great patience, and the end was peace. All that loving hands could do was done by his faithful wife and brother, who were with him to the last. Deceased was forty-two years and one month old. Six years ago he was married to Miss Harriet Blanchard, of Manvers, Ont., by the Rev. Mr. Allin, of Millbrook. He was a member of L. O. L. No. 482, and of the Independent Order of Foresters. He served as Township Councillor for three years, and was also a member of Christ church. Deceased, of which he was Warden. He was a militia he served a term of years, holding the office of Sergeant. Politics he was a staunch Conservative. The funeral was conducted from his late brother and mother-in-law, Rev. J. E. Lindsay, on Oct. 28th. Besides a wife he leaves to mourn his loss children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father. He also leaves his father and mother, two brothers, Messrs Matthew and Neil, of Emerald, and Mrs. J. D. Fraser, Kingston; and five brothers, Samuel, of Emerald; Chris., Vancouver; C., William, Thomas and Charles, at home. The pall-bearers were his own choice, three Orangemen and three Foresters, viz., W. H. Murray, R. A. Fowler, W. Glenney, Allen, W. P. McGinnes and R. Burleigh. The lodges he belonged to turned out in full strength and walked from his late residence to the church. The remains were placed in the vault at Glenwood cemetery for further interment.

A Boston schoolboy was tall, weak and sickly.

His arms were soft and flabby. He didn't have a strong muscle in his entire body.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1896, by Henry Holt & Co.

considered highly well bred of him to waive all question of his rank; with a nobleman as well known in the society of the day not only for his own merits, but as the husband of a very beautiful wife. In that duel Prince Rudolf received a severe wound and, recovering therefrom, was adroitly mangled off by the Muritanian ambassador, who had found him a pretty handful. The nobleman was not wounded in the duel; but, the morning being raw and damp, on the occasion of the meeting, he contracted a severe chill, and, failing to throw it off, he died some six months after the departure of Prince Rudolf, without having found leisure to adjust his relations with his wife, who after another two months bore an heir to the title and estates of the family of Burlesdon. This lady was the Countess Amelia, whose picture my sister-in-law wished to remove from the drawing room in Park lane and her husband, Lord James, fifth earl of Burlesdon and twenty-second Baron Rassendyll, both in the Baronage of England and a Knight of the Garter. As for Rudolf, he went back to Muritania, married a wife and ascended the throne, and in his progeny in the direct line have sat from then till this very hour—with one short interval. And, finally, if you walk through the picture galleries at Burlesdon, among the fifty portraits or so of the male members of the family you will find five or six, including that of the sixth earl, distinguished by long, sharp, aquiline noses and a quantity of dark red hair; these five or six have also blue eyes, whereas among the Rassendylls dark eyes are the commoner.

That is the explanation, and I am glad to have finished it. The blemishes on honorable lineage are a delicate subject, and certainly this heredity we hear so much about is the finest scandalmonger in the world; it laughs at discretion and writes strange entries between the lines of the "peerage."

It will be observed that my sister-in-law, with a want of logic that must have been peculiar to herself (since we are no longer allowed to lay it to the charge of her sex), treated my complexion almost as an offense for which I was responsible, hastening to assure me from that external sign inward qualities of which I protest my entire innocence, and this while I endeavored to sought to buttress by pointing to the uselessness of the life I had led. Well, be that as it may, I had spent a good deal of pleasure and a good deal of knowledge. I had been to a Gerday and a night at the Continent and spoke German as readily and perfectly as English; I was thoroughly at home in Italian and enough Spanish to swear by. I was, I believe, a strong, though by no means a fine, oarsman and a good shot. I could ride anything that had a back to sit on, and my head was as good as new as you could find, after a flaming cover. If you say that I ought to have spent my time in useful labor than out of court and fashionable society, I say, says that my parents had no business to leave me £2,000 a year and a roving disposition.

"The difference between you and Robert," said my sister-in-law, who often (bless her) speaks on a platform and offers still as if she were on one, "is that he recognizes the duties of his position and you only see the opportunities of yours."

"To a man of spirit, my dear Rose," I answered, "opportunities are duties."

"Nonsense!" said she, tossing her head. And after a moment she went on, "Now here's Sir Jacob Borrodaile offering you exactly what you might be equal to."

"A thousand thanks!" I murmured.

"He's to have an embassy in six months, and Robert says he is sure that he'll take you as an attaché. Do take it, Rudolf, to please me."

Now, when my sister-in-law puts the matter in that way, wrinkling her pretty brows, twisting her little hands and growing wistful in the eyes, all on account of an idle scamp like myself, for whom she has no natural responsibility, I am visited with compunction. Moreover, I thought it possible that I could pass the time in the position suggested with some tolerable amusement. Therefore I said:

"My dear sister, if in six months' time no unforeseen obstacle has arisen and Sir Jacob invites me, hang me if I don't go with Sir Jacob!"

"Oh, Rudolf, how good of you! I am glad!"

"Where's he going to?"

"He doesn't know yet, but it's sure to be a good embassy."

"Madam," said I, "for your sake I'll go if it's no more than a beggarly legation. Then I do a thing, I don't do it by halves."

My promise, then, was given, but six months are six months and seem an eternity, and inasmuch as they stretched between me and my prospective industry (I suppose attaches are industrious; but I know not, for I never became attache to Sir Jacob or to anybody else) I cast about for some desirable mode of spending them. And it occurred to me suddenly that I would visit Ruritania. It may seem strange that I had never visited that country yet, but my father (in spite of a sneaking fondness for the Elphberg blood, and him to give me, his second son, the famous Elphberg name of Rudolf) had always been averse to my going, and since his death my brother, prompted by Rose, had accepted the family tradition which taught that a wide berth was to be given to that country.

But the moment Ruritania had come into my head I was eaten up with curiosity to see it. After all, red hair and long noses are not confined to the house of Elphberg, and the story seemed a preposterously insufficient reason for debarring myself from acquaintance with a highly interesting and important kingdom, one which had played no small part in European history and might do the like again before the sway of a young and vigorous ruler, such as the new king was rumored to be. My determination was clinched by reading in the Times that Rudolf V. was to be crowned at Strelsau in the course of the next three weeks and that great magnificence was to mark the occasion. At once I made up my mind to be present and began my preparations. But inasmuch as it has never been my practice to furnish my relatives with an itinerary of my journeys, and in this case I anticipated opposition to my wishes, I gave out that I was going for a month in the Tyrol—an old haunt of mine—and propitiated Rose's wrath by declaring that I intended to study the political and social problems of the interesting community which dwells in that neighborhood.

"Perhaps," I hinted darkly, "there may be an outcome of the expedition."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Well," said I carelessly, "there seems a gap that might be filled by an exhaustive work on"—

"Oh, will you write a book?" she cried, clapping her hands. "That would be splendid, wouldn't it, Robert?"

"It's the best of introductions to political life nowadays," observed my brother, who has, by the way, introduced himself in this manner several times over. Burlesdon on "Ancient Theories and Modern Facts" and "The Ultimate Outcome," by a political student, are both works of recognized eminence.

"I believe you are right, Bob, my boy," said I.

"Now, promise you'll do it," said Rose earnestly.

"No; I won't promise, but if I find enough material I will."

"That's fair enough," said Robert.

"Oh, material doesn't matter!" she said, pouting.

But this time she could get no more than a qualified promise out of me. To tell the truth, I would have wagered a handsome sum that the story of my expedition that summer would stick no paper and spoil not a single pen. And that shows how little we know what the future holds, for here I am sitting in my unruffled rooms and writing, as I never thought to write, a book, though it will hardly serve as an introduction to political life and has not a jot to do with the Tyrol.

Neither would it, I fear, please Lady Burlesdon if I were to submit it to her critical eye—a step which I have no intention of taking.

CHAPTER II.

IT was a maxim of my Uncle William's that no man should pass through Paris without spending four-and-twenty hours there. He himself spent a ripe experience of the world, and I honored his advice by putting up for a day and a night at the Continental on my way to—the Tyrol. I called on George Featherly at the embassy, and we had a bit of dinner together at Durand's and afterward dropped in to the Opera, and after that we had a little supper, and after that we called on Bertram Bertrand, a versifier of some repute and Paris correspondent to the Critic. He had a very comfortable little suit of rooms, and we had some pleasant fellows smoking and talking. It struck me, however, that Bertram himself was absent and distrait, and when everybody except ourselves had gone I rallied him on his moping propensities. He fenced with me for awhile, but at last, flinging himself on a sofa, he exclaimed:

"Oh, you'll write the better poetry," said I by way of consolation.

He ruffled his hair with his hand and smoked furiously. George Featherly,

I saw her glances at me.

standing with his back to the mantelpiece, smiled unkindly.

"If it's the old affair," said he, "you may as well throw it up, Bert. She's leaving Paris tomorrow, I am told."

"I know that," snapped Bertram.

"Not that it would make any difference if she stayed," pursued the relentless George. "She lies higher than the paper tinge, my boy!"

"Hang her!" said Bertram.

"It would make it more interesting for me," I ventured to observe, "if I knew who you were talking about."

"Antoinette Mauban," said George.

"De Mauban," growled Bertram.

"Oho!" said I, passing by the question of the de. "You don't mean to say, Bert"—

"Don't you let me alone!"

"Where's she going to?" I asked, for the lady was something of a celebrity.

George jingled his money, smiled cruelly at poor Bertram and answered pleasantly:

"Nobody knows. By the way, Bert, I met a great man at her house the other night—at least about a month ago. Did you ever meet him—the Duke of Strelsau?"

"Yes, I did," growled Bertram.

"Was extremely accomplished man, I thought him."

It was not hard to see that George's references to the duke were intended to aggravate poor Bertram's sufferings, so that I drew the inference that the duke had distinguished Miss de Maubanby his attentions. She was a widow, rich, handsome and, according to reports, ambitious. It was quite possible that she, as George put it, was flying as high as a personage who was everything he could be short of reigning a strictly royal rank, for the duke was the son of the late king of Ruritania by a second and morganatic marriage and half brother to the new king. He had been his father's favorite, and it had occasioned some unfavorable comment when he had been created a duke, with a title derived from no less a city than the capital itself. His mother had been of good, but not exalted, birth.

"He's not in Paris now, is he?" I asked.

"Oh, no! He's gone back to be present at the king's coronation; a ceremony which, I should say, he'll not enjoy much. But, Bert, old man, don't despair! He won't marry the fair Antoinette—at least not unless another objection to nothing. Still, perhaps, he'll. He paused and added, with a laugh, "Royal attentions are hard to resist. You know that, don't you, Rudolf?"

"Confound you!" said I, and, rising, I left the hapless Bertram in George's hands and went home to bed.

The next day George Featherly went with me to the station, where I took a ticket for Dresden.

"Going to see the pictures?" asked George, with a grin.

George is an inveterate guesser, and had I told him that I was off to Ruritania the news would have been in London in three days and in Park lane in a week. I was therefore about to return an evasive answer when he waved my conscience by leaving me suddenly and darting across the platform. Following him with my eyes, I saw him lift his hat and accost a graceful, fashionably dressed woman who had just appeared from the booking office. She was perhaps a year or two over thirty, tall, dark and of rather full figure. As George talked I saw her glance at me, and my vanity was hurt by the thought that, muffled in a fur coat and a rug wrapper (for it was a chilly April day) and wearing a soft traveling hat pulled down to my eyes, I must be looking very far from my best. A moment later George rejoined me.

"You've got a charming traveling companion," he said. "That's poor Bert Bertram's goddess, Antoinette de Maubant, and, like you, she's going to Dresden—also, no doubt, to see the pictures. It's very queer, though, that she doesn't at present desire the honor of your acquaintance."

"I didn't ask..to be introduced," I observed, a little annoyed.

"Well, I offered to bring you to her, but she said, 'Another time.' Never mind, old fellow, perhaps there'll be a smash, and you'll have a chance of rescuing her and cutting out the Duke of Strelsau."

No smash, however, happened, either

SURE AND SAFE.

Baby's Own Tablets is the best medicine in the world for the minor ailments of little ones, and the safest. We do not ask you to take our word for this—we give you the experience of a Government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or harmful drug. It is equally good for the new born babe or the well grown child. It is a certain cure for all the minor ailments of childhood. Mrs. Andrew Tremblay, Sayabec, Que., says: "I have proved the value of Baby's Own Tablets as a cure for several of the troubles that affect young children, including skin disease, indigestion and teething troubles." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MEXICO'S VIGOROUS PRESIDENT.

This is not the only country which can lay claim to a strenuous President. Mexico has also stories to relate not unlike some which cluster about Mr. Roosevelt. President Diaz, when seventy years old, was one day chatting with some American tourists in the military college at Chapultepec, says his biographer, when he noticed a climbing rope hanging near him.

"I wonder if I could climb that rope?" he exclaimed, and, to the amazement of his guests, threw off his coat and went up the rope hand over hand to the top—a difficult exercise for a cadet.

When he came down he turned to the Americans, smiling, and said:

"Now you can say you have seen a man of seventy years do that."—Youth's Companion.

THE GIRL WHO SUCCEEDS.

The girl who succeeds in business is always neat in her dress and her work. No slipshod girl can hope to make herself a necessity in any office, factory or shop.

The girl who acts as if business bored her to death and who says she would give anything if she did not have to work downtown is the one that goes and comes in the business offices, and she is the one who is spelling out failure for herself.

The girl who is liked in the business world and becomes a fixture in the office or factory is seldom a very pretty girl, with pink cheeks, faultless complexion and naturally wavy hair.

But she is often an ordinary looking girl, who realizes that she must work for any promotion, while the pretty one will very often trust to her good looks to take the place of concentration and effort.

The girl who looks as if she really enjoyed her work, who looks out for the interests of her employer, the girl who wears a contented expression when she comes in the morning and who does not keep an eye on the clock as the hands approach the closing time, is the one who will get the most out of the business world and is the one who will always be appreciated by her employer.

George Randall was drowned at Kingston by falling into a dock.

Napthalene moth balls, so commonly used by good housewives to preserve clothing from moths and other insects, avere the subject of an attack this week at the Toronto Academy of Medicine, when two eminent physicians stated that the substance was not only useless as a preservative, but highly prejudicial to health. Moth balls they declared, give off oxide of carbon and poison the blood corpuscles. They cited several cases of suffocation caused by napthalene fumes. The poison is all the more dangerous as its effects are insidious and not easily perceived until too late.

THE CZAR'S THRONES.

It is difficult to say how many thrones the Russian Emperor has. The three chief ones are those at the Imperial Palace at Moscow, that at St. Petersburg and in the Kremlin at Moscow. This last was a present to the Czar Alexis in 1660 from the Shah of Persia. It is entirely made of gold, with plates of gold set with precious stones and alternating with plaques of ivory, chiselled in high relief. The date and date of the presentation are repeated in an inscription on the back of the throne. Just above are eliptening double headed eagles of Russia, with arms at either side supporting the Imperial crown. In the Imperial Palace at St. Petersburg the throne stands in an alcove of the marble throne room, with a wide circular canopy with thick velvet cords and deep fringes of gold embroidery. On the curtains behind are embroidered the arms of the Romanoffs surmounted by the crown, with curious shaped border all around. Three wide steps lead up to the throne.

THEY NEVER KNEW FAILURE —Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these Pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the Pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar coated.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys never get weak, then these organs always fail. Don't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is simply a makeshift. Use a prescription known to Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is prepared expressly for those weak inside nerves. Strengthen the nerves and you strengthen all. Dr. Shoop's Restorative does not act on Heart or Stomach or Kidneys—but on the nerves. See how quickly help will come. Sold by people you trust on nerves by Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Wm. Ross. Great Values in Carpets

About a Thousand Yards Reduced in Price

WE'VE COMMENCED TO ADJUST OUR CARPET STOCK

THESE PRICES TAKE EFFECT AT ONCE

Seems queer, doesn't it, to adjust stocks right in the heart of the season? But we are already planning for another season. In order to get full lines of patterns that we intend to feature, it is necessary to make a clearance of every discontinued pattern. Then again there are short lots that we cannot duplicate to sell at present prices, because all sorts of Carpets are higher. We could hold these and get resale prices, but it would take time and interfere with the regular business. Therefore we have marked the following Carpets away under regular values. The following descriptions and quantities are exact. If you are interested bring this advertisement along with you. Come to-day if you can. If not to-day, come to-morrow, or any day next week. The sooner the better for you.

Tapestry Carpets

90 yards Green Tapestry. Marked price, 55c., to-day's value, 65c. Clearing price, 40 cents yard.

204 yards Two-tone delf blue Balmoral. Regular price, 75 cents, to-day's value, 85 cents. Clearing price, 59 cents yard.

Hall and Stair Balmoral, small neat pattern, Fawn, Blue and Brown 24 yards hall and 104 yards stair, with border to match, our regular 85 cents, to-day's value 95 cents. Clearing price, 60 cents yard.

Cream, Fawn and Red Balmoral, 37½ yards, 95 cents for 69 cents.

Two shades Green and Wood Balmoral, 31½ yards in the piece. Our regular 95 cents yard. Clearing at 69 cents yard.

OUR OBJECT IN MARKING THESE CARPETS SO VERY LOW IS THAT WE MAY TAKE OUR LOSS QUICKLY AND NOT INTERFERE WITH REGULAR BUSINESS.

THERE SHOULD NOT BE A YARD OF THEM LEFT AT THE END OF NEXT WEEK. TO SAVE TIME BRING YOUR MEASUREMENTS.

Axminsters

Quantities of these are small.— 17 yards, Green, Blue and Gold, regular price, $1.20. To clear, 69 cents a yard.

17½ yards, Green and Red, regular, $1.20. To clear, 69 cents yard.

Velvets

These velvet ends represent qualities that will give excellent wear. You will notice that clearing prices are no more than for good Tapestry 26 yards Fawn and Old Rose, ma rked price, $1.25, to-day's actual value, $1.40. Clearing price, 90 cents yard.

73 yards body and 30 yards border, Red, Green and Cream, an extra quality for $1.25. Clear at 90 cents yard.

154 yards border, 10½ yards body Brown, Green and Fawn, regular, $1.40, for $1.00 yard.

Wiltons

Only one Wilton to include in this lot. It is a good one. To-day's value for it is $1.75 yard. The colors are Fawn, Red and Olive Green. It is marked $1.50 yard. To clear, $1.10. 43 yards body, 20½ border.

Brussels

Quantities here vary from 13 yards to 150 yards. You will notice that most of them have borders to match. There is not a carpet in the lot that can be replaced at original price. Some of the patterns are not as bright and snappy perhaps as you would like, but the extra value will make up for any shortage on that score.

19 yards Fawn Border, with 18½ yards body to match, $1.00 for 70 cents yard.

Olive Green, 18 yards body, 36½ border, $1.15 far 69 cents yard.

Green and Fawn Oriental, 11 yards body, 20½ border, $1.35 for $1.00.

Fawn and Rose, 21½ yards, $1.00 for 75 cents yard.

Green and Fawn, 17½ yards, 85 cents for 69 cents yard.

Brown, Fawn and Rose, 77 yards body, 27½ border, $1.00 for 75 cts.

Fawn, Brown and Green, 100 yards body, 15 yards border, $1.25 for 90 cents.

Fawn, Green and Rose, 39 yards body, 15½ border, $1.25 for 90 cts.

Green and Fawn, 61½ body, 20½ border, $1.25 for $1.00

Tan and Fawn, 21½ yds. body, 9½ border, $1.25 for 90 cents.

Green and Rose, 17 yds. body, $1.00 for 70 cents yard.

Olive, Red and Fawn, 13 yards, 90 cents for 69 cents.

Two tone Green, 17½ yards in two pieces, $1.25 for 85 cents.

13 yards Brown, Red and Fawn, 85 cents for 69 cents.

Red, Green and Rose, for hall and stairs, 61 yards stair, 15 yards hall, regular $1.15, for 90 cents yard.

Our Carpet salesmen will be pleased to show you any item on above list.

A GENUINE BARGAIN IN
Men's Elastic Ribbed Fleece Lined Underwear
Regular 75c for 59c a garment.

ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1st AND 2d.

We will place on Special Sale for Friday and Saturday morning, 10 dozen Men's Elastic Ribbed Fleece Lined Underwear, the regular price of which is 75 cents a garment, at

Sale Price 59c a Garment or $1.15 a Suit.

This Underwear is a very fine, unshrinkable goods, not extremely heavy, but made up well and will give extra good wear. It is the best made 75 cent garment we have yet seen.

Toques and Gloves and Mittens

Our stock of Toques for the Boys and Girls is already more than a quarter of it sold. We never saw the like of it at this time of the year, but the reason is not far to seek. The quality and especially good colors are the attraction. Better get yours before the color you want is gone.

KNIT GLOVES AND MITTENS FOR MEN AND BOYS.

Knit Gloves and Mitts are becoming more and more popular each year. We have them in Black, Blue, White, Fancy Browns and Greys. Prices, Boys', 35 cents and 40 cents. Men's, 50 cents.

Stanfield's Unshrinkable All-wool Underwear

We are the agents in Napanee for this now greatly celebrated Men's Underwear. There is no Underwear that we know of that is absolutely all wool, except "Stanfield's" that will not shrink. IT WILL NOT. Our belief in it is so positive that we will replace any garment that does shrink, with a new garment.

Every time it is washed it grows softer and more pliable, and will give the best of satisfaction in the wear.

Our price for the extra heavy weight is $1.50 a garment.

Heavy weight is $1.25 a garment.

All sizes in stock from 32 up to 44. We carry 38 different sizes in Men's Underwear, but this is the warmest.

Clothing With a Pedigree

... The Sanford Co.'s name is one that stands for all that is good and honest and fair priced in Clothing. We have been offered the same for every other make of Clothing in Canada, but we have found that when we wanted good honest value we are safer with Sanford's than with any other maker.

But you have not to look to Sanford's. It is The Robinson Co. who will make good to you any garment that you buy here that does not turn out to be satisfactory.

Business Suits, $5.00 to $17.50.
Winter weight Overcoats, $5.00 to $20.00.
Our Special Black Suits, $12.50.

Trousers, $1.25 to $3.50.
Regular Length Fall Overcoats, $5.00 to $15.00.
Cravenetted Overcoats, $5.00 to $15.00.

Specials for Coming Week

MEN'S SUITS—Reduced 20 to 30 per cent.—Just about seventy-five in all. Lines that we have discontinued and have only one of two of a kind. A great chance to get a suit at less than maker's price.

MEN'S OVERCOATS. — $7.50 for $5.00.— $10.00 for $7.50. We were short of Overcoats at these prices, $5.00 and $7.50, and could not get what we considered good values. We have therefore reduced some of the better coats to make price range.

BOYS' OVERCOATS. — We have never sold so many Overcoats for Boys and Children as we have this season. We have filled in with other lines, newer and more up-to-date in many cases so that we have a splendid range. However, we have a number of odd lots in each size that we have marked down for next week's selling. You will find the reductions are well worth your notice.

MEN'S FUR LINED OVERCOATS, also imitation Fur Lined, in many styles—all with Fur Collars. Prices $20.00, $22.50, $25.00 and up to $75.00. We will be pleased to show you these whether you wish to buy or not. It's always a pleasure to show goods.

MEN'S FUR COATS. —Coon, Wallaby, Wombat, Bulgarian Lamb, Russian Dog, Australian Coon. Our Fur Coats seem to sell themselves this year. We have not had any customer leave us. Values must be right. Prices $25.00 to $75.00.

MEN'S FUR COLLARS, at $3.50, $5.00 and up to $15.00 each. Adjustable, Satin Lined, Made right in every way.

JOHN MANION.

The whole community was startled by the shocking news on Wednesday, Oct. 23d, of the sudden death of Mr. John Manion, a well known and highly respected resident of the Township of Richmond. Deceased had been generally in the habit of retiring for a short time every day after dinner. So on Wednesday as usual he went up to his room to take a short nap, apparently in good health, and leaving word to be called at an appointed time. He did not get up when called, and so was left to finish out his sleep. In an hour from the time he stated he was found dead, and in the same position in which he always slept. So it was the decision of the spectators that he had departed while in his sweet sleep, without a struggle.

He was born in Odessa, and moved to Richmond when a mere child, where he remained the rest of his life. He married Miss Margaret McKeown, daughter of the late Patrick McKeown, J. P., of Centreville, who predeceased him about three years ago. He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving father, six children, who are as follows: Mrs. Edward O'Shaughnessy, of Newburgh Road; Mrs. Edward McDonald, of Richmond; Miss Maggie, of Rochester, N.Y.; Miss Ida, at home; also John and Edmund on the homestead. A sister, Mrs. James McAlpine, of Erinsville, and a brother, Thomas Manion, of Napanee, are also left to mourn the loss of an affectionate brother.

In religion he was a devoted member of the Roman Catholic church; he was a member of the League of the Sacred Heart and of the Altar Society. In politics he was a staunch reformer. A despatch was sent to his daughter Maggie, in Rochester, but she was unable to reach home in time for the funeral. To his family the news seemed most incredible owing to the good spirit and health he was in. He was a man of about sixty-seven years, of a genial and pleasant disposition, and with an open heart to assist any one. The poor as well as the rich were to him the same. No father could show any more love or respect to his family than he has, and his great consultations and proud feelings were centred in his family. Although his life was ever so busy and industrious, it was a pleasant one. For he had always a kind word to his wife and children and strove hard to promote their advancement in life. So it is hoped that the bereaved children will in vice versa reward him for the good examples and fondness he had for them.

Deceased possessed wonderful power of subsisting in life and nerve in conducting financial affairs which was observed by the large farming business he carried on.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Edward Bonis, Robert Hawkins, Daniel McAuley, William O'Hare, John Brady and Benjamin Denison. His remains were removed from his late residence on Saturday morning, at 9 o'clock, and proceeded to St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, followed by a large procession of carriages, where a requiem high mass was sung, followed by a solemn litheria for the departed soul. Rev. Father O'Connor officiated. After the funeral obsequies were held the remains were placed in the vault of the R. C. cemetery to await further interment. May his soul repose in peace.—Com.

WRECK ON C.P.R.

Son of Rev. W. H. Emsley Badly Scalded.

Regina, Oct. 30.—(Special.)—N. J. Robinson, express messenger, of Winnipeg, and Fireman Charles Britt were instantly killed and many were seriously injured, with dozens of people badly shaken up, in a wreck which occurred four miles east of Regina on the main line at six minutes to eight this morning.

The eastbound local, running a few minutes late, crashed headlong into a westbound freight. The two engines were driven through to the piston heads and the tenders were lifted clear off the rails. The baggage and express cars were badly smashed up, the latter being thrown from the rails and the latter completely telescoping the tender of the passenger engine. The cause of the wreck is not yet apparent, but it is plain that someone has blundered.

Mrs. Emsley on Wednesday night received a despatch stating that her second son, A. E. J., a mail clerk on the train, was badly scalded down his back from escaping steam, and otherwise seriously bruised. A later despatch indicated that his injuries would not likely be fatal, but that recovery would be slow.

Unfortunately Rev. Mr. Emsley is now in the back country, but word was sent to him at Cloyne, and he will probably return home this evening.

We and a host of friends extend our sincerest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Emsley and family.

MRS. W. H. SNIDER.

Belleville Intelligencer.

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. H. Snider was held on Friday afternoon at the home of her brother-in-law, Rev. Mr. Martin. The Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., conducted the service, assisted by Revs. R. H. Leitch, Dr. Gardiner, A. Campbell and C. M. Pope. Hannah Spencer, widow of the late W. H. Snider, was born in Richmond township, Dec. 31st, 1833, and died in Lansing, Mich., Oct. 22d, 1907. Her husband predeceased her by five months, and they lie side by side in the Belleville cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Snider were well-known in Newburgh, Napanee and Belleville, and are much missed in the vicinity of College Hill, where they resided for about twenty years. Mrs. Snider was twice married, first to Asa Schell, of New York State, by whom she had one daughter, who died in 1875. An only son, D. B. Snider, of Detroit, survives. He and her step-son, G. W. Snider, of Lansing, accompanied the remains to Belleville. The deceased was for many years a member of the Tabernacle Methodist Church, loved by her friends and esteemed by all who knew her.—Com.

—Robt. Lockridge, over eighty years of age, an inmate of the County jail, died on Wednesday night. In it not high time we had a house of refuge for such unfortunates?

—Sidney Harrison, a young Englishman, arrested in Napanee by Chief Graham, was taken back to Kingston and sentenced to six months in Central for stealing $25 from his employer.

—Thanksgiving service will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday, when the annual offering will be taken. Special music will also be provided for both services, and Mr. J. Fred. Tiller, Toronto, will render a solo in the evening.

—A full report of the first meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, in its new hall, held last Friday evening, will be found on page 6. Addresses by Mr. Clarance M. Warner, Mrs. Alexander Macdonald and Mr. Barlow Cumberland will be found most interesting.

—The Napanee Ladies' Musical Club was re-organized last week, and the directors are looking forward to a most successful season. The committee was disappointed in not securing the room they had asked for, but through the kindness of the Trustee Board of Trinity church, the opening meeting of the Club will be held in the school room of the church on Friday afternoon, November 1st, at 4 o'clock. The membership fee is $1.00, and all desiring to join will be made welcome.—Seety.

—Messrs. Dafoe and Waller have set to work in real earnest to fix up the canal. A number of the unused gates have been closed, the walls on the south side cemented, and the gates at present in use have been rebuilt with cement. The saving of water through leakage will be something enormous, fully 30 per cent. of it going to waste of late years.

THEIR MISTAKE.

"It is said," remarked the boarder who reads the patent medicine almanac statistics, "that only one woman in a thousand can sing."

"I guess that's about right," rejoined the fussy old bachelor, "but it's the other 999 who think they can that cause most of the trouble."

LEARN DRESSMAKING BY MAIL

In Your Spare Time at Home.

Or Take a Personal Course at School

To enable all to learn, we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school for a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment, from the simplest shirt waist suit to the most elaborate dress. The whole system is explained in a manner so clear that anyone of good intelligence can understand it. We have reduced to practice who cannot learn between the ages of 16 and 40. Our method teaches dressmaking as thoroughly as this course teaches it if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations, as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada, and excelled by none in any other country. Write at once, for particulars, as after one our rate one-third for 6 months. COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS.

The September yields in various associations afford some interesting and striking comparisons:

Cowansville, Que., 111 cows, 48,795 lbs. milk, 2139.1 lbs. fat.

Iona, Ont., 113 cows, 60,645 lbs. milk, 2675.0 lbs. fat.

Port Prosper, Que., 112 cows, 48,455 lbs. milk, 3394.8 lbs. fat.

From practically the same number of cows the owners at Port Prosper obtained 27,660 lbs. milk and 1165.7 lbs. fat more than did the owners at Cowansville. Butter-fat is particularly valuable now-a-days. It pays to feed well; it pays to feed the right cows well. Most of the farmers in the association at St. Prosper have been feeding soiling crops this summer. There is a first rate combined creamery and cheese factory in operation.

Some other average yields are:—
Ste. Emelie, Que., 24 Oct., 130 cows, 426 lbs. milk, 4.5 test, 19.4 lbs. fat.

Culloden, Ont., 6th Oct., 278 cows, 601 lbs. milk, 3.8 test, 22.8 lbs. fat.

New Glasgow, P.E.I., 1st Sept., 142 cows, 532 lbs. milk, 3.6 test, 19.6 lbs. fat.

Jonquieres, Que., 6th Oct., 132 cows, 452 lbs. milk, 4.4 test, 20.3 lbs. fat.

NOTABLE MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

OF SPECIAL VALUE TO MANY HERE IN NAPANEE.

One of the most notable discoveries and one that undoubtedly appeals more than anything else to many people here in Napanee is the combination of stomach remedies in the Mi-o-na treatment. This prescription has worked wonders, and there is now no excuse for anyone suffering with indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts specifically upon the muscles of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten, it also increases the flow of gastric juices, thus getting from the food the nourishment that is necessary for health and energy.

The symptoms of indigestion are numerous, such as distress after eating, flatulence, heartburn, sick headache, dizziness and irritability. These are all dispelled by a few doses of Mi-o-na which the trouble is cured, but just as surely in long standing and chronic cases if the treatment is followed for a reasonable length of time.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by T. B. Wallace under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it should fail to cure.

ORCHARDS YIELD BIG PROFITS

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Apple-growing is rapidly developing into Western New York's most profitable crop. This year the profits are especially large. According to the Batavia Daily News there are nearly 300,000 barrels of apples in Genesee county this fall, which at the prices prevailing there are worth close to $1,000,000. This is about $28 for every man, woman and child in the county.

The profit in raising apples is strengthening farm values perceptibly The News mentions a farm in Pavilion, which sold a few years ago for about $13,000, which will bear in between 9,000 and 10,000 barrels apples this year. Other apple orchards are coming to occupy the same position here as mortgage raisers as wheat and corn in Kansas and Nebraska.

The apple crop in Orleans, Wayne and Niagara counties is undoubtedly heavier than in Genesee county. Using the estimate there as a basis, Western New York, outside of Monroe county will produce more than 85,000,000 this fall from its apples. That sum will lift many mortgages and provide many comforts and luxuries for the rural communities. It would even buy a few big red automobiles if the farmers cared to make a splurge in that direction.

PRINTED BY REQUEST.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble in all kinds, it taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

THE PRINGLE-DETLOR CARTRIDGE ACTION.

Arden, October 25.—(To the Editor): I would like to make a few corrections, with reference to an article that appeared in the Whig on the 28th, respecting the case of the king vs. Benjamin F. Detlor, for stealing government ammunition, which I regret only came to my notice a short time ago. I have to say that your reporter gave a very much distorted version of the evidence given at the trial. In the first place, the report stated that when Detlor was placed under arrest he pleaded not guilty. This statement is false, for when Detlor was taken into custody, and brought before the justices of the peace, he voluntarily offered to pay for the stolen ammunition and all costs in the matter. In the next place the report says that restoration of the ammunition was accepted. This statement is incorrect, inasmuch as the ammunition was committed to jail by the justices who held the preliminary enquiry, bail being refused. Then again the report states that outside the conversation with Miller, about stealing the ammunition, there was no evidence against the accused. No mention is made of the evidence of J. Minor Williams, to whom the accused made a similar proposition, nor did the accused make this proposition in test Williams' friendship as well as my own, as stated in your report. The statement that I came to Mr. Detlor, to make up friends, I emphatically deny, as I never craved Detlor's friendship, and as to whether Detlor made the proposition to me to steal the ammunition, I am equally friendship or not, let the readers judge for themselves, as it certainly came out in the evidence at the trial that Detlor connived with parties to steal the ammunition, and the statement that the ammunition was stolen, and that Detlor handed Detlor's promises and after, it was so found by the county constable, with a search warrant, and in the county jail. Detlor had arrested Detlor, that Detlor voluntarily offered to pay for the stolen ammunition, and all costs connected thereto.—G. J. MILLER.

The Wing report of the trial was much condensed. On account of shortage of space the original report was cut down one-half. It was merely a brief resume of the evidence given. The remainder of it, in the Judge's chambers. All the evidence could not have been fairly boiled down, and contradicted one another. The judge seems to have dwelt upon the fact that outside of the conversation with Miller, that there was no evidence against Mr. Detlor. "I am satisfied that he is innocent," was the judge's concluding remark, and accordingly the charge was dismissed.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure each of them has dandruff in amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling of hairlessness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Send 10c. in silver or stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE.

J. W. Hambly, a hog dealer, of Napanee, has an action pending against German Wagar, a farmer of North Fredericksburgh, claiming $500 for slander. In the spring of 1907 the foundation of the G.T.R. freight sheds was renewed, and a loose stone got under the scales in such a way as to affect its balance. Hambly had a number of hogs weighed before the trouble was discovered, but immediately upon becoming aware of the fact adjusted the matter satisfactorily with the owners of the hogs. It is alleged that Wagar referred to the incident in slanderous statements. Wagar applied to Master-in-Chambers Cartwright for particulars of certain paragraphs of Hambly's statement of claim. His lordship has directed particulars, and Hambly will be debarred from giving evidence as to certain things.

THE GOLD MEDAL CONTEST.

The elocutionary contest held in Trinity church last Tuesday evening was one of the best ever held by the Epworth League. The large attendance was a proof that the popularity of these contests has not decreased in the slightest since they were started about three years ago. The gold medal was carried off by contestant No. 3, Miss Eleanor Baker, who is to be congratulated on her success. The other contestants should not feel discouraged after the manner in which they handled the difficult selections. The judges, Messrs. A. C. Baker, Dr. C. H. Wartman and W. J. Shannon, had a very difficult task in hand as the contest was keen throughout. Mr. Baker then the judges' report and announced the winning contestant. Rev. W. H. Emsley then addressed and presented the medal in his usual pleasant manner. While awaiting the judges' decision the audience received a rich treat. Mr. Emsley called on Miss Spink, of Wingham, for a recitation, who kindly responded. It was so thoroughly enjoyed by all that an encore was necessary. As the judges were not ready then, Mr. Emsley related a very interesting tale which held the attention of everyone, although the abrupt end was a decided disappointment. A good musical programme was also rendered as follows: Instrumental duet, Mrs. S. Lockridge and Miss Helen Williams; vocal solo, Mr. Chas. Fisher; instrumental solo, Miss Beatrice Baughan; vocal duet, Misses Cairns and Mansell; vocal duet, Messrs. Black and Stacey. The contestants and their selections: No. 1, Polly's Temperance Speech—Miss Ida Henderson; 2, A Sore Temptation—Miss Mabel Madden; 3, Sacrifice the Victory Spirit—Miss Eleanor Baker; 4, Two Feet—Mrs. Morgan Greene; 5, Failure—Miss Edna French. Mr. W. H. Stacey superintended the contest.

The Prisoner of Zenda

BY ANTHONY HOPE

(Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company.)

to me or to Mme. de Mauban. I can speak for her as confidently as for myself; for when, after a night's rest in Dresden, I continued my journey she got into the same train. Understanding that she wished to be let alone, I avoided her carefully, but I saw that she went the same way as I did to the very end of my journey, and I took opportunities of having a good look at her when I could do so unobserved.

As soon as we reached the Ruritanian frontier (where the old officer who presided over the custom house favored me with such a stare that I felt surer than before of my Elphberg nobility) I bought the papers and revelled in them news which affected my movements. For some reason which was not clearly explained and seemed to me something of a mystery the date of the coronation had been suddenly hastened, and the ceremony was to take place on the next day but one. The whole country seemed in a stir about it, and it was evident that Strelsau was thronged. Rooms were all let and hotels overflowing. There would be very little chance of my obtaining lodging, and I should certainly have to pay an exorbitant charge for it. I told my mind to stop at Zenda, a town fifty miles short of the capital and about ten from the frontier. The train reached there in the evening, and I spend the next day, Tuesday, wander over the hills, which were to be very fine, and in taking a view of the famous castle and go by the train to Strelsau on the Wednesday morning, returning at night to sleep at Zenda, accordingly at Zenda I got out, and the train passed where I stood on the platform I saw my friend, Mme. Mauban, in her place. Chance was going through to Strelsau, having more providence than I could claim for my movements. Certainly I used to think how surprised George Rassendyll would have been to know that he and I had been fellow travellers so long.

I was very kindly received at the hotel. It was really no more than an inn, and I told my host at night, and thanks to you, ladies, for your courtesy and pleasant conversation."

He spent dollage at Strelsau. The lodge's hero was the duke, for he knew under the late king's will he stood to the Zenda estates and of the which rose grandly on its steep at the end of the valley, a mile or on the inn. The old lady, indeed, had declined to express regret that Duke was not on the throne instead brother.

"I know Duke Michael," said she, "has always lived among us. Ev- Ruritanian knows Duke Michael, the king is almost as much beloved as seen so much abroad not one in shows him even by sight."

"God now," returned the one of the women, "they say he has shaved off his beard, so that no one at all shall know him."

"Shaved his beard!" exclaimed her elder. "Who says so?"

"Johan, the duke's keeper. He has the king's own."

Yes. The king, sir, is now at the hunting lodge in the forest

"Pray, sir, do you know our king?"

here; from here he goes to Strelsau to be crowned on Wednesday morning."

I was interested to hear this and made up my mind to walk next day in the direction of the lodge on the chance of coming across the king. The old lady ran on garrulously:

"Ah, how I wish he would stay at his shooting—that and wine (and one thing more are all he loves, they say—and suffer our duke to be crowned on Wednesday. That I wish, and I don't care who knows it."

"Hush, mother!" urged the daughters.

"Oh, there's many folks to think as I do!" cried the old woman stubbornly. Then she leaned back in my deep armchair and laughed at her zeal.

"For my part," said the younger and prettier of the two daughters, a fair, buxom, smiling wench, "I hate Black Michael! A red Elphberg for me, mother. The king, they say, is as red as a fox or as—"

And she laughed mischievously as she cast a glance at me and tossed her head at her sister's reproving face.

"Many a man has cursed this red hair before now," muttered the old lady, and I remembered James, fifth earl of Rutledan.

"But never a woman!" cried the girl. "Aye, and women, when it was too late," was the stern answer, reducing the girl to silence and blushes.

"How comes the king here?" I asked, to break an embarrassed silence. "Is the duke's land kept for him?"

"The duke invited him, sir, to rest here till Wednesday. The duke is at Strelsau, sir, making the king's reception."

"They're friends?"

"None better," was the old lady.

But my rosy damsel tossed her head again. She was not to be repressed for long, and she broke in again:

"Aye, they love one another as men do who want the same place and the same wife!"

The old woman glowered, but the last words pricked my curiosity, and I interposed before she could begin scolding:

"What, the same wife too! How's that, young lady?"

"All the world knows that Black Michael—well, then, other folk—would give his soul to marry his cousin, the Princess Flavia, and that she is to be the queen."

"Upon my word," said I, "I begin to be sorry for your duke. But if a man will be a younger son, why, he must have deep stakes handed on the door and a gruff voice asked in a threatening tone."

"Who talks of Black Michael' in his highness' duty?"

The girl gave a little shriek, half of fright—half, I think, of amusement.

"You'll not tell of me, Johann?" she said.

"See where your chatter leads," said the old lady.

The man who had spoken came forward.

"We have company, Johann," said the hostess, and the fellow plucked off his cap. A moment later he saw me, and to my amazement he started back a step, as though he had seen something wonderful.

"What ails you, Johann?" asked the old girl. "This is a gentleman on his travels, come to see the coronation."

The man had recovered himself, but he was staring at me with an intense, searching, almost fierce, gaze.

"Good evening to you," said I.

"Good evening, sir," he muttered, still scrutinizing me, and the merry girl began to laugh as she called:

"See, Johann, it is the color you love! He is come to see our king, if he's not the color we see most of here in Zenda."

"I crave your pardon, sir," stammered the fellow, with puzzled eyes. "I expected to see no one."

"Give him a glass to drink my health in, Johann. I'll bid you good night, and thanks to you, ladies, for your courtesy and pleasant conversation."

I spent a restless night in my bed and with a slight bow turned to the door. The young girl ran to light me on the way, and the man still held his place as I passed, his eyes still fixed on me. The moment I was by he started a step forward, asking:

"Pray, sir, do you know our king?"

"I never saw him," said I. "I hope to do so on Wednesday."

He said no more, but I felt his eyes following me till the door closed behind me. My sunny disposition was dashed, being over her shoulder at me as she preceded me upstairs, said:

"There's a blessing blaster Johann for one of your color, sir."

"He prefers yours, maybe?" I suggested.

"I meant, sir, in a man," she answered, with a coquettish glance.

"What," asked I, taking hold of the other side of the candlestick, "does color matter in a man?"

"Nay, but I love yours—it's the Elphberg red!"

"Color in a man," said I, "is a matter of no more moment than that!" and gave her something of no value.

"God send the kitchen door be shut!" said she.

"Amen!" said I and left her.

In fact, however, as I now know, color is sometimes of considerable moment to a man.

CHAPTER III.

I WAS not so unreasonable as to be prejudiced against the duke's keeper because he disliked my complexion, kind if I had been the most civil-obliging conduct (as it seemed to me to be) next morning would have disarmed me. Hearing that I was bound for Strelsau, he came to see me while I was breakfasting and told me that a sister of his, who had married well as a tradesman and lived in the capital, had invited him to occupy a room in her house. He had gladly accepted, but now found that his duties would not permit of his absence. He begged therefore that if such humble (though, as he added, clean and comfortable) lodgings would satisfy me I would take his place. He pledged his sister's acquiescence and urged the inconvenience and crowding to which I should be subject on my journeys to and from Strelsau the next day.

I accepted his offer without a moment's hesitation, and he went off to telegraph to his sister, while I packed up and prepared to take the next train. But I still hankered after the forest and the hunting lodge, and when my little maid told me that I could, by walking ten miles or so through the forest, find the railway at a roadside station I decided to send my luggage direct to the address which Johann gave me and to follow it myself to Strelsau myself. Johann had gone off and was not aware of the change in my plans, but as its only effect was to delay my arrival at his sister's for a few hours there was no reason for troubling to inform him of it. Doubtless the good lady would waste no anxiety on my account.

I took an early luncheon, and, having bidden kind entertainers adieu, set promising to return to them on my way home, I set out to climb the hill that led to the castle and thence to the forest of Zenda. Half an hour's leisurely walking brought me to the castle. It had been a fortress in old days, and the ancient keep was still in good preservation and very imposing. Behind it stood another portion of the original castle, and behind that again, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] closed round us, so that the crowd could not near me. We were leaving my quarters and entering Duke Michael's, and this action of the marshal's showed me more clearly than words what the state of feeling in the town must be. But if Fate made me a king the least I could do was to play the part handsomely.

"Why this change in our order, marshal?" said I.

The marshal bit his white mustache. "It is always prudent, sire," he murmured.

I drew rein.

"Let those in front ride on," said I, "till they are fifty yards ahead. But you, marshal, and Colonel Sapt and my friends will keep me. I have ridden fifty yards. And see that no one is nearer to me. I will have my people see that their king trusts them."

Sapt laid his hand on my arm. "I should him off." The marshal hesitated.

"Am I not understood?" said I, and, biting his mustache again, he gave the orders. I saw old Sapt smiling into his beard, but he shook his head at me. If I had been killed in open day in the streets of Strelsau Sapt's position would have been a difficult one.

Perhaps I ought to say that I was dressed, in the public eye, except my boots. I wore a silver helmet with gilt ornaments, and the broad ribbon of the Rose hooked over my left shoulder. I should be paying a poor compliment to the king if I did not set modesty aside and admit that I made a very fine figure. So the people thought, for, when I, riding alone, entered the dingy, sparsely clothed streets, the frowns of the old town there was first a murmur, then a cheer, and a woman, from a window above a cookshop, cried the old local saying:

"If he's red, he's right!" Whereat I laughed and took off my helmet that she might see that I was of the right color, and they cheered me again at that.

It was more interesting riding thus alone, for I heard the comments of the crowd.

"He looks paler than his wont," said one.

"You'd look pale if you lived as he did," was the highly disrespectful retort.

"He's a bigger man than I thought," said another.

"So he had a good jaw under that beard, after all," remarked a third.

"The pictures of him aren't handsome enough," declared a pretty girl, taking great care that I should hear. No doubt it was mere flattery.

But in spite of these signs of approval and interest the mass of the people received me in silence and with sullen looks, and my dear brother's portrait dripped and bled from the windows, which was in ironical sort of greeting to the king. I was quite glad that he had been so great a fool as to paint such a sign. He was a man of quick temper, and perhaps he would not have taken it so placidly as I did.

"If he's red, he's right!"

At last we were at the cathedral. Its great gray front, embellished with hundreds of statues and boasting a pair of the finest oak doors in Europe, rose for the first time before me, and the sudden sense of my audacity almost overcame me. Everything was in a mist as I dismounted. I saw the marshal and Sapt dimly, and dimly the throng of gorgeously robed priests who awaited me. And my eyes were still dim as I walked up the great nave with the pealing of the organ in my ears. I saw nothing of the brilliant throng that filled it; I hardly distinguished the stately figure of the cardinal as he rose from the archiepiscopal throne to greet me. Two faces only stood out side by side, and I looked here my eyes—the face of a girl, pale and lovely, surmounted by a crown of the glorious Elphberg hair; the face of a woman it is glorious, and the face of a man whose full blooded red cheeks, black hair and dark, deep eyes told me that at last I was in the presence of my brother, Black Michael. And when he saw me the red cheeks rose up duskily in a moment and his helmet fell with a clatter on the floor. Till that moment I feared that he had not realized that the king was in very truth come to Strelsau.

Of what followed next I remember nothing. I knelt before the altar and the cardinal anointed my head. Then I rose to my feet and stretched out my hand and took from him the crown of Ruritania and set it on my head, and I turned and faced the old oath of the king. Then the great organ pealed out again, the marshal bade the heralds proclaim me, and Rudolf V. was crowned king, of which imposing ceremony an excellent picture hangs now in my dining room. The portrait of the king is very good.

Then the lady with the pale face and the glorious hair, her train held by two pages, stepped from her place and came to where I stood. And a herald cried:

"Her royal highness the Princess Flavia!"

She courtesied low and put her hand under mine and raised my hand and kissed it. And for an instant I thought what I had best do. Then I drew her to me and kissed her twice on the cheek, and she blushed red, and —why, then his eminence the cardinal archbishop slipped in front of Black Michael and kissed my hand and presented me with a letter from the pope, the first and last which I have ever received from that exalted quarter!

And then came the Duke of Strelsau. His step trembled, I swear, and he looked to the right and to the left, as a man looks who thinks on flight, and his face was patched with red and white, and his hand shook so that it banged under mine, and I felt his fingers dry and parched. And I glanced at Sapt, who was smiling again into his beard, for he knew that the king was safe in that station of life to which I had been marvelously called, I took my dear Michael by both hands and drew him on the cheek. I think we were both glad when that was over!

But neither in the face of the princess nor in that of any other did I see the least doubt or questioning. Yet loud and clear the king stood side by side by duty in that station of life to which I had been marvelously called, I took my dear Michael by both hands and drew him on the cheek. I think we were both glad when that was over!

But neither in the face of the princess nor in that of any other did I see the least doubt or questioning. Yet loud and clear the king stood side by side by duty and beside me. And I could hear or at least on a little consideration. But neither they nor anyone else dreamed or imagined that I could be other than the king. So the likeness served, and for the time I stood there, feeling as weary and blase as though I had been a king all my life, and everybody kissed my hand, and the ambassadors paid me their respects, among them old Lord Topham, at whose house in Grosvenor square I had danced a score of times. As early as then, the old man was as blind as a bat and did not claim my acquaintance.

Then back we went through the streets to the palace, and I heard them cheering Black Michael, but he, Fritz told me, sat biting his nails in a man in a reverie, and even his own friends said that he should have made a bet ter show. It was in a sad case now, side by side with the Princess Flavia, and a rough fellow cried out:

"That's the king's wedding!" and as he spoke another struck him in the face, crying, "Long live Duke Michael!" and the princess fainted—it was an admirable tint—and looked straight in front of her.

Now I did in a difficulty, because I had forgotten to ask Sapt the state of my affections or how far matters had gone between the princess and myself. Frankly, had I been the king the further they had gone the better should I have been pleased, for I am not a slow blooded man, and I had not kissed Princess Flavia's cheek for nothing. These thoughts passed through my head; but, not being sure of my ground, I said nothing, and in a moment or two the princess, recovering her equanimity, turned to me.

"Do you know, Rudolf," said she, "you look somehow different today?"

The fact was not surprising, but the remark was disquieting.

"You look," she went on, "more like a man, and less like a boy. Forgive my careworn, and I declare you're thinner. Surely it's not possible that you've begun to take anything seriously?"

The princess seemed to hold of the king more than a passion that Lady Burlesdon held of me.

I braced myself up to the conversation.

"Would that please you?" I asked softly.

"Oh, you know my views," said she, turning her eyes away.

"Whatever pleases you I try to do," said I, and as I saw her smile and blush I thought that I was playing the king's hand very well for him. So I continued, and what I said was perfectly true.

"I assure you, my dear cousin, that nothing in my life has affected me more than the reception I have been greeted with today."

She smiled brightly, but in an instant grew grave again and whispered:

"Did you notice Michael?"

"Yes," said I, adding, "He wasn't enjoying himself."

"I know," said she, "and so, "You don't—indeed you don't—keep enough watch on him. You know"—

"I know," said I, "that he wants what I've got."

"Yes. Hush."

"Then, and I can't justify it, for I committed the king far beyond what I had a right to do—I suppose she carried me off my feet—I went on:

"And, perhaps, also something which I haven't got yet, but hope to win some day."

This was my answer—had I been the king I should have thought it encouraging:

"Haven't you enough responsibilities on you for one day, sire?"

Bang, bang! Blare, blare! We were at the palace. Guns were firing and trumpets blowing. Rows of lackeys stood waiting, and, handing the princess up the broad marble staircase, I took formal possession as a crowned king of the house fair due in a woman sat down at my own table, with my cousin on my right hand, on her other side Black Michael, and on the left the eminence the cardinal. Behind my chair stood Sapt, and at the end of the table was Fritz von Tarlenheim, down to the bottom his glass of champagne rather sooner than he decently should.

I understood what the king of Ruritania was doing.

CHAPTER VI.

We were in the king's dressing room—Fritz von Tarlenheim, Sapt and I. I flung myself wearily into an armchair. Sapt lit his pipe. He uttered no congratulations on the marvelous success of our wild risk, but his whole bearing was eloquent of satisfaction. The king's umph, aided perhaps by good wine, had made a new man of Fritz.

"Good day for you to remember!" he cried. "Gad, I'd like to be a king for twelve hours myself! But, Rassendyll, you haven't driven your heart too much into the part. I don't want her Black Michael looked blacker than ever. You and the princess had so much to say to one another."

"How beautiful she is!" I exclaimed.

"Never mind the woman," growled Sapt. "Are you ready to start?"

"Yes," said I, with a sigh.

It was 5 o'clock, and at 12 I should be no more than Rudolf Rassendyll. I remarked on it in a joking tone.

"You'll be lucky," observed Sapt grimly, "if you're not the late Rudolf Rassendyll. By heaven! I feel my head wabbling on my shoulders every minute you're in the city. Do you know, friend, that Michael has had news from Zenda? He went into a room alone to read it, for he can't quite trust his face. I'm ready," said I, this news making me none the more eager to linger.

Sapt sat down.

"I must write us an order to leave the city. Michael's governor, you know, and we must be prepared for hindrances. You must sign the order."

"My dear colonel, I've not been bred a forger!"

Out of his pocket Sapt produced a piece of paper.

"There's the king's signature," he said, "and here," he went on after another search in his pocket, "is some tracing paper. If you can't manage a 'Rudolf' in ten minutes, why—I can."

"Your education has been more comprehensive than mine," said I. "You write it."

And a very tolerable forgery did this versatile hero produce.

"Now, Fritz," said he, "for the king goes to bed. He is upset. No one to see him till 9 o'clock tomorrow. You understand—no one!"

"I understand," said Fritz.

"Michael may come and claim immediate audience. You'll answer that the princes of the blood are entitled to it."

"That'll annoy Michael," laughed Fritz.

"You quite understand?" asked Sapt again. "If the door of this room is opened while we are away you're not to be alive to tell us about it."

"I need no schooling, colonel," said Fritz, a bit haughtily.

"Here, wrap yourself in this big cloak," Sapt continued to me, "and put on this hat. It is my orderly rider with me to the shooting lodge tonight."

"There's an obstacle," I observed. "The king doesn't live that can carry me forty miles."

"Oh, yes, he does—two of him; one here, one at the lodge. Now are you ready?"

"I'm ready," said I.

Fritz held out his hand.

"In case," said he, and we shook hands heartily.

"Your last sentiment!" growled Sapt. "Come along."

He went to the door, but to a panel in the wall next it.

"In the old king's time," said he, "I knew this way well."

I followed him, and we walked, as I should estimate, near two hundred yards along a narrow passage. Then we came to a stout oak door. Sapt unlocked it. We passed through and found ourselves in a quiet street that ran along the back of the palace gardens. A man was waiting for us with two horses. One was a magnificent bay, up to any weight; the other a sturdy brown. Sapt signed to me to mount the bay. Without a word to the man we mounted and rode away. The town was full of orderly and merriment, but we took secluded ways. My cloak was wrapped over half my face; the capacious flat cap hid every lock of my telltale hair. By Sapt's directions I crouched on my saddle and rode with such a round back as I hope never to exhibit on a horse again. Down a long, narrow lane we went, meeting some wanderers and some roisterers, and as we rode we heard the cathedral bells still clanging out their welcome to the king. It was half-past 6 and still light. At last we came to the city wall and to a gate.

"Is your pass in order?" I whispered Sapt. "We must stop his mouth if he talks."

I put my hand on my revolver. Sapt smiled the doorkeeper. The stars fought for us. A little girl of fourteen stripped out.

"Please, sir, father's gone to see the king."

"He'd better have stayed here," said Sapt to me, grinning.

"But he said I wasn't to open the gate, sir."

"Did he, my dear?" said Sapt, dismounting. "Then give me the key."

The key was in the child's hand. Sapt gave her a crown.

"Here's a order from the king. Show it to your father. Orderly, open the gate."

I hopped down. Between us we rolled back the great gate, led our horses out and closed it again.

"I shall be sorry for the doorkeeper if Michael finds out that he wasn't there. Now, then, hd, for a canter. We mustn't go too fast while we're near the town."

Once, however, outside the city we ran little danger, for everybody else was inside merrymaking, and as the evening fell we quickened our pace, my splendid horse bounding along under me as though I had been a feather. It was a fine night, and presently the moon appeared. We talked little on the way and chiefly about the progress we were making.

"I wonder what the duke's dispatches told him," said I once.

"Are, I wonder!" responded Sapt.

We stopped for a draft of wine and to halt our horses, having half an hour thus. I dared not go into the inn and stayed with the horses in the stable. Then we went on and again and had covered some five and twenty miles when Sapt abruptly stopped.

"Hark!" he cried.

I listened. Away, far behind us, in the still of the evening—it was just 8—I could hear the beat of horses' hoofs. The wind, blowing strong behind us, carried the sound. I glanced at Sapt.

"Come on!" he cried and spurred his horse into a gallop. When we next paused to listen, the hoof beats were not audible, and we relaxed our pace. Then we heard them again. Sapt jumped down and laid his ear to the ground.

"There are two," he said. "They're only a mile behind. Thank God, the road curves in and out and the wind's our way."

We galloped on. We seemed to be holding our own. We had entered the outskirts of the forest of Zenda, and the trees, closing in behind us as the track sigged and zagged, prevented us seeing our pursuers and them from seeing us.

Another half hour brought us to a divide of the road. Sapt drew rein.

"To the right is our road," he said. "To left, to the castle. Each about eight miles. Get down."

"But they'll be on us!" I cried.

"Get down!" he repeated brusquely, and I obeyed.

The wood was dense up to the very edge of the road. We led our horses into the covert, bound handkerchiefs over their eyes and stood beside them.

"You want to see who they are?" I whispered.

"I see and where they're going," he answered.

I saw that his revolver was in his hand.

Nearer and nearer came the hoofs. The moon shone out now clear and full, and I could see the road at both sides. The ground was hard, and we had left no traces.

"Here they come!" whispered Sapt.

"It's the duke!"

"I thought so!" he answered.

It was the duke, and with him a burly fellow whom I knew well and who had cause to know me afterward —Max Holf, brother to Johann, the keeper, and body servant to his highness. They were up to us. The duke reined up. I saw Sapt's finger curl lovingly toward the trigger. I believe he would have given ten years of his life for a shot, and he could have picked off Black Michael as easily as I could a barn door fowl in a farmyard. I laid my hand on his arm. He nodded reassuringly. He was always ready to sacrifice inclination to duty.

"Which way?" asked Black Michael.

"To the castle, your highness," urged his companion. "There we shall learn the truth."

For an instant the duke hesitated.

"I thought I heard hoofs," said he.

"I think not, your highness."

"Why should we go to the lodge?"

"I fear a trap. If all is well, why go to the lodge? If not, it's a mare to trap us."

Suddenly the duke's horse neighed. In an instant we folded our cloaks close round our horses' heads and, holding them thus, covered the duke and his attendant with our revolvers. If they had found us they had been dead men or our prisoners.

Michael waited a moment longer. Then he cried:

"To Zenda then!" and, setting spurs to his horse, galloped on.

Sapt raised his weapon after him, and there was such an expression of wistful regret on his face that I had much ado not to burst out laughing.

For ten minutes we stayed where we were.

"You see," said Sapt, "they've sent him news that all is well."

"What does that mean?" I asked.

"God knows," said Sapt, frowning heavily. "But it's brought him from Strelsau in a rare puzzle."

Then we mounted and rode fast as our weary horses could for the fork to the ground. For those last eight miles we spoke no more. Our minds were full of apprehension. "All is well." What did it mean? Was all well with the king?

At last the lodge came in sight. Spurring our horses to a last gallop, we rode up to the gate. All was still and quiet. Not a soul could we see here. We dismounted in haste. Suddenly Sapt caught me by the arm.

"Look here!" he said, pointing to the ground.

I looked down. At my feet lay five or six silk handkerchiefs, torn and slashed and rent. I turned to him questioningly.

"They're what I tied the old woman up with," said he. "Fasten the horses and come along."

The handle of the door turned without resistance. We passed through the room which had been the scene of last night's bout. It was still strewn with the remnants of our meal and with empty bottles.

"Come in!" cried Sapt, whose marvelous composure had at last almost given way.

We rushed down the passage toward the cellars. The door of the coal cellar stood wide open.

"They found the old woman," said I.

"You might have known that from the handkerchiefs," he said.

Then we came opposite the door of the wine cellar. It was shut. It looked all in all respects as it had looked when we left it that morning.

"Come, it's all right," said I.

A loud oath from Sapt rang out. His face turned pale, and he pointed again at the floor. From under the door a red stain had spread over the floor of the passage and dried there. Sapt sank against the opposite wall. I tried the door. It was locked.

"Where's the key?" muttered Sapt.

"Where's the king?" I responded.

Sapt took out a flask and put it to his lips. I was back to the dining room and seized a bevvy poker from the fireplace. In my terror and excitement I rained blows on the door of the door, and I fired a cartridge into it. It gave way, and the door swung open.

"Give me a light," said I, but Sapt still leaned against the wall.

He was, of course, more moved than I, for he loved his master. Afraid for himself he was not—no more than I was; but him that—but to think what might lie in that dark cellar was enough to turn any man's face pale. I went myself and took a silver candlestick from the dining table and struck a light, and as I returned I felt the wax drip on my naked hand as the candle swayed to and fro, so that I cannot afford to despise Colonel Sapt for his agitation.

I came to the door of the cellar. The red stain, turning more and more to a dull brown, stretched inside. I walked two yards into the cellar and held the candle high above my head. I saw Rupert of Hentzau with his arms crawling on the walls; I saw, too, a couple of empty bottles lying on the floor, and then, away in the corner, I saw the body of a man lying flat on his back with his arms stretched wide and a crimson gash across his throat. I walked to him and knelt down beside him and commended to God the soul of a faithful man, for it was the body of Josef, the little servant, alias in guarding the king.

I felt a hand on my shoulder and, turning, saw Sapt's eyes, glaring and terror struck, beside me.

"The king! My God, the king!" he whispered hoarsely.

I threw the candle's gleam over every inch of the cellar.

"The king is not here," said I.

CHAPTER VII.

PUT my arm round Sapt's waist and supported him out of the cellar, drawing the battered door close after me. For ten minutes or more we sat silent in the dining room. Then old Sapt rubbed his knuckles into his eyes, gave one deep sigh and became himself again. As the clock on the mantelpiece struck 1 he stamped his foot on the floor, saying:

"They've got the king!"

"Yes," said I, "all's well!" as Black Michael's message had stated a moment it must have been for him when the royal salutes were fired at Strelsau this morning. "I wonder when he got the message?"

"It must have been sent in the morning," said Sapt. "They must have sent it before news of your arrival at Strelsau reached Zenda—I suppose Rupert came from Zenda."

"And he's carried it about all day!" I exclaimed. "Upon my honor, I'm not the man you know that's trying day! What did he think, Sapt?"

"What does that matter? What does he think, sir, now?"

I rose to my feet.

"We must get back," I said, "and rouse every soldier in Strelsau. We ought to be in pursuit of Michael before midday."

Old Sapt pulled his pipe and carefully lit it from the candle which glittered on the table.

"The king may be murdered while we sit and talk," he said.

Sapt smoked for a moment in silence.

"That cursed old woman!" he broke out. "If she hadn't attracted Rupert's attention somehow. I see the game. They came up to kidnap the king, and as I say—somehow they found him. If you hadn't gone to Strelsau, you and I and Fritz had been in heaven by now."

"And the king?"

"Who knows where the king is now?" he asked.

"Come; let's be off," said I. But he sat still, and suddenly he burst into one of his grating chuckles.

"By Jove, we've shaken up Black Michael!"

"Come, come!" I repeated impatiently.

"And we'll shake him up a bit more," he added, a cunning smile broadening on his wrinkled, weather beaten face and his teeth working on an end of his grizzled mustache. "Aye, lad, we'll go back to Strelsau. The king shall be in his capital again tomorrow."

"The king?"

"The crowned king!"

"You're mad!" I cried.

"If we go back and tell the trick we played, what would you give for our lives?"

"Just what they're worth," said I.

"And for the king's throne? Do you think that Black Michael and the people will enjoy being fooled as you've fooled them? Do you think they'll love a king who was too drunk to be crowned and sent a substitute to impersonate him?"

"He was drugged—and I'm no servant."

"Mine will be Black Michael's version."

He rose, came to me and laid his hand on my shoulder.

"Lad," he said, "if you play the man you may save the king yet. Go back and keep his throne warm for him."

"But the duke knows—the villains he has employed know"—

"Aye, but they aren't special" roared Sapt in grim triumph. "We've got 'em! How can they denounce you but they denounce themselves? This is not the king, because he kidnaped the king and murdered his servant' Bah! They are fast!"

The position dashed on me. Whether Michael knew me or not he could not speak. I was to be produced as the king. what could he do? And if he produced the king, where was he? For a moment I was carried away headlong, but in an instant the difficulties came strong upon me.

"I must be found out," I urged.

"Perhaps, but every hour's something. Above all, we must have a king in Strelsau or the city will be Michael's in four and twenty hours, and what would the king's life be worth—or his throne? Lad, you must do it!"

"Suppose they kill the king?"

"They'll kill him if you don't."

"Sapt, suppose they have killed the king?"

"Then, by heaven, you're as good an Elphberg as Black Michael. You shall reign in Ruritania. But I don't believe they have, nor will they kill his line. I swear it on the line. Will they kill him to put you in?"

It was a wild plan—wilder even and more desperate than the one I had already carried through, but as I listened to Sapt I saw the strong points in our game. And then I was a young man, and I loved action, and I was offered such a hand in such a game as perhaps never man played yet.

"I shall be found out," I said.

"Perhaps," said Sapt. "Come! To Strelsau! We shall be caught like rats in a trap if we stay here."

"I'll start, I'll try it!"

"Well played!" said he. "I hope they're left us the horses. I'll go and see."

"You must bury that poor fellow," said I.

"No time," said Sapt.

"I'll do it."

"Hang you!" he grinned. "I make you a king, and—well, do it. Go and fetch him while I look to the horses. He can't be very deep, but I doubt if he'll care about that. Poor Josef! He was an honest bit of a man."

He went out, and I went to the cellar. I raised poor Josef in my arms and bore him into the passage and thence toward the door of the house. Just inside it I left him, and, remembering that I must find spades for our task. At the instant Sapt came up.

"The horses are all right. There's the own brother to th one that brought here. But you may save yourself that job."

"I'll not go before he's buried."

"Yes, you will."

"Not I, Colonel Sapt, not for all Ruritania."

"You fool!" said he. "Come here."

He drew me to the door. The moon was sinking, but about 300 yards away, in the forest, I saw a fire. Presently, I made out a party of men. There were seven or eight of them. Four were on horseback, and the others were walking, and I saw that they carried long implements, which I guessed to be spades and mattocks, on their shoulders.

"They'll save you the trouble," said Sapt. "Come along."

He was right. The approaching party must beyond doubt be Duke Michael's men, come to remove the traces of their evil work. I hesitated no longer, but an irresistible desire seized me. Pointing to the corpse of poor little Josef, I said to Sapt:

"Colonel, we ought to strike a blow for him!"

"You'd like to give him some company, eh? But it's too risky work, your majesty."

"I must have a slap at 'em," said I. Sapt waavered.

"Well," said he, "it's not business, you know; but you've been a good boy and I've come to grief. Why, hang me, it'll save us a lot of thinking! I'll show you how to touch them."

He ostentatiously closed the open chink of the door. Then we retreated through the house and made our way to the back entrance. Here our horses were standing. A carriage drive swept all around the lodge.

"Revolver ready?" asked Sapt.

"No steel for me," said I.

"Gad, you're thirsty tonight," chuckled Sapt. "So be it."

We mounted, drawing our swords, and waited silently for a minute or two. Then we heard the tramp of men on the drive the other side of the house. They came to a stand and one cried:

"Now, then, fetch him out!"

"Now!" whispered Sapt.

Driving the spurs into our horses, we rushed at a gallop round the house, and in a moment we were among the ruffians. Sapt told me afterward that he killed a man, and I believe him, but I saw no more of him. With a cry I split the head of a fellow on a brown horse, and he fell to the ground. Then I found myself opposite a big man, and I was half conscious of another to my right. It was too warm to stay, and with a simultaneous action I drove my spurs into my horse again and my sword full into the big man's breast. His bullet whizzed past my ear—I could almost swear it touched it. I wrenched at the sword, but it would not come, and I dropped it and rushed after Sapt. Upon a level piece of road I saw Sapt's horse ahead. I waved my hand in farewell and dropped it a second time with a yell, for a bullet had grazed my finger and I felt the blood. Old Sapt turned round in the saddle. Some one fired again, but they had no rifles, and we were out of range. Sapt fell to laughing.

"That's about no use to you, with decent luck," said he. "Little Josef will have company."

"A big one, and a pert one, too," said I. My blood was up, and I rejoiced to have killed them.

"Well, a pleasant night's work to the rest!" said he. "I wonder if they noticed you."

"I'm sure they did. As I struck him I heard him cry, 'The king!'"

"Good, good! Oh, we'll give Black Michael some work before we're done!"

Pausing an instant, we made a bandage for my wounded finger, which was bleeding freely and ached severely, the bone being much bruised. Then we rode on, asking of our good horses all that was in them. The excitement of the fight and of our great escape died away, and we rode in gloomy silence. Day broke clear and cold. We found a farmer just up and made him give us sustenance for ourselves and our horses. I, feigning a toothache, muffled my face closely. Then ahead again till Strelsau lay before us. It was 8 o'clock or nearing 9, and the gates were all open, as they always were save when the duke's caprice or intrigues shut them. We rode in by the same way as we had come out the evening before, all four of us—the men and the horses—wearied and jaded. The streets were even quieter than when we had gone—every one was sleeping off last night's revelry—and we met hardly a soul till we reached the little area of the palace. There Sapt's old groom was waiting for us.

"Is all well, sir?" he asked.

"All's well," said Sapt, and the man, coming to see, took my hand to kiss.

"The king's hurt!" he cried.

"Not he," said I as I dismounted.

"I caught my finger in the door."

"Remember, silence!" said Sapt. "Ah, but, good Freyier, I do not need to tell you that."

The old fellow shrugged his shoulders.

"All young men like to ride abroad now and then—why not the king?" said he, and Sapt's laugh left his opinion of my qualities undisturbed.

"You should always trust a man," observed Sapt, fitting the key in the lock. "That's as far as you must."

We went in and reached the dressing room. Flinging open the door, we saw Fritz von Tarlenheim stretched, fully dressed, on the sofa. He seemed to have been sleeping, but our entry woke him at once. He leaped to his feet, gave one glance at me and with a joyful cry threw himself on his knees before me.

"Thank God, sire!" he cried. "Then you're safe!" he cried, stretching his hand up to catch hold of mine.

"Safe and sound," I answered.

"Then all is well," said he.

"Hang you!" he grinned. "I make you a king, and—well, do it. Go and fetch him while I look to the horses. He can't be very deep, but I doubt if he'll care about that. Poor Josef! He was an honest bit of a man."

He went out, and I went to the cellar. I raised poor Josef in my arms and bore him into the passage and thence toward the door of the house. Just inside it I left him, and, remembering that I must find spades for our task. At the instant Sapt came up.

"The horses are all right. There's the own brother to th one that brought here. But you may save yourself that job."

"I'll not go before he's buried."

"Yes, you will."

"Not I, Colonel Sapt, not for all Ruritania."

"You fool!" said he. "Come here."

He drew me to the door. The moon was sinking, but about 300 yards away, in the forest, I saw a fire. Presently, I made out a party of men. There were seven or eight of them. Four were on horseback, and the others were walking, and I saw that they carried long implements, which I guessed to be spades and mattocks, on their shoulders.

"They'll save you the trouble," said Sapt. "Come along."

He was right. The approaching party must beyond doubt be Duke Michael's men, come to remove the traces of their evil work. I hesitated no longer, but an irresistible desire seized me. Pointing to the corpse of poor little Josef, I said to Sapt:

"Colonel, we ought to strike a blow for him!"

"You'd like to give him some company, eh? But it's too risky work, your majesty."

"I must have a slap at 'em," said I. Sapt waavered.

"Well," said he, "it's not business, you know; but you've been a good boy and I've come to grief. Why, hang me, it'll save us a lot of thinking! I'll show you how to touch them."

He ostentatiously closed the open chink of the door. Then we retreated through the house and made our way to the back entrance. Here our horses were standing. A carriage drive swept all around the lodge.

"Revolver ready?" asked Sapt.

"No steel for me," said I.

"Gad, you're thirsty tonight," chuckled Sapt. "So be it."

We mounted, drawing our swords, and waited silently for a minute or two. Then we heard the tramp of men on the drive the other side of the house. They came to a stand and one cried:

"Now, then, fetch him out!"

"Now!" whispered Sapt.

Driving the spurs into our horses, we rushed at a gallop round the house, and in a moment we were among the ruffians. Sapt told me afterward that he killed a man, and I believe him, but I saw no more of him. With a cry I split the head of a fellow on a brown horse, and he fell to the ground. Then I found myself opposite a big man, and I was half conscious of another to my right. It was too warm to stay, and with a simultaneous action I drove my spurs into my horse again and my sword full into the big man's breast. His bullet whizzed past my ear—I could almost swear it touched it. I wrenched at the sword, but it would not come, and I dropped it and rushed after Sapt. Upon a level piece of road I saw Sapt's horse ahead. I waved my hand in farewell and dropped it a second time with a yell, for a bullet had grazed my finger and I felt the blood. Old Sapt turned round in the saddle. Some one fired again, but they had no rifles, and we were out of range. Sapt fell to laughing.

"That's about no use to you, with decent luck," said he. "Little Josef will have company."

"A big one, and a pert one, too," said I. My blood was up, and I rejoiced to have killed them.

"Well, a pleasant night's work to the rest!" said he. "I wonder if they noticed you."

"I'm sure they did. As I struck him I heard him cry, 'The king!'"

"Good, good! Oh, we'll give Black Michael some work before we're done!"

Pausing an instant, we made a bandage for my wounded finger, which was bleeding freely and ached severely, the bone being much bruised. Then we rode on, asking of our good horses all that was in them. The excitement of the fight and of our great escape died away, and we rode in gloomy silence. Day broke clear and cold. We found a farmer just up and made him give us sustenance for ourselves and our horses. I, feigning a toothache, muffled my face closely. Then ahead again till Strelsau lay before us. It was 8 o'clock or nearing 9, and the gates were all open, as they always were save when the duke's caprice or intrigues shut them. We rode in by the same way as we had come out the evening before, all four of us—the men and the horses—wearied and jaded. The streets were even quieter than when we had gone—every one was sleeping off last night's revelry—and we met hardly a soul till we reached the little area of the palace. There Sapt's old groom was waiting for us.

"Is all well, sir?" he asked.

"All's well," said Sapt, and the man, coming to see, took my hand to kiss.

"The king's hurt!" he cried.

"Not he," said I as I dismounted. "I caught my finger in the door."

"Remember, silence!" said Sapt. "Ah, but, good Freyier, I do not need to tell you that."

The old fellow shrugged his shoulders.

"All young men like to ride abroad now and then—why not the king?" said he, and Sapt's laugh left his opinion of my qualities undisturbed.

"You should always trust a man," observed Sapt, fitting the key in the lock. "That's as far as you must."

We went in and reached the dressing room. Flinging open the door, we saw Fritz von Tarlenheim stretched, fully dressed, on the sofa. He seemed to have been sleeping, but our entry woke him at once. He leaped to his feet, gave one glance at me and with a joyful cry threw himself on his knees before me.

"Thank God, sire!" he cried. "Then you're safe!" he cried, stretching his hand up to catch hold of mine.

"Safe and sound," I answered.

"It is he," she cried. "It is—the Graf Stréslau."

I smiled, but said nothing. She returned to her seat. For a few moments we sat in silence. The noise outside subsided, but I heard the tread feet in the anteroom. I began to talk on general subjects. This went on for some minutes. I wondered what had become of Michael, but it did not seem to be for me to interfere. All at once, to my great surprise, Phalia, banging her hands, naked in an agitated voice:

"Are you wise to make him angry?"

"What? Who? How am I making him angry?"

"Why, by keeping him waiting."

"My dear cousin, I don't want to keep him"—

"Well, then, is he to come in?"

"Of course, if you wish it."

She looked at me curiously.

"How funny you are," she said. "Of course no one could be answered while I was with you."

Here was a charming attribute of royalty.

"An excellent etiquette!" I cried. "But I had clean forgotten it, and if I were to remember some one else couldn't you be announced?"

"You know as well as I do. I could be, because I am of the blood." And she still looked puzzled.

"I never could remember all these silly rules," said I, rather feebly as I inwardly cursed Fritz for not posting me up. "But I'll repair my fault."

I jumped up, flung open the door and advanced into the anteroom. Michael was sitting at a table, a heavy frown on his face. Every one else was standing, save that impudent young dog Fritz, who was lounging easily in an armchair and flirting with the Countess Helga. He leaped up as I entered with a deferential elasticity that I must point to his former non-balance and no difficulty in understanding that the duke might not like you, Fritz.

I held out my hand. Michael took it, and I embraced him. Then I drew him with me into the inner room.

"Brother," I said, "if I had known you were here you should not have waited a moment before I asked the princess to permit me to bring you to her."

He flushed up, but coldly. The man had many qualities, but he could not hide his feelings. A mere stranger could have seen that he hated me and hated worse to see me with Princess Flavia. Yet I am persuaded that he tried to conceal both feelings and, further, that he tried to persuade me that he believed I was verily the king. I did not know, of course, but unless the king were an impostor, at once cleverer and more audacious than I think, and I began to think something of myself in that role), Michael could not believe that. And if he didn't, how he must have loathed paying me deference and hearing my "Michael" and my "Flavia."

"Your hand is hurt, sire," he observed, with concern.

"Yes; I was playing a game with a mongrel dog (I meant to stir him), and the mongrel, brother, such have uncertain tempers."

He smiled sourly, and his dark eyes fixed on me for a moment.

"But is there no danger from the bite?" cried Flavia anxiously.

"None that I know," said I. "If I gave him a chance to bite deeper, it would be different, cousin."

"I am sorely he has been destroyed?" said she.

"Not yet. We're waiting to see if his bite is harmful."

"And if it is?" asked Michael, with his sour smile.

"Why, he knocked on the head, brother," said I.

"You won't play with him any more?" urged Flavia.

"Perhaps I shall."

"He might bite again."

"Doubtless he'll try," said I, smiling.

Then, during Michael would say something which I must appear to resent (for, though I might show him my claws, I didn't seem to be full of favor), I began to compliment him on the magnificent condition of his regiment and the cordial loyal greeting to me on the day of my coronation. Thence I passed to a rapturous description of the shooting which he had had with me. But he rose suddenly to his feet. His temper was failing him, and as an excuse as readily as I myself. Flavia, as he reached the door he stopped, saying:

"Three friends of mine are very anxious to have the honor of being presented to you, sire. They are here in the antechamber."

I joined him directly, passing my arm through his. The boor in that guise—honey to me. We entered the antechamber in fraternal fashion. Michael led the way, and then came foreward.

"These gentlemen," said Michael, with a stately courtesy which, to do him justice, he could assume with perfect grace and ease, "are the loyalest subjects of a faithful people and your servants and are my very faithful and attached friends."

He has my grandsire as much as the first," said I, "I am very pleased to see them."

They came one by one and kissed my hand—De Gautet, a tall, lean fellow, with hair standing straight up and waxed moustaches; Berssuin, the Belgian, a portly man of middle height with a bald head, though he was not old, and Detchard, and last Count Detchard, a narrow faced fellow, with close cut fair hair and a bronzed complexion. He was a lanky made man, broad in the shoulders and slender in the hips. A good fighter, but a crooked customer I put him down for. I spoke to him in English, with a slight foreign accent, and I swear the fellow smiled, though he hid the smile in an instant.

I sprang to my feet. Sapt laid down his pipe.

"Antoinette de Mauban, by heaven!" I cried.

"How do you know?" asked Sapt.

I told him what I knew of the lady and how I knew it. He nodded.

"It's quite true that she's had a great row with Michael," said he thoughtfully.

"If she would, she could be useful," I said.

"I believe, though, that Michael wrote them letters."

"So do I, but I mean to know for certain. I shall go, Sapt."

"Then I shall go," said he.

"You may go as far as the gate."

"I shall go to the summer house."

"I'm hanged if you shall."

I rose and leaned my back against the mantelpiece.

"Sapt, I believe in that woman, and I shall go."

"I don't believe in any woman," said Sapt, "and you shan't go."

"I either go to the summer house or back to England," said I.

Sapt began to know exactly how far he could lead or drive and when he must follow.

"We're playing against time," I added. "Every day we leave the king where he is there is fresh risk. Every day I masquerade like this there is fresh risk. Sapt, we must play high. We must force the game."

"So be it," he said, with a sigh.

So out the story stands at half-past 11 that night Sapt and I mounted our horses. Fritz was again left on guard, our instructions not being communicated to him. It was a very dark night. I wore no sword, but I carried a revolver, a long knife and a heavy lantern. We arrived outside the gate. I dismounted. Sapt held out his hand.

"Good luck here," he said. "If I hear a shot, I'll—"

"Stay where you are. It's the king's only chance. You mustn't come to grief too."

"You're right, Lad. Good luck!"

I pressed the little gate. It yielded, and I found myself in a wild sort of shrubbery. There was a grass grown path, and, turning to the right as I had been bidden, I followed it cautiously. My lantern was closed, the revolver was in my hand. I heard not a sound. Presently a large dark object loomed out of the gloom ahead of me. It was the summer house. Reaching the steps, I mounted them and found myself confronted by a weak, rickety wooden door which hung upon the latch. I pushed it open and walked in. A woman flew to me and seized my hand.

"Shut the door," she whispered.

I obeyed and turned the light of my lantern upon her. She was in evening dress, arranged very sumptuously, and her dark striking beauty was marvellously enhanced by the glare of the bullseye. The summer house was a bare little room, furnished only with a couple of chairs and a small iron table, such as one sees in a tea garden or an open air cafe.

"Don't talk," she said. "We're no time. Listen! I know you, Mr. Rassendyll. I wrote that letter at the duke's orders."

"So I thought," said I.

"In twenty minutes three men will be here to kill you."

"Three—the three?"

"Yes. You must be gone by then. If not tonight you'll be killed"—

"Or they will."

"Listen, listen! When you're killed your body will be taken to a low quarter of the town. It will be found there. Michael will at once arrest all your friends—Colonel Sapt and Captain von Tarlenheim first—proclaim a state of siege in Strelsau and send a messenger to Zenda. The other three will murder the king in the castle, and the duke will proclaim either himself or the princess—both, if he is strong enough. Anyhow, he'll marry her and become king in fact and soon in name. Do you see?"

"It's a pretty plot. But why, madame, do you"—

"Say I'm a Christian—or say I'm jealous. My God, shall I see him marry her? Now go, but remember—this is what I have to tell you—that never by night or by day are you safe. Three men follow you as a guard. Is it not so? Well, three follow them. Michael's three are never 200 yards from you. Your life is not worth a moment if ever they find you alone. Now go. Stay—the gate will be guarded by now. Go down softly, go past the summer house, on for a hundred yards, and you'll find a ladder against the wall. Get over it and fly for your life."

"And you?" I asked.

"I have my game to play too. If he finds out what I have done, we shall meet again. If not, I may yet—but never mind. Go at once."

"But what will you tell him?"

"That you never came—that you saw through the trick."

I took her hand and kissed it.

"Madame," said I, "you have sex the king well tonight. Where is he in the castle?"

She sank her voice to a fearful whisper. I listened eagerly.

"Across the drawbridge you come to a heavy door. Behind that lies—hark! What's that?"

There were steps outside.

"They're coming! They're too soon! Heavens, they're too soon!" And she turned pale as death.

"They seem to me," said I, "to be in the nick of time."

I shut my lantern. See, there's a chink in the door. Can you see them?"

I put my eye to the chink. On the lowest step I saw three men. They had the cocked my revolver. Antoinette hastily laid her hand on mine.

"You may kill one," said she, "but what then?"

A voice came from outside—a voice that spoke perfect English.

"Mr. Rassendyll," it said.

I made no answer.

"We want to talk to you. Will you promise not to shoot till we're done?"

"Have I the pleasure of addressing Mr. Detchard?" I said.

"Never mind names."

"Then let mine alone."

"All right, sire. I've an offer for you."

I still had my eye to the chink. The three had mounted two steps more. Three revolvers pointed full at the door.

"Will you let us in? We pledge our honor to observe the truce."

"Don't trust them," whispered Antoinette.

"We can speak through the door," said I.

"But you might open it and fire," objected Detchard, "and, though we should finish you, you might finish one of us. Will you give your honor not to fire while we talk?"

"Don't trust them," whispered Antoinette again.

A sudden idea struck me. I considered it for a moment. It seemed feasible.

"I give my honor not to fire before you do," said I, "but I won't let you in. Stand outside and talk."

"That's sensible," he said.

The three mounted the last step and stood just outside the door. I laid my ear to the chink. I could hear no words, but Detchard's head was close to that of the taller of his companions (De Gautet, I guessed).

"H'm! Private communications," thought I. Then I said aloud:

"Well, gentlemen, what's the offer?"

"A safe conduct to the frontier and £50,000 English."

"No, no," whispered Antoinette in the lowest of whispers. "They are treacherous."

"That seems handsome," said I, reconsidering through the chink. They were all close together, just outside the door now.

I had probed the hearts of the ruffians, and I did not need Antoinette's warning. They meant to "rush" me as soon as I was engaged in talk.

"I must take a minute to consider," said I, and I thought I heard a laugh outside.

I turned to Antoinette.

"Stand up close to the wall out of the line of fire from the door," I whispered.

"What are you going to do?" she asked in fright.

"You'll see," said I.

I took up the little iron table. It was not very heavy for a man of my strength, and I held it by the legs. The top, protruding in front of me, made a complete screen for my head and body. I fastened my left hand into it. I put my belt and put my revolver in a handy pocket. Suddenly I saw the door move ever so slightly. Evidently it was the wind; perhaps it was a hand trying it outside.

I drew back as far as I could from the door, holding the table in the position that I have described. Then I called out:

"Gentlemen, I accept your offer, relying on your honor. If you will open the door"—

"Open it yourself," said Detchard.

"It opens outward," said I. "Stand back a little gentlemen, or I shall hit you when I open it."

I went and fumbled with the latch. Then I stole back to my place on tiptoe.

"I can't open it!" I cried. "The latch has caught."

"Put! I'll open it!" cried Detchard. "Nonsense, Bersonin! Why not? Are you afraid of one man?"

I smiled to myself. An instant later the door was flung back. The gleam of a lantern showed me the three close together outside, their revolvers leveled. With a shout I charged at my utmost pace across the summer house and through the doorway. Three shots rang out and battered into my shield. Another moment and I leaped out, and the table caught them full and square, and in a tumbling, swearing, struggling mass they and I and that brave table rolled down the steps of the summer house to the ground below. Antoinette de Mauban shrieked, but I rose to my feet, laughing aloud.

De Gautet and Bersonin lay like men stunned. Detchard was under the table, but as I rose he pushed it from him and fired again. I raised my revolver and took a snap shot. I heard him curse, and then I ran like a hare, laughing as I went, past the summer house and along by the wall. I heard steps behind me, and, turning round, I fired again for luck. The steps ceased.

"Please God," said I, "she told me the truth about the ladder," for the wall was high and topped with iron spikes.

Yes, there it was. I was up and over in a minute. Doubled back, I saw the horses. Then I heard a shot. He was Sapt. He had heard no and was hurrying to my help a week and flere's another problem for you. Do you find the answer?"

"Yes, I find it," he answered, frowning heavily. "But if you did that you'd have to fight me first—and kill me."

"Well, and if I had—is a score of men? I tell you, I could raise all Streisau on you in an hour and choke you with your ties—yes, your mud lies —in your mouth."

"It's gospel truth," he said. "Thanks to my advice, you could."

"I could marry the princess and send Michael and his brother together to"—

"I'm not denying it, Jad," said he.

"Then, in God's name," I cried, stretching out my hands to him, "let us go to Zenda and crush this Michael and bring the king back to his own again."

The old fellow stood and looked at me for full a minute.

"And the princess?" he said.

I bowed my head to meet my hands and crushed the rose between my fingers and my lips.

I felt his hand on my shoulder, and his voice sounded husky as he whispered low in my ear:

"Before God, you're the finest Elphberg of them all. But I have eaten of the king's bread, and I am the king's servant. Come, we will go to Zenda."

And I looked up and caught him by the hand. And the eyes of both of us were wet.

CHAPTER XI.

THE terrible temptation which was assailing me will now be understood. I would ad force Michael's hand that he must kill the king. I was in a position to bid him defiance and tighten my grasp on the crown—not for its own sake, but because the king of Illyritania was to wed the Princess Flavia. What of Sapt and Fritz? Ah, but a man cannot be held to write down in cold blood the wild and black thoughts that storm his brain when an uncontrolled passion has battered a breach for them. Yet, unless he sets up as a saint, he need not hate himself for them. He is employed, as it is humbly seems to me, in giving thanks that power to resist was vouchsafed to him than in fleeting ever wicked impulses which come unsought and exist an unwilling hospitality from the weakness of our nature.

It was a fine bright morning when I walked, unattended, to the princess' house, carrying a nosegay in my hand. Petley made excuses for love, and every attention that I paid her, while it riveted my own chains, bound closer to me the people of the great city, who worshiped her. I found Fritz's innamorata, the Countess Helga, gathering blooms in the garden for her mistress' wear and prevailed on her to take mine in their place. The girl was very with happiness, for Fritz, in his turn, had not wasted his evening and his dark shadow hung over his wooing save the hatred which the Duke of Strelsau was known to bear him.

"And that," she said, with a mischievous smile, "your majesty has made of no moment. Yes, I will take the flowers. Shall I tell you, sire, what is the first thing the princess does with them?"

We were talking on a broad terrace that ran along the side of the house, and a window above us heads stood open.

"Madame!" cried the countess merrily, and Flavia herself looked out. I bared my head and bowed. She wore a white gown, and her dark hair loosely gathered in a knot. She kissed her hand to me, crying:

"Bring the king up, Helga; I'll give him some coffee."

The countess, with a gay glance, led the way and took me through the morning room. And, left alone, we greeted one another as lovers are wont. Then the princess laid her petitions before me. One was from Black Michael—a most regrteous request that she would honor him by spending a day at his castle of Zenda, as had been her custom since a year in the summer, when the place and its gardens were in the height of their great beauty. I threw the letter down in disdain, and Flavia laughed at me. Then, growing grave again, she pointed to the other sheet.

"I don't know who that comes from," she said—"Read it."

I knew in a moment. There was no signature at all this time, but the handwriting was the same as that which had told me of the snare in the summer house. It was Antoinette de Mauban's.

I have no cause to love you (it ran), but God forbid that you should fall into the power of the duke. I am in the best intelne of his. Go nowhere without a large escort—a regiment is not too much to make you safe. Show this if you can to him who guards you best.

"Why doesn't it say 'the king?'" asked Flavia, leaning over my shoulder so that the people of her hair played on my neck. "Is it a hoax?"

"As you value life and more than life, my queen," I said, "obey it to the very letter. A regiment shall camp round your home today. See that you do not go out unless well guarded."

"An order, sire?" she asked, a little rebellious.

"Yes, an order, madame—if you love me."

"Ah!" she cried. And I could not but kiss her.

"You know who sent it?" she asked.

"I guess," said I. "It is from a good friend—and, I fear, an unhappy woman. You must be ill Flavia, and unable to go to Zenda. Make your excuses as cold and formal as you like."

"So you feel strong enough to anger Michael?" she said, with a proud smile.

"I'm strong enough for anything while you are safe," said I.

Soon I tore myself away from her, and then, without consulting Sapt, I took my way to the house of Marshal Strakenz. I had seen something of the old general, and I liked and trusted him. He was less enthusiastic, but I had learned by now that Sapt ever was pleased when he could do everything, and jealousy played some part in his views. As things were now, I had more work than Sapt and Fritz could manage, for they must come with me to Zenda, and I wanted a man to put in what I loved most in all the world and suffer me to set about my task of releasing the king with a quiet mind.

The marshal received me with most loyal kindness. To some extent I took him into my confidence. I charged him with the care of the princess, looking for full and sufficient help if I were to see I bade him let no one from her cousin the duke approach her unless he himself were there and a dozen of his men with him.

"You may be right, sire," said he, shaking his grey head sadly. "I have known better men than the duke do worse things than that for love."

I could quite appreciate the remark, but I said:

"There's something beside love, marshal. Love's for the heart. Is there nothing my brother might like for his head?"

"I pray that you wrong him, sire."

"Marshal, I'm leaving Strelsau for a few days. Every evening I will send a courier to you. If for three days none comes you will publish an order which I will give you depriving Duke Michael of the governorship of Strelsau and appointing you in his place. You will declare a state of siege. Then you will send word to Michael that you demand an audience of the king. You follow me?"

"Aye, sire."

"In twenty-four hours. If he does not produce the king"—I laid my hand on his knee—"then the king is dead, and you will proclaim the next heir. You know who that is?"

"The Princess Flavia."

"Ay's swear to me on your faith and honor and by the fear of the living God that you will stand by her to your death and kill that reptile and seat her where I sit now."

"On my faith and honor and by the fear of God I swear it!" and my Allmighty God preserve your majesty, for I think that you go on an errand of danger."

"I hope that no life more precious than mine may be demanded," said I, rising. Then I held out my hand to him.

"Farewell," I said, "in days to come you may be I hope not—that you will remember things of the man who speaks to you now. Let him be what he may and who he may, what say you of the manner in which he has borne himself as king in Strelsau?"

The old man, holding my hand, spoke to me, and to mine.

"I have known many of the Elphbergs," said he, "and I have seen you. And, happen what may, you have borne yourself as a wise king and a brave man—aye, and you have proved sometimes a gentleman and as gallant a lover as any that have been of the house."

"Be that as it may," said I, "when the time comes for that another sits on the throne of Ruritania."

"God send a far day, and may I not see it!" said he.

I was much moved, and the marshal's worn face twitched. I sat down and wrote my order.

"I can hardly yet write," said I, "My finger is stiff still."

"It is a fact, the first time that I had ventured to write more than a signature, and in spite of the pains I had taken to learn the king's hand I was not yet perfect in it.

"Indeed, sire," he said, "it differs a little in that your majesty writes it. It is unfortunate, for it may lead to a suspicion of forgery."

"Marshal," said I, with a laugh, "what use are the guns of Strelsau if they can't assuage a little suspicion?"

He smiled grimly and took the paper.

"Colonel Sapt and Fritz von Tarlenheim go with me," I continued.

"You go to seek the duke?" he asked in a low tone.

"Yes, the duke, and some one else of whom I have need and who is at Zenda," I replied.

"I wish I could go with you!" he cried, tugging at his white mustache. "I'd like to strike a blow for you and your crown."

"I leave you what is more than my life and more than my crown," said I, "because you are the man I trust more than all others in Ruritania."

"I will deliver her to you safe and sound," said he, "and, failing that, I will make her queen."

We parted, and I returned to the palace and told Sapt and Fritz what I had done. Sapt had a few faults to find and a few grumbles to utter. This was merely what I expected, for Sapt liked to be consulted beforehand, not informed afterwards. On the whole he approved of my plans, and his spirits rose high as the hour of action drew nearer and nearer. Fritz, too, was ready, though he, poor fellow, risked more than Sapt did, for he was a lover, and his happiness lay in the issue. Yet how I envied him! For the triumphant issue which would crown him with happiness and unite him to his mistress, the success for which we were bound to hope and strive and struggle, meant to me sorrow more certain and greater than if I were doomed to fall. He understood something of this, for when we were alone (save for old Sapt, who was smoking at the other end of the room) he passed his arm through mine, saying:

"It's hard for you. Don't think I don't trust you. I know you have nothing but true thoughts in your heart."

But I turned away from him, thankful that he could not see what my heart held, but only be witness to the deeds that my hands were to do.

Yet even he did not understand, for he had not dared to lift his eyes to the Princess Flavia, as I had lifted mine.

Our plans were now all made, even as we proceeded to carry them out, and as they will hereafter appear. The next morning we were to start on the hunting excursion. I had made all arrangements for being almost alone, and there was only one thing left to do—be hanged, the most heartbreaking. As evening fell I drove through the busy streets to Flavia's residence, a journey accomplished as I went and heartily cheered. I played my part, and made shift to look the happy lover. In spite of my depression I was almost amused at the coolness and delicate manner with which my sweet lover received me. She had heard that the king was leaving Strelsau on a hunting expedition.

"I regret that we cannot assume your majesty here in Strelsau," she said, tapping her foot lightly on the floor, "I would have offered you more entertainment, but I was foolish enough to think—"

"Well, what?" I asked, leaning over her.

"That for just a day or two after—after last night—you might be happy without much gayety," and she turned prettily from me as she spoke, I think, hope the bears will be more engrossing."

"I'm going after a very big bear," said I; and, because I could not help it, I began to play with her hair, but she turned her head away.

"Are you offended with me?" I asked in feigned surprise, for I could not resist teasing her a little. I had never seen her angry, and every fresh aspect of her was a delight to me.

"What right have I to be offended? True, you said last night that every hour away from me was wasted. But you're a big boar—that's a different thing!"

"Perhaps the boar will hunt me," I suggested. "Perhaps, Flavia, he'll catch me."

She made no answer.

"You are not touched even by that danger?"

Still she said nothing, and, I, stealing round, found her eyes full of tears.

"You are not in danger?"

Then she spoke very low:

"This is like what you used to be, but not like the king—the king I have come to love!"

With a sudden great groan I caught her to my breast.

"My darling," I cried, forgetting everything but her, "did you dream that I left you to any hazard or peril?"

"What then, Rudolf? Ah, do not go!"

OUR SPIRITUAL VISIONS

SOLEMN MOMENTS IN LIFE THAT CAN NEVER BE FORGOTTEN.

REVELATIONS OF THE UNSEEN

Secret Longings of the Heart — St. Paul's Experiences May Be Ours—Face to Face With Death—Divine Succour in Time of Need—Realization of God's Presence In Life's Crises.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Prederick Brown, at the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 29.—In this sermon the preacher shows that there are crises in every life which, like a revelation of the unseen, leave lessons that should never be ignored or forgotten. The text is 2 Corinthians xii, 3, "I knew such a man (whether in the body or out of the body I cannot tell: God knoweth)."

A friend of mine was some time ago reading that fascinating book of Frances Hodgson Burnett entitled "The One I Knew Best of All," and for a long time he did not know that the heroine of the book and the author were one. He followed the little girl step by step as she grew up until this fact suddenly dawned upon him.

"Why," he said, "Burnett is writing the history of her own life." The same fact is true about the autobiographies of Charles Dickens and Thomas Hughes and Lord Byron and Thomas De Quincy. When you read "David Copperfield" you are reading, with an added touch of romance, the autobiography of Charles Dickens. When you read "Tom Brown's School Days" you are reading Thomas Hughes' early life at Rugby. These authors may not have said in plain words that the characters of their autobiographies were reincarnations of themselves, but they were, just as the prominent men and women of social and political England of the Victorian era moved through the pages of Disraeli's novels masquerading under fictitious names.

Paul was writing the chapter of my text in the third person. There had been many criticisms made against the great apostle because, though he had never seen Jesus, he assumed authority as a teacher of Christianity.

If you examine Paul's writings carefully you will find that he uses the personal pronoun "I" far more than any other inspired writer in either the Old Testament or the New. His enemies claimed that he was a blatant, egotistical preacher. In order to disarm any unjust criticism he describes one of the most important experiences of his life, referring to it in the third person. He said, "I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body I cannot tell or whether out of the body I cannot tell; God knoweth) such an one caught up to the third heaven." Then Paul goes on and tells how this man, this third person, was to whom he had the most marvelous manifestation of God's power and love. All the time the Corinthians are reading this account methinks we can hear them whisper, "Paul is talking about his having to himself! Do you suppose Paul himself has been in paradise?" Indeed I have often thought that by putting this divine manifestation in the third person, Paul made it much more powerful than if he had directly spoken of it as having occurred to himself.

Now, it has always been a debatable question among theologians as to what this glorious revelation which came to Paul really was. It was evidently one of the important moments if not the supreme moment of Paul's life. There is no overwhelming reason why Paul could not tell whether he was in the flesh or out of the flesh when his spiritual revelation occurred. He could not tell whether his spirit was confined in the tenement of clay or whether his soul for a little while left his body and took its flight into the unknown world, as our souls will depart when the breath stops and the pulse ceases to beat and the physician pronounces us dead. Though many commentators may fly to tell us what this great revelation was, I am not going to try to explain it. I do not think Paul wanted us to know what it was.

Paul does not tell us that he saw or heard anything definite, unless as a man admitted to an audience chamber he was permitted to look upon the face of his king and hear the gracious words addressed to him. Paul says it was not lawful to utter what he saw and heard in the third heaven. We can understand that. There are some of our experiences, even about which we shrink from speaking. They are too solemn, too sacred, for utterance. But what an effect they have had on our lives! It would be useless for an infidel to tell some of us that there is no God; we know there is. There have been times when he had come so close to God that we have been conscious of his presence; we have felt him near us. In about these times, more common than we sometimes think, that I would speak to you this morning.

Your first great moment of spiritual ecstasy may have come to you as a reaction from an almost miraculous escape from death in early youth. I do not know what that escape was. Perhaps you were skating upon the ice on the river and suddenly you came too near an air-hole and in you went. You can feel the horror of that cold plunge now. You felt the awful current gripping you as though it was a fiend with a million hands and all those hands were trying to pull you under the ice. You remember well holding out your arms to save yourself and the ice breaking as you tried to lift yourself upon its smooth surface. Perhaps the miraculous escape from death came when you as a little boy were down by the old sawmill fishing. Your mother had forbidden you to go into a boat.

For some time you had been fishing on the shore. But the waters out in the middle of the pond did look so inviting. The huge logs did look so big. Then, with your bare feet, you began to wade out. Then, when you found just the right place to cast your line, you dropped it. But after the first nibble of a fish there was a huge log under your feet began to roll. Then the other logs began to force them in. Then those huge logs were closing over your head when your little companion lay down flat upon his stomach and extended to you his fishing pole and pulled you out just in time. Perhaps your narrow escape from death came in some awful runaway. You can see now the horses plunging and taking the bits in their teeth. You can hear the crash as the wagon is shattered against a tree. Or perhaps, like George Washington's mother, during a thunderstorm you had a friend struck dead before your eyes by the lightning. I do not know what that early escape was, but this I do know—there is hardly a man, woman or child who has not in youth come so near death as to almost feel the cold air of the tomb fanning the cheek. Why, even were so near death that just one step more and you would have been over the precipice or under the revolving wheel of the car. Now, what was the reason of that salvation to escape from death in the early days of your youth?

At first you began to tremble like an aspen leaf. You did not do this while you were looking into the yawning abyss of the grave. The grave opened and shut so quickly that you did not realize what was happening until all danger was past. Then the cold revulsion began to break out over you; your nerves began to twitch; you began to say: "O God, I never knew till now how near you could come to death and yet escape it. For what have you saved me?" And all through the succeeding days and nights the Lord Jesus Christ seemed to be standing by your side saying: "I have saved you that you might become my disciple. God gave you a divine revelation at that time just as Christ appeared unto Paul in the scene of my text, who he was taken up into the third heaven and knew not whether he was in the body or out of the body.

Many years ago a young Scotch girl gave her heart to God at one of Dwight Whitefield's meetings. Some one asked her, "My dear, is your heart changed?" and she answered: "Something I know is changed. It may be the world. It may be my heart. There is a great change somewhere. I am sure, for everything is different from what it once was." Then was it with you on that Sunday afternoon. You arose from your knees and gave your heart to God. Oh, Christ was so different. You were, like Cowper, filled with holy ecstasy because you were surrounded by a divine revelation. Yet, alas, alas, how many have descended from the heights of ou mounts of transfiguration!

But there was another wonderful manifestation in our spiritual lives. That was when we left home and started out in the world to make our own living. Somehow when we were in the old homestead we did not feel like the father who is swimming inside the life lines down at the great ocean. The waves seemed something more on toward the shore. You can see them begin to curve their graceful strength out at yonder sand bar. They came rolling on, higher and higher, until they overwhelm you with foam. Then they tumble down upon us and roll us upon the beach. We laugh and shout and make merry. Why? Because we feel there is no danger anywhere around. It is the first place, if the waters drag us out, there is the life saving man on the beach, with his crowds of strong arms and his long saving line attached to the belt. He will plunge in after us and friends on the shore will get hold of the line and pull both of us out from the angry surf.

How safe one feels when bathing in the ocean inside of the life lines! We feel a great deal like the little chickens playing around the barnyard, within call of the old mother hen. If anything goes wrong they can run and find shelter and safety under the mother's wing. So with the old homestead. There we always felt safe. If anything went wrong we could always run to father and mother and find help and strength. But when the father gave beyond the life lines that he is taking his life in his hands. And when some of the old homestead then we must meet our struggles and temptations alone.

Have you ever seen your feelings better portrayed than in the great picture Hovenden painted, called "The Breaking of Home Ties?" I have a fine copy of that picture hanging on my dining-room wall. Some people declare the mother's face is the most wonderful part of that picture and others draw your attention to the dog, others to the youngest sister or to the old grandmother's eyes. But the most suggestive part of that picture to me is the chin of the boy, who is about to leave home. As I stand and look at it my mind goes back to the days when I, too, left the old homestead. I can almost hear my mother say: "What are you going to do?" I can hear my father's voice as he says: "Have you settled on all the future plans, where shall I spend my evenings? Who will take care of me when I am old?" Why, I didn't like to go to that great big city, with all its temptations and its dangers, but there is no one among those city people whom I can call a friend. Ah, leaving home is the hardest thing in life. Then when you come to the point of closed your door for the first night in your little hall bedroom in the big city boarding house how much down and said the same prayer. And then what happened? You remember it as though it were yesterday. The room seemed to be filled with singing angels. I knew not whether you were in the body or out of the body, so wonderful was the celestial music. Then you heard your own same God who spoke unto Joshua appear to you and speak to you in your own child. As I was with thy father and mother, so will I be with thee if thou wilt keep my laws and my statutes." Was that vision a hallucination? You know it was not. You knew it was a glorious revelation from God. Then you trusted Christ and followed him just as promised to do when a young man on your first night in the great city? If you have not, then tell God how near you have come to death and ask again for a renewal of his divine manifestation.

But time passed on. You soon got used to your city life. The green country ways were all. The beautiful shoes were exchanged for the leather, the rough clothes of the village store for the fashionable productions of the expensive tailor. Then came your marriage. And that led on to another revelation, perhaps the best of all your lives. Would you have me describe the scene? There is not much of a scene to describe. For some reason you have been walking around with a care-worn, anxious expression. The approach of a great danger to your wife's life oppressed you. What if she should die? You remember you went about your work that God would spare her life. Then suddenly a gleam of glorious light shot through the dark clouds. After awhile the white-capped nurse came out of the room and said: "You can come now. But you must step very gently. Yes, the doctor says she is going to live." And you did approach her bedside. Hush! You must be very quiet, for a relapse would surely kill her."

Then the nurse led you into a darkened room. There you went over to a little crib and began to unroll a big bundle. She kept unrolling the bundle and unrolling it, and then you began to see little bit of a face. As the bundle kept unrolling you looked intently at the child. Then a strange divine personality seemed to hover around you and the still voice seemed to say: "Man, I have appeared unto Abraham, I have appeared unto earnest supplication as now. Knowest thou not that this little one is a gift from God? Keep your eyes on thy bone, flesh of thy flesh. Thou shalt provide for his material, moral, mental, spiritual and eternal welfare. What thou art he shall become. Thou hast the mold and to fashion as thou will. Will thou renew thy pledge and give thyself and thy little one to me in holy wedlock?" And you said, "O Christ, I will, I will, I will!" It was a glorious revelation from God. It was a holy pledge made to God. Have you kept that pledge? Have you not felt drawn to your knees aside saying you if you have kept it? Will you keep it now?

I think you have had one other revelation. In your home you had a saintly presence was that was a benediction to you and your family. Your widowed mother, worn and overcrowned as almost more than mortal, whose gentle words, like the message of an angel, calmed you in angry moments and consoled you in trouble, was called away. Why were you so rapt as you sat by her casket that day of her funeral? Were you caught up then into another zone? Were you able to speak by her casket you did not see me. You did not hear me. You looked and listened, standing by your self, you said, "O Christ, I will, I will, I will!" It was a glorious revelation from God. It was a holy pledge made to God. Have you kept that pledge? Have you not felt drawn to your knees aside saying you if you have kept it? Will you keep it now?

High - Class

When you go into a store you can tell at a glance what class it is.
Something about the atmosphere of the place; using the word figuratively, of course, seems to give you an impression of good taste or the reverse. That is why we are so willing to have this store judged by the Dress Goods Section.

HIGH-CLASS DRESS GOODS

are so different. They wear better, look new longer and have a superiority of appearance always over the low grade stuffs. Let us offer a few suggestions in materials for evening wear.

CHIFFON NINONS, CORDE-DE-CHINES,
CREPE-DE-CHINES, CORD EOLIENNES,
NINON VOILES, CHIFFON VOILES,
MARQUISETTES, FLORAL CHIFFONS.

We offer them in the season's newest colors, including Sea Holly Blue, Beeswing, Mignonette, Iris, Copenhagen, Voiling, Elephant Grey, Ebens, Marmont, etc., etc.
Write for samples; We send them anywhere.

WORTH SEEING.

The new Hat and Fur Store recently built in Kingston, by GEORGE MILLS & CO., who have been established in the hat and fur business there for thirty years, is drawing a lot of attention all over the Province. Their fur showrooms are said to be the finest in Ontario. This new store is to the same busy block as their old one, only eight doors further up, and directly opposite the Rankin House Hotel. They are anxious for all Napanee people to see it, regardless of whether they are prepared to buy or not.

WILTON.

The quarterly service which was to be held in the Methodist church on Sunday last has been postponed until Nov. 17th, owing to the inclemency of the weather.—The regular Union Thanksgiving service was rendered in the Presbyterian church by Rev. D. Williamson on Thursday morning.—Mrs. Luman Jordan, of Campbellford, is visiting friends here.—Miss Eva Gallagher, attending Kingston Model School, spent the holidays at home.—Mr. and Mrs. John Clow, Sydenham, were guests at James Lewis' recently.—Miss Lena Storms, attending Kingston Business College, spent Thanksgiving at home.—Mrs. John Carr and Mrs. Guy Simmons spent Thanksgiving as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Storms at Odessa.—Mrs. Grace Burt has returned home, having spent a few days with friends.—Percy Williams, attending Newburgh High School, spent Thanksgiving with his parents at the parsonage.—The Junior League gave a box social at the home of the President, Mrs. Fred. Storms, on Friday night last, which was quite well attended.—Mrs. R. Storms, having spent the past few months with her son, Mr. M. D. Storms, at Mississippi, has returned home.—Claude and Grace Asselstine, attending Napanee Collegiate, spent the holidays at home.—A number of our sportsmen are away on a deer hunt.—Hallowe'en was celebrated right royally by many. Different weird and mysterious looking groups were seen wending their silent 7 way from house to house. Those who were not masquerading were receiving callers, and all enjoyed the sport immensely. Wilton can congratulate itself on its boys and girls, for on the morning following Hallowe'en the all had on Thanksgiving, no damage having been done. We cordially invite our young people out again next Hallowe'en, but those who wish to be made one, please call at the parsonage before ten o'clock.

A tickling cough, from any cause, quickly stopped by Dr. Wood's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe. Mrs. Jas. Wood, Napanee, says everywhere to give it without hesitation to very young babies. The whooping-cough loses its severe leaves and tender stems of a long-growing Mountain-ash shrub, which the doctor has prepared for use. Simple a resinous plant exudes, that helps to heal aching lungs. It is contained in this shrub which "the doctor knows." Sacred Heart Cough Syrup. Take no other. For sale by T. B. Wallace.

NEWBURGH.

The first meeting of the High School Literary Society was held in the Hall on Wednesday of last week. Mr. John Bleecker occupied the chair, and promised that this year would see a great advance in the work of the Society. The first programme was a splendid one, and numbers in good style, under the leadership of Miss Beaman. Miss Grace Patterson read an excellent paper on Hallowe'en and its association. Mr. Percy Nesbit rendered a solo in his usual good style, and Dora Lockhart gave a reading, "A Thanksgiving Story." Miss Aleta Scriver and Marie Johnston, the pianists of the choir, favored them themselves credit in an instrumental duet. Miss Beaman was an appreciative critic. The Literary Society intend giving a concert this year in connection with the commencement exercises in December, practice for which will commence next week. They will seek to make this the outstanding event of the season.

Rev. Mr. Duke was to have been the preacher at the union Thanksgiving service in the Presbyterian church on Thursday, but accompanied Mrs. Duke to Perton on receipt of a telegram that morning, announcing the death of her father, Marmion Quinton. Quinton, Duke will have much sympathy from friends here in her bereavement. Rev. Mr. Gaudier supplied Mr. Duke's place at the Thanksgiving service, and preached an excellent sermon.

McGillivray Aylesworth, a matriculation candidate from Newburgh High, has not reported as successful, received notification that he was in the Junior Leaving, that he had fully passed the examination in the subjects he went down for, Thanksgiving day with friends at Brockville.

At the Seventh League meeting last week Miss McKim was elected President to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Clarke's removal from town. Miss Clarke read a very complete report of the recent convention in Napanee.

Next Saturday Newburgh High School will send two football teams to play the High School here, a junior game of it in the morning, and a senior game at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A good time is expected. The return games will be played a week later.

Mrs. P. D. Shorey and Miss Emma Shorey spent Thanksgiving at Camden.

Among the holiday visitors were, Miss Pearl Hawley, from Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby; Miss Thomas, of Huntsville, with her sister, of the H. S. staff; Miss Forester, of Bath, with Miss G. Nesbit; Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Harwood, Miss Harwood, Bert Harwood, Mrs. Graham, Kingston, at Miss A. Madden's; Miss Edie Welbanks, Napanee, and Mr. Geo. Welbanks, Warsaw, at home.

Mr. W. D. M. Shorey distinguished himself by winning his first debate at Osgoode Hall, as leader of the affirmative of the question, "Resolved that the Government should not bonus railways." We congratulate him on an auspicious beginning in his future career.

D. A. Nesbit, B.A., acted as chairman at a Thanksgiving Banquet and concert at Odessa.

Owing to the absence of Rev. Mr. Duke last Sunday morning the Quarterly Board Conference was not held in the Methodist church.

Mrs. Forsyth, of Belleville, is the guest of Miss Lena Madden, this week.

The village council had little but routine business before them on Monday evening. The auditors of the Municipal Court in the bridge case was read and the resolutions passed thereon. Mr. J. L. Whiting, K.C., and Mr. T. W. Nash, K.C., of Kingston, for the very able way in which they had served the interests of the village.

The monthly reports for October are being distributed to pupils of the High School this week for signature by parents. The term averages will be published at Christmas.

Mr. Frank Clancy left this week for Toronto, to accept a position in a drug store.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Messrs. Henry and Jay Switzer, Wilson's Crossing, last night, when about sixty of their friends and neighbors took possession of the house for a time. They were glad to be present but some mingled with joy under the circumstances. Lunch was served about 11 o'clock, after which the following address was read by Mr. Henry Switzer and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Switzer.—

Dear Friends,—We know we are friends and neighbors, have met here tonight to express our sympathy in the loss of a dear mother from your removal from our midst. We feel that we are losing in you one kind friend and neighbor, who has always been in the truest sense of the word, a Christian lady, and the memory of your many acts will ever be remembered by the writer, who has been favored by the mother's kind hand in many circumstances. Lunch was served about 12

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

"Well, it is hunting. I go to seek Michael in his lair."

She had turned very pale.

"Sho, you see, sweet, I was not so poor a lover as you thought me. I shall not be gone long."

"You will write to me, Rudolf?"

I was weak, but I could not say a word to stir suspicion in her.

"I'll send you all my heart every day," said I.

"And you'll run no danger?"

"None that I need not."

"And when will you be back? Ah, how long it will be!"

"When shall I be back?" I repeated. "Yes, yes! Don't be long, dear; don't be long. I shan't sleep while you're away."

"I don't know when I shall be back," said I.

"Soon, Rudolf, soon?"

"God knows, my darling. But it never"—

"Hush, hush!" and she pressed her lips to mine.

"If never," I whispered, "you must take my place. You'll be the only one of the house then. You must reign and not weep for me."

For a moment she drew herself up like a very queen.

"Yes, I will!" she said. "I will reign. I will do my part. Though all my life will be empty and my heart dead, yet I'll do it."

She leaned and, sinking against me again, wailed softly:

"Come soon! Come soon!"

Carried away, I cried loudly:

"As God lives, I—yes, I myself—will see you once more before I die!"

What do you mean?" she exclaimed, with wondering eyes, but I had no answer for her, and she gazed at me with her wondering eyes.

I dared not ask her to forget. She would have found it an insult. I could not tell her even who and what I was. She was weeping, and I had but to dry her tears.

"Indeed a man not come back to the loveliest lady in all the wide world?" said I. "A thousand Michaels should not keep a man from you!"

She clung to me a little comforted.

"You won't let Michael hurt you?"

"No, sweetheart."

"Or keep you from me?"

"No, sweetheart."

"Nor any one else?"

And again I answered:

"No, sweetheart."

Yet there was one—not Michael—who if he did not keep me from her and for whose life I was going forth to stake my own. And his figure—for the buoyant figure had met in the woods of Zenda; the dull, inert mass I had left in the cellar of the shooting lodge—seemed to rise, double shaped, before me and to come between us, thrusting itself in even where she lay, to exhaust, chilling, in my arms and yet looking up at me with those eyes that bore such love as I have never seen, and have not now: and will till the ground closes over me—and (who knows?) perhaps beyond.

CHAPTER XII.

ABOUT five miles from Zenda, on the opposite side from that on which the castle was situated, there lies a large tract of wood. It is rising ground, and in the centre of the demesne, on the top of the hill, stands a fine modern chateau, the property of a distant kinsman of Fritz's, the Count Stanislas von Tarlenheim. Count Stanislas himself was a student and a recluse. He seldom visited the house and had on Fritz's account very readily and courteously offered me its hospitality for myself and my party. This, then, was our destination, chosen ostensibly for the sake of the boar hunting (for the wood was carefully preserved, and boars, once common all over Ruritania, were still to be found there in considerable numbers), really because it brought us within a short distance of the Duke of Strelsau's more magnificent dwelling on the other side of the town. A large party of servants, with horses and luggage, started early in the morning. We followed at midday, traveling by train for thirty miles and then mounting our horses to ride the remaining distance to the chateau.

We were a gallant party. Bauer Sapt and Fritz. I was accompanied by ten gentlemen. Every one of them had been carefully chosen and no less carefully sounded by my two friends, and all were devotedly attached to the person of the king. They were told a part of the truth. The attempt on my life in the summer house was revealed to them as a spur to their loyalty and an indication against Michael. They were also informed that a friend of the king's was suspected to be forcibly confined within the castle of Zenda. His rescue was one of the objects of the expedition; but, it was added, the king's main desire was to carry into effect certain steps against that obnoxious brother, as to the precise nature of which they could not at present be further enlightened. Sound that the king commanded their services and would rely on their devotion when occasion arose to call for it. Young, well bred, brave and loyal, they asked no more. They were ready to prove their dutiful obedience and prayed for a fight as the best and most exhilarating mode of showing it.

Thus our force was shifted from Strelsau to the chateau of Tarlenheim and castle of Zenda which frowned at us across the valley. I tried to shift my thoughts also, to forget my love, and to bend all my energies to the task before me. It was to get the king out of the castle alive. Force was useless. In some trick by-th- chance, and I had already an inkling of what we must do. But I was terribly hampered by the publicity which attended my movements. Michael must know by now of my expedition, and I knew Michael to be supported by forces who would be blinded by the least or the slightest very well what the real quarry was. That, however, must be risked—that and all I had to stake with it. Even then myself, recognized that the present state of things had become unendurable.

And there was one thing that I dared to calculate on—not, as I now know, without warrant. It was that Black Michael would not believe that I meant well by the king. He could not appreciate—I will not say an honest man, for the thoughts of my own heart have been revealed—but a man acting honestly. His saw my opportunity as I had seen it, as Sapt had seen it; he knew the princess—my kind I discerned that a sneaking sort of pity for him invaded me), in his way he loved her. He would think that Sapt and Fritz could be bribed—as the bribe were large enough. Thinking thus, would he kill the king, my rival and his brother? Any, verily, that he would, with as little compunction as he would kill a rat. But he would kill the king himself first, if he could, and nothing but the certainty of being utterly damned by the release of the king's throat would be restorative to the throne would drive him to throw away the trump card which he held in reserve, to balk the supposed game of the impudent impostor Rassendyll. Musing on all this as I rode along, I took courage.

Michael knew of my coming sure enough. I had not been in the house two hours when an impassive footman arrived from him. He did not quite reach the impudence of sending my would be assassins, but he sent the other three of his famous Six—the three Ruritanian gentlemen, Lauenstein, Krafstein and Rupert Hentzau. A fine, strapping trio they were, splendidly horsed and admirably equipped. Young Rupert, who looked a born devil and could not have been more than twenty-two or twenty-three, took the lead and made us the neatest speech, wherein my devoted subject and loving brother, Michael of Strelsau, prayed me to permit him for not paying his addresses in person and, further, for not putting his castle at my disposal, the reason for both of these apparent derelictions being that he and several of his servants lay sick of scarlet fever and even in a very sad and also in a very infectious state. So declared young Rupert with an insolent smile on his curling upper lip and a toss of his thick hair—he was a handsome villain, and the gossip ran that many a lady had troubled her heart for him already.

"If my brother has scarlet fever," said I, "he has a worse complaint than he is wont to be, my lord. I trust he does not suffer."

"His is able to attend to his affairs, sire."

"I hope all beneath your roof are not sick. What of my good friends De Gautet, Bersac and—no Detchard? I heard the last had suffered a hurt."

Lauengram and Krafstein looked glum and sullen; not young Rupert's smile grew broader.

"He hopes soon to find a medicine for it, sire," he answered.

And I burst out laughing, for I knew what medicine Detchard longed for. It is called revenge.

"You will dine with us, gentlemen? I asked.

Young Rupert was profuse in apologies. They had urgent duties at the castle.

"Then," said I, with a wave of my hand, "to our next meeting, gentlemen. May it make us better acquainted."

"We will, pray your majesty for as early opportunity," quoth Rupert airily. And he strode past Sapt with such jeering scorn on his face that I saw the old fellow clinch his fist and scowl black as night.

For my part, if a man must needs be a knave I would have him a debonair knave, and I liked Rupert Hentzau better than his long faced, close eyed companions. It makes your sin no worse, as I conceive, to do it a la mode and stylishly.

Now, it was a curious thing that on this first night, instead of eating the excellent dinner my cooks had prepared for me, I must needs leave my gentlemen to eat it alone, under Sapt's presiding care, and ride myself with Fritz to the town of Zenda and a certain little inn that I knew of. There was little danger in the excursion. The evenings were long and light, and the road this side of Zenda well frequented. So off we rode, with a groom behind us. I muffled myself up in a big cloak.

"Fritz," said I as we entered the town, "I am not going to be guilty of all the sins."

"How do you know?" he asked.

"Because I've been there," said I. "Since"—he began.

"No. Before," said I.

"But they'll recognise you?"

"Wait and see what they will. Now don't argue, my good fellow, but listen to me. We're two gentlemen of the king's household in search of us has a toothache. The other will order a private room and dinner and, further, a bottle of the best wine for the sufferer. And if he be as clever a fellow as I take him for, the pretty girl and no other will wait on us."

"What if she won't?" objected Fritz.

"My dear Fritz," said I, "if she won't for you, she will for me."

We were at the inn. Nothing of me but my eyes were visible as I walked in. The landlady received us. Two minutes later my little friend (ever, I fear, on the lookout for such guests as might prove amusing) made her appearance. Dinner and the wine were ordered. I sat down in the private room. A minute later Fritz came in.

"She's coming," he said.

"If she were not, I should have to doubt the Countess Helga's taste."

She came in. I gave her time to set the wine down. I didn't want it drawn cork.

pod. Fritz poured out a glass and gave it to me.

"Is the gentleman in great pain?" the girl asked sympathetically.

"The gentleman is no worse than when he saw you last," said I, throwing away my cloak.

She started with a little shriek. Then she cried:

"It was the king, then! I told mother so the minute I saw his picture. Oh, sir, forgive me!"

"Faith, you gave me nothing that hurt much," said I.

"But the things we said!"

"I forgive them for the thing you did."

"I must go and tell mother."

"Stop," said I, assuming a graver air, "We are not here for sport tonight. Go and bring dinner, and not a word of the king being here."

She came back in a few minutes, looking grave, yet very curious.

"Well, how is Johann?" I asked, beginning my dinner.

"Oh, that fellow, sir—my lord king, I mean!"

"Sir will do, please. How is he?"

"We hardly see him now, sir?"

"And why not?"

"I told him he came too often, sir," said she, tossing her head.

"So he sadly out stays away?"

"Yes, sir."

"But you could bring him back?" I suggested, with a smile.

"Perhaps I could," said she.

"I know your powers, you see" said I, and she blushed with pleasure.

"It's not only that, sir, that keeps him away. He's very busy at the castle now."

"But there's no shooting on now."

"No, sir; but he's in charge of the horses."

"Johann turned horsemaster!"

The little girl was brimming over with gossip.

ASKS US TO PRINT IT.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These ingredients are liable to be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Cleveland morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease," but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly. Our druggists here say they will either supply these ingredients or make the mixture ready to take, if any of our readers so prefer.

According to Mr. J. J. Preston, M.P. for East Durham, the automobile is becoming a menace in the rural districts of Durham county, and the farmers are aroused on the part of a number of the automobilists' reckless disregard of the rules and regulations. It is charged that this has gone so far that some of the people are talking of organizing and taking extreme measures.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

My stock of Horse Blankets and Robes and Fur Coats is now complete, and I have the largest assortment ever shown in Napanee, and will be sold at very close prices to suit the times. Call and inspect my stock before purchasing and be convinced I can give you better value for your money than you can get elsewhere. Shop first door west of the Campbell House Block.

F. W. VANDUSEN.

An Irishman, who had started photography, went into a shop to purchase a small bottle in which to mix some of his solutions. Seeing one he wanted, he asked how much it would be.

"Well," said the druggist, "it will be five cents as it is, but if you want anything in it I won't charge you for the bottle."

"Faith, sorr," said Pat, "then put a cork in it!"

A would-be wit, meeting a fat farmer, said: "If all flesh is grass, you must be a load of hay."

The farmer replied: "I suspect I am, from the way asses are nibbling at me."

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Clara—Well, aunt, have your photographs come from Mr. Fastcalls? Miss Maryleva's daughter—Yes, and they went back, too, with a note expressing my opinion of his impudence.

"Gracious! What was it?"

"Why, on the back of every picture were these words—'The original of this is carefully preserved.'"

A PLEASANT MEDICINE—There are some pills which have no other purpose evidently than to beget painful internal disturbance in the patient, adding to his troubles and perplexities rather than diminishing them. One might as well swallow some corrosive material. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills have not this disagreeable and injurious property. They are easy to take, are not unpleasant to the taste, and their action is mild and soothing. A trial of them will prove this They offer peace to the dyspeptic.

"Well," replied the cynic, "judging from the photographs of eminent violinists it must keep the hair from falling out."

GREAT THINGS FROM LITTLE CAUSES GROW.—It takes very little to derange the stomach. The cause may be slight, a cold, something eaten or drunk, anxiety, worry, or some other simple cause. But if precautions be not taken, this simple cause may have most serious consequences. Many a chronically debilitated constitution to-day owes its destruction to simple causes not dealt with in time. Keep the digestive apparatus in healthy condition and all will be well. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are better than any other for the purpose.

When an awkward man lends a hand he's apt to put his foot in it.

Two painters were boasting about how they could paint. "Do you know," said one, "I painted a six-storied house round one day, and a beggar nearly broke his fingers trying to pick it up." "That's nothing to what I did," said the other. "I painted a leg of mutton on a stone, and when I was real-like that a dog ate half the stone before he found out his mistake."

SIP DISEASE IN THE BUD.—It is useless to eradicate a disease after it has become seated, therefore it is wise to take any ailment in its initial stages and by such remedies as are sufficient, stop it in its course. Cold is the commonest complaint of man, and when neglected leads to serious results. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will cure the severest cold of most violent cough.

INCREASING THE YIELD OF WHEAT.

The yield of winter wheat might be greatly increased, according to bulletin 82 of the Pennsylvania experiment station, if the farmers would plant better varieties, manage the soil better, use regular tillage and practice a good system of rotation.

Manure and good grass and clover seed should be plowed under for the crop and experiments made to determine if any commercial fertilizers are beneficial.

On the station farm a rotation of potatoes, oats, wheat, clover and timothy is followed one year. The land before being plowed for potatoes is manured at the rate of eight tons per acre with stable manure. Then follow the potatoes, using only 160 pounds of dissolved phosphate of rock at time of sowing the seed. Next follows the oats with another application of 160 pounds of dissolved rock. No fertilizers except the manure and the two dressings of phosphate are required for the rotation of four years, but the crops were large, average yields of wheat being over thirty-three bushels for all varieties, with the best yield from Dawson's Golden Chaff. This variety gave 38.23 bushels per acre. One Wonder gave 35.16 bushels and Red China 30.85 bushels. The length of straw in the different varieties seemed to have no relation to the yield, some of the kinds with short straw yielding the heaviest crops. It was found that winter wheat yielded best when sown neither very early nor very late; but on poor soils it should be sown earlier than on rich soils. The station farmers are convinced that the average yield of 16.17 bushels in Pennsylvania is far below the possible farm yield and nearly double the average by inexpensive methods.

On a recent railway journey Mrs. Brown called an M. P. to her assistance that her umbrella, which had been entrusted to the care of her husband, was missing. "Where's my umbrella?" she demanded. "I'm afraid I've forgotten it, my dear," meekly answered the M. P. "It must still be in the train." "In the train!" snorted the lady. "And do you think that the affairs of the nation are entrusted to a man who doesn't know enough to take care of a woman's umbrella!"

The following remarkable cures are convincing proof that Zam-Buk is the most wonderful skin cure known. Zam-Buk succeeds where all else fails, and no healer it complete without it.

ECZEMA.—Two years Mr. T. M. Hazen, 99 Delachaise Ave., Montreal, were plagued day and night with hands sore as a result of Eczema. 7 Doctors failed to cure him, but Zam-Buk prompted. Ask him about it.

CHRONIC ULCERS.—Mr. Jas. Bowes, of Tring Junction, Ont., says: "My body was made Mrs. Jane Shore of Virginal (Ont.), terribly bad with ulcers. Zam-Buk soon brought me cure for everything. I was suffered like Mrs. Bowes and received such a cure. Zam-Buk healing, you too would say as she did—"The like of Zam-Buk has not been seen since the Great Healer left the earth."

RHEUMATISM.—13 hospitals received Mr. Alfred Brown of Toronto, and 13 hospitals dismissed him as incurable. Zam-Buk healed him completely. Mr. Brown's address: 65 Bleecker Street, Toronto. He is now well and strong. See Mr. Brown's sworn declaration in "Zam-Buk Book of Prophets." A free sample will be sent you on application. Mention this advt.

THE BUSY SQUIRREL.

Acorns and nuts begin falling after the first frost, and then the squirrels have the task of hoarding their winter food. They must quit playing in the tree tops and work diligently for a month, or they will be hungry before summer comes again.

The squirrels have many hiding places. Sometimes the nuts are stored in the forks of tree limbs, and sometimes in the hollows. Often the squirrels dig holes in the ground several inches deep and bury grains of corn, nuts and acorns. This appears to be the method of storing food. When the nuts are placed in hollow trees they are likely to be disturbed by mice or other small poachers.

Many persons have wondered how the squirrels can find these hidden stores of food several months after their concealment, when the ground is covered with snow.

"I have seen squirrels dig through the snow into the earth and then appear with nuts in their mouths," a naturalist writes. It seems strange that they could remember the place where they buried the nuts. Perhaps it should be called instinct rather than memory. The sense of smell, no doubt, helps them to find the food they have buried."

Squirrels sometimes do not wait for the nuts to fall from the trees. If it is said, but sent them from the branches, so that they drop to the ground and ripen and are ready to be hidden away the sooner.

"Squirrels are provident naturalist, says "In walking through the early October woods one day, I came upon a place where the ground was thickly strewn with very large unopened chestnut burrs. On examination I found that every burr had been cut square off, about an inch of the stem adhering, and not one had been left on the tree."

"It was no accident, but design. Whose design? A squirrel's."

BEGGARS ORGANIZE.

According to the "British Medical Journal' the most remarkable trades union in the world is in the south of France. At a meeting of the lame, the halt and blind who solicit contributions from the public, recently held at Marseilles, an organization was formed for suppressing an unqualified practice, the encroachment of pretenders. At first blush it would appear that such a movement should be encouraged, for genuine, individual and allied, seems to be necessary and, perhaps it should be conducted systematically and in accordance with the up-to-date order of things generally. But our stock of fairly satisfactory excuses for holding on to our own and refusing to be charitable has never been any too large, surely, and if every mendicant who approaches presents a union card and we cannot excuse ourselves on the ground that we are doubtful about the genuineness of the cork legs or cuttleless eyes or amputated arms it is evident that the drainage of our resources will increase rather than diminish our present embarrassments. -- Providence, (R. I.) Journal.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.

EVERY SCHOOL SCHOLAR

In town and county will have equal chance of securing a competition published in next week's Beaver, if they read, remember, and Mrs. ——— letter to her reading in Parlor. ———

The football at Napanee and Bath last week was the best of the season. The game of several feet in the river and the ice-covering some over the falls on Sunday, neighbors having sort at the home of Mr. Dawson to welcome them, spent the evening in games, music, etc. We predict a pleasant future for Mr. and Mrs. Dawson among such congenial people.

Miss Nettie Huff, who has been spending the past four months in town with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Huff, left yesterday for her home in San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. R. J. Delong returned from Manitoba last Tuesday, where he spent the summer.

Mr. Robert Wade, St. Louis, Mo., came home yesterday to attend the funeral of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. R. Miller, Sunnyville, announce the engagement of their younger daughter, Eva, to Dr. Adam Mitchell, of North Battleford, Sask. The marriage will take place at Switzerville in December.

Messrs. W. T. Gibbard and M. C. Bogart are deer hunting in the rear of the county.

Mr. John N. Baker is running a fruit wagon this season between Mallbank and Napanee.

Chief Graham is spending a well earned vacation in the back country hunting deer.

Mrs. Wm. Hayes, Thomas st., is very ill, suffering from a complaint of the head and throat. She is in her seventy-eighth year. The doctor has slight hopes for her recovery.

Mrs. A. C. Warner, of Colebrook, and Mrs. Bell, of Rome, N.Y., spent a week in Napanee the guests of Mrs. James H. Young, returning home on Monday.

Dr. D. J. Smith, Napanee, and Mrs. Parks Smith, Tollinsburg, have today for a visit with friends in Tqtonto.

Mrs. S. D. Clark, of Cherry Valley, who has been visiting Mrs. Warner, left so, for a few days, left on Wednesday for a visit with friends in Newburgh and Switzerville.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Quai spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phippen, Conway.

Mrs. John Ochas spent Thanksgiving day with relatives and friends in Kingston.

Mr. Watson Neville, visiting his brother, Mr. C. W. Neville, Switzerville, was in town on Tuesday last.

Mrs. Black, Stirling, spent the week-end in town with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Black.

Master Cecil Wilson is able to be out again, after an attack of typhoid fever.

Mr. Geo. Proctor went to Brighton last Thursday to spend Thanksgiving with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lewis spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. P. Ward, and Mrs. J. Hammond, in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wales and family spent Thanksgiving with her parents in Deseronto.

Mrs. R. R. Coon, of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived in town one week ago, attending the bedside and funeral of her brother, the late Orin Vanalstyne.

Mrs. Henry Bill Kelly, her little son, Arthur, and Miss McGown, of Toronto, are spending a month with Mrs. W. A. Baker, before going to spend Xmas in Iowa, after which they intend spending the remainder of the winter in Bermuda.

Mrs. Wm. D. VanAlstyne and daughter spent Thanksgiving at Mr. Jacob Vanalstyne's, Palace Road.

Mr. James Dorland and wife, visiting his parents at Dorland, returned to Chicago last Saturday.

Mr. E. S. Benjamin, Yarker, was in Napanee on Tuesday, en route to Toronto.

Mr. W. S. Norris, of the Bell Telephone Co., spent Thanksgiving day with friends in Brighton.

Mr. C. Wareham also sailed from Montreal for London yesterday.

Personals

It is the desire of the publisher that all should take an interest in this column of The Beaver. If you have friends staying with you, or are going away for a trip, leave word or send it on a post card.

(Additional personals page 2.)

Mrs. W. H. Meagher spent Thanksgiving week with friends in Lindsay.

Miss Hattie Mastin spent Thanksgiving day in Belleville, the guest of Miss Myrtle Earle.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Morden, Picton, spent from Saturday till Tuesday with the Misses Aylsworth, Robert st.

The marriage of Miss Annie Marsh, eldest daughter of the late Peter Marsh, of Napanee, Ont., and Ernest W. Spencer, formerly of Kingston, Ont., was solemnized on Saturday, Nov. 2d, by the Rev. Father Crowe, in Holy Trinity church, Detroit, Mich.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Nellie Root, of Toronto, (formerly of Belleville), to Mr. W. J. Wright, of Grand Rapids, Mich., to take place at the residence of her parents, 119 D'Arcy st., Toronto, on Thursday evening, 28th Nov. MRS. MARY TREMAINE WARD.

Who died on Saturday, Nov. 2d, 1907, at the residence of her son, Dr. G. C. Tremaine Ward, which has been her home for the past twenty years, was born in Rodman, N. Y., in 1816.

She came to Waterloo, now named Cataraqui, when a young woman, as assistant teacher in her brother's school, afterwards marrying John Ferris Ward at that place, whose death occurred nine years ago. Her father, Reuben Tremaine, was a Congregational preacher, and the family he brought up according to the strict Puritan traditions. Her husband was a member of The Society of Friends. The children, three boys and two girls, are all living, inheriting vigorous constitutions.

Mrs. Ward was a woman of unusual intellectual powers, a student and lover of nature, and always taking keen interest in current affairs, reading the daily papers until the last few weeks. She kept in touch with the friends of early life, by correspondence and visits, until, when dropping off one by one, she was nearly the last. One venerable townsman, Mr. John Gibbard, was a schoolmate in Rodman.

Her firmly established Christian faith enabled her to meet death in the same calm, cheerful spirit that had upheld her in the inevitable trials of life. She retained her mental faculties until the last. Her physical death was of the gentlest, like the dying away of a summer breeze.

Her practical sense in every day affairs and unfailing faith in God's providence, and her artistic nature, were elements of character which come her to be held in loving remembrance.

SPERCHLESS AND PARALYZED. — "I was a terrible disease of the heart," writes Mrs. Wm. Graham, Sydenham, N.B., "and suffered terribly. I was often speechless and partially paralyzed. Doctor's medicine was no use for me. Heart pills gave me relief, and before I finished one box I was able to go about my work. I am a well woman." For sale by T. B. Wallbridge.

Dress Goods Popularity.

When you buy Robinson's dress goods you need not worry over quality, service or tailoring. We have attended to all of these things for you. At our dress goods counters we at all times endeavor to show you the newest and most stylish materials. It matters not for what occasion you require a garment we are able to talk style to you, and lend you the required assistance in your selections.

THE NEW FILET LACE is the latest introduction at our dress goods counter. This novelty in lace goods has the square mesh. It is the popular material for separate waists and evening gowns. The colorings are black, sky, pink, tan, brown, butter. Width is 45 inches. Price, $1.25 yd. "Filet" mesh is the keynote that gives character to the new designs of lace and embroidery that will be used all through 1908.

Women's Tailored Costumes Ready-to-wear.

We would like to show you our Women's Tailored Costumes. They are perfect fitting, well made and all accepted styles. If you are interested just take an extra look at the way the garments are built. The stitching pressing and shaping shows the work of the skilled tailor. To get a still better impression of them just try them on. The good style of them will do the rest. Prices, $15, $20, $25, $35.

Prices Have Been Changed

ON MANY WOMEN'S AND CHILDREN'S COATS.

A SALE OF 13 Women's Long Cravennte Raincoats.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 12th.

By a mistake in shipment a Manufacturing Agent had these 13 coats left on his hands. We were offered the lot at a price and pass the bargain on to you at once. The garments are all new, scarcely out of their folds. The cravenette in them is that extra closely woven quality that you pay at least $1.50 a yard for. It takes about 4 1-2 yds. to make the coat. Trimmings and making make the finished garment a regular 10.00 coat. Colors are serviceable, dark grey and beaver brown mixtures. Lengths, 54, 56, 58, 60 inches.

Time—10 O'clock Tuesday—Sale Price $5.00.

Men's Custom Tailoring.

Not to be "caught napping" at the season's end with too much stock we start betimes to lessen quantities, as this coming week.

Materials for 29 Suits, been 20.0 to 22.50, reduced to 17.50. Materials for 16 suits, been 16.50 to 20.00, reduced to 15.00

Look at it this way—As good a suit as the one we turn out at 22.50 would cost you 35.00 in specially tailored stores in the city. Then do some thinking. Nothing skimped, everything up to the standard, our risk as to fit.

Our values in plain blue and blacks are unexcelled anywhere, and in very few places equalled. We have some specially fine values in our 24.50 and 26.50 range. Values that if we had to replace them from to day's market would cost you 27.50 and 30.00.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

—Ladies and gentlemen, see Prof. Dorenwend's beautiful wigs, toupees, bangs, wavy and plain fronts, switches in every length and shade, etc. His hair goods styles, when properly adjusted, protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face and consequently tone up one's appearance. Prof. Dorenwend has for this season many new and pretty designs. He has added a number of New York, London and Paris patterns. Be sure to see them and not forget day and date. He will be at the Paisley House, Napanee, Monday, Nov. 18th. 45a

—We are in receipt of a copy of the Edmonton Journal, containing an eight-page special supplement illustrating the growth of the enterprising town, Vermilion, Sask. The town is on the C. N. R., of which it is a divisional point, and has the physical basis for a prosperous community. It is but two years old, already has a population of one thousand inhabitants, and is spoken of as one of the future big cities of the Upper Saskatchewan Valley. Our old friend, Mr. Jas. H. West, late of Yarker, is one of the pioneers of the town, and one part of his homestead is the corner of the town.

—Mr. Jas. Topping, Marysville, has rented Mr. Wm. Miles' farm in the sixth concession of Ernestown.

—The printers made an error last week. It was Robt. Lockwood, not Robt. Lockridge, that died in the jail.

GONE HOME.

Silas J. Vrooman was born July 5th, 1827, and died November 1st, 1907. We are under deep darkening shadows, but healing shadows. We are grieved, we have sustained a loss, but we must not grieve overmuch, be our loved one would not like us to do so. It would be altogether contrary to his wishes and spirit. There was nothing gloomy about him, and if we are gloomy to-day he would not like it. There is light in the shadows, there is much to be thankful for. It is fitting that I should say something about him, but I can't say all. If it were required by his loved ones, that I should give an appreciation in the fullest and most literal sense of this man of God, I must decline. I have not the measuring rod whereby to estimate rightly his worth, and did I possess it, I cannot claim that self-possession which would enable me to use it with absolute impartiality. I esteemed him too highly to attempt so invidious a task. Still, less have I the desire to pronounce a glowing, and undiscriminating eulogy upon the Christian character of a man so lofty in his aims and motives, a life consecrated in all its toils and conflicts to higher ends. He would be the first to rebuke me, by the reminder that a brother is meant for the exaltation of Christ, and not for sounding the praises of His most illustrious and devoted servant. The best things of a pure soul can never be put into words, for he was in the best sense the friend of Jesus. The bleeding hearts in that home of Bethany mourning their beloved dead, must surely have found some healing in the words of their Divine Master, "Many had come to console them concerning their brother"; but "Jesus wept." Christ the consoler is assuredly present with loved ones, therefore we need not invoke His presence, but who of us does not at this time pray that the vision of Christ and the sense of His infinite sympathy may be visibly experienced by the hearts of the loving friends of our dear departed brother. Our "friend is fallen asleep"—"Friend," did I say? Yes, indeed, few have ever filled that treasured name "friend" as brimful of highest, tenderest holiest meaning as he whom we mourn. So prone was in judgment, so charitable, so unfailing in life and glorious in death. For forty-three years I knew this my brother Vrooman as a true man of Christ.

G. SULLIVAN WHITE.

At the age of 12 deceased signed the pledge, becoming a Christian about that time, and remained faithful, being able to say in his last hours, "His prospects for Heaven were never so bright," and among his last words he said with great joy, "I am satisfied." He also prayed with intense interest to the 23d chapter of Ezekiel, requesting his daughters to sound the trumpet, to sound it far and wide, that everyone might be warned. His text, Isaiah 35, 9-10, was delivered on section years ago, and was used by the minister at his funeral.

ROBERT MILL

passed to his reward on Saturday last, after an illness of several months, aged about eighty years. Deceased was a highly respected resident of our town for the past thirty years, and was esteemed for his integrity. For years he ably filled the office of town treasurer, which he was compelled to resign last spring, owing to ill health. Mr. Mill was a model citizen, husband and father, a liberal in politics, and a consistent member of the Presbyterian church. He leaves a bereaved wife and two daughters, Mrs. F. Jemmett and Miss Mill.

LEARN DRESSMAKING BY MAIL

Is Your Spare Time at Home, Or Take a Personal Course at School.

To enable all to learn, we teach on cash or instalment plan, and teach a practical class at school once a week. Class meets in Conway Hall Tuesday of each month. The instalment plan of payment is not just together any garments, from the Corset shirt waist suit to the most elaborate dress. The whole system can also be mastered at home. We have taught over 7,000 dressmakers and guarantee to give $500 to anyone who cannot learn between the ages of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dressmaking as thoroughly as this system teaches it if you work in stores for years. Beware of imitations, as we employ no one to teach. Graduates of this city experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada, and excelled by none in any other country. Write for free booklet, references, as we have not our rate cards for a short time. TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers, Napanee, 4th Nov., 1907.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding. Members present—Reeve Lowry, Councillors Graham, Williams, Simpson, Kimmerly, Nowlan and Lockhead.

Minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Chief-of-Police Graham, asking for fourteen days' leave of absence.

Moved by Coun Kimmerly, seconded by Coun. Graham, that the above request be granted. Carried.

From H. M. Deroche, K.C., notifying the Council that John Wilson has sustained $25.00 damages from the Canning Factory sewer, and demanding the above amount from the Council. Also that the sewer must be extended to the drain dug by the citizens.

Moved by Reeve Lowry, seconded by Coun. Denison, that the above matter be referred to the Street Committee with power to act. Carried.

From the Napanee Ladies' Musical Club asking the use of the rooms on the second floor of the Public Library building for meetings during the coming season.

On motion the matter was left in the hands of the Town Property Committee with power to act.

From Wm. M. Davis, engineer, saying he would be pleased to visit Napanee and would write and make an appointment at a later date. Ordered filed.

Coun. Simpson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the Treasurer's monthly report, as follows, which was received and adopted.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee recommended that electric lights be placed on bridges. The arc lamp on Dundas st. at Thos. Johnston's corner to be a 32-candle power lamp on Alma Ave., and the 32 candle power lamp on James Kenny's corner be taken down and replaced by an arc lamp, providing the arc system has been constructed to that point. Adopted.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the By-law to appoint an electric light commissioner. Coun. Simpson in the chair.

Moved by Coun. Graham, seconded by Coun. Nowlan, that the blank be filled in with the name of W. T. Gilbard. Carried.

Moved in amendment by Coun. Williams, seconded by Coun. Graham, that the blank be filled in with the name of W. T. Holden.

Moved in amendment by Mayor Meng, seconded by Reeve Lowry, that the blank be filled in with the name of

In making his motion Mr. Meng said the time was short for a new commissioner to act, and everything at the present time was running smoothly and economically, and as there was a good feeling existing, he thought it would be best for the Council to appoint a commissioner, he was in favor of leaving the matter in the hands of the people on election day, according to the terms of the by-law.

Reeve Lowry was of the same opinion as Mayor Meng.

Coun. Kimmerly asked if the Council was doing this now if it ought to appoint a commissioner and does not do so after election?

Chairman Graham understood that the law was clear on the matter that the Council had every right to appoint a commissioner.

Chairman Simpson ruled Mayor Meng's motion out of order.

The usual deadlock on this question resulted in the defeat of the original motion and the amendment, and the Council committee arised and was granted leave to sit again.

Reeve Lowry stated that the Collector wished the Court of Revision to meet again, in order to straighten out some matters in the roll.

Robt. Pybus asked leave to place a fence on the line of the road in front of his place where a dilapidated railing now stands. Referred to Street Committee to consult with the Town Solicitor and act in accordance therewith.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Williams, that this Council hereby expresses regret at the sudden death of Mr. Robt. Mill, who for many years discharged the duties of Treasurer for the Corporation, and who in that capacity won the respect and confidence of all by his efficient discharge of his duties, and his courteous and gentlemanly bearing. This Council desires to extend to his wife and family its sympathy in the bereavement, and instructs the Clerk to send to Mrs. Mill a copy of this resolution. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Kimmerly, seconded by Coun. Lowry, that the discount of one per cent. allowed upon taxes paid the Collector of taxes, pursuant to clause 4 of By-law No. 489, be allowed on all taxes for the year 1907 paid on or before the 30th day of November, 1907. Cd.

A FARMER'S TRIALS.

WEAK AND WORN OUT THROUGH OVERWORK AND LONG HOURS.

The farmer's life is always a hard one, but if he is weak or suffering it is almost unbearable. The hours are long and the work so hard that none but the strongest can stand it. An illustration of the effect of hard work on the system is given by Mr. Geo. Hansberg, a farmer of Spry, Ont. He says:—"I have lived nearly all my life in the Bruce peninsula. I am a farmer and have always had my share of hard work and like a good many other men I thought there was no warrant to my system. In this I was mistaken for about a year and a half and I began to go gradually down hill. A weak fire at the least exertion of my appetite failed me; I had a severe pain in my side and around my heart. The doctor told me I was suffering from pernicious anaemia; that I was almost bloodless. I doctored for six months but instead of improving I grew so weak that I could hardly move with assistance. I lost flesh till I was almost a skeleton. A friend from Stokes Bay told me that a great benefit she had derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and advised me to try them. My master-in-law had also received great benefit from their use so I decided to give them a trial. After using the pills about a month I began to gain strength and from that on I improved rapidly. My new blood carried me course through my veins; my appetite improved; the pain left my side and heart and I gained in weight. After using about a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the best of health. I have nothing but praise for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they did me after all medical treatment had failed—I really believe they have saved my life."

Good blood is the secret of health. Keep the blood pure and such diseases as anaemia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, indigestion, eczema and the secret ills of women will not exist. The most perfect blood tone and nerve restorative in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A $5,000,000 THANKOFFERING

TO BE MADE BY THE ANGLICAN COMMUNION.

DIOCESE OF ONTARIO TO CONTRIBUTE $10,000.

There was a large congregation at the bright and beautiful service on Monday evening in the Anglican Church, Napanee. The choir rendered special music and preached on "Stewardship," from S. Luke xvi. 2. After setting forth the parable, and the nature of stewardship, Rev. Stenson Hooper said that the present human life was but a trust—the administration of which God has given to world one day demand an account. He urged the congregation to be true and faithful stewards of that which had been committed to them among other things, the gift of Christian faith, time, talents, their work, their influence, and money.

"Never," said he, "in the days of the preacher, 'when money could be earned and spent' more plentiful than the present. What were they doing with their money, did God get his share, or was it all squandered on self? Next year the Anglican Communion throughout the world was making a great appeal for a world wide thank-offering from the faithful. In July, 1908, the centenary of the Bible Lodges had been summoned to meet at Exeter Hall by Archbishop of Canterbury. In connection with this meeting was a Pan-Anglican Congress composed of not more than six delegates from each diocese, numbering some thousands in all. The proceedings will close with a great Thanksgiving service in St. Paul's Cathedral on the 27th June, which is also the two hundredth anniversary of that great missionary society known as the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, which has since its inception spent more than ten million dollars in Canada alone on missionary effort. At this service the offerings will be presented to send by its Bishop a thank-offering worthy of the great occasion. The diocese vouchsafed to the church in regard to her growth and spiritual development.

This thank-offering may be either applied to the needs of the diocese making the gift or carried into the general treasury of the missionary society. From the money so unappropriated six new dioceses will be founded and endowed. One probably at Edmonton in our own Northwest.

By resolution, the Synod of Ontario has decided to appeal to the diocese for $10,000, which sum is to share in the Thank-offering, and afterwards to be applied to the capital of the Episcopal Fund. The preacher, Rev. Mr. Hooper, was urged by Synod and the Bishop to take up the work, strongly appealed to the congregation to give a worthy thankoffering for so noble a work. Let them join in the forward and upward movement of the church—and God will bless in power and blessing. In all the world and so blessed his canvass that $2,500 had been subscribed. The Church asked all her children to give much or little "as God had prospered them."

CHAMBERS.

There was a very small attendance at the Lutheran church on Sunday evening. Hope for better crowds next week. Miss Sadie Smith and friend, Miss Kate Clote, spent Thursday evening in Napanee with friends.—Hallowe'en passed off very quietly.—The girls attended the "At Home" spent the Thanksgiving holidays at their homes.—Miss Bertha Gould spent the week-end at her home.—Picking hickory nuts is the order of the day.

"I do not wish to alarm people, but the local health authorities should look to it on their guard," said Dr. Hodgetts, Provincial Health Officer, in his reports on case of smallpox in Aurora, one in Newmarket and two in Sutton. Some mild cases of smallpox have been discovered in the south shores of Lake Simcoe. "Some of these" said Dr. Hodgetts, "I do not think can be chickenpox. The authorities, however, have asked for investigation, as some of the supposed chickenpox cases have since developed in to severe types of smallpox.

BREATHE HYOMEI'S TONIC HEALING AND BE CURED OF CATARRH.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicates the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membranes.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the only natural remedy, for it gives curative air bath to the air passages that has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect as that found in the mountains where the pine forests give off their fragrant and healing balsams.

Breathe the invigorating and healing Hyomei, and see how quickly you will get relief from your catarrhal troubles. It is the remedy that has cured so many cures, even of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing, that he feels warranted in selling Hyomei under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. He takes all the risk.

Rev. Rural Dean Dibb has accepted the rectorship of St. Mark's church, Desoronto, and will leave for his new parish at the beginning of the new year.

COUNTY ROADS.

The Warden reports that the work on county roads was completed on Oct. 26th, and that the expenditure was in the neighborhood of $18,000. He also says that they have made provision for the payment of the entire expenditure and all other debts now contracted, and yet the county rate has only been raised half a mill on the dollar. We are sure the people are satisfied with the manner in which the finances of the county have been handled this year. The same amount was expended last year but a deficiency of $1,000 was placed against this county for the full amount to be paid in 1907 and 1908 as at present. The warden will give a detailed statement of the finances shortly later on.

WONDERLAND.

The special and usual drawing were held On Monday evening last the winner of gold stick pin was Pearl LaFay, East st. Lucky number was 418 L. Others drawn were 417 L, 892 H., 251 H., 628 L, 608 H., 56 L, 615 L. Committee in charge were Messrs. Jerre, Will French, Ben. Johnston and Frank Kinkley.

Special, Tuesday evening, Mrs. James Richardson, Dundas st., held coupon No. 326 L. Other numbers drawn were 196 L, 380 L, 45 L, 380 H, 10 L, 297 H., 429 L, 50 H, 275 L, 601 H. Committee, Messrs. Wesley Conway, Harry VanAlstine and Geo. Amey.

Usual Wednesday evening, winner was Mr. Fred. York, Bridge st., coupon No. 851 H. Other numbers drawn were 224 L, 375 L, 396 L, 726 H, 129 H., 228 L, 704 H. On each of the three nights the young ladies who drew the coupons received a large box of bon bons. Mr. Wm. Parkinson, the well known baritone singer, has been engaged to sing at above theatre.

CHANGE OF PRICE.

With this issue the "Canadian Courier" changes from a five cent to a ten cent weekly. The publishers promise a greatly enlarged paper on December 1st. This illustrated paper has made great strides since it was established last year, and is certainly a creditable publication. Judging from its appearance, both the reading and the advertising public have given it quick and generous support. Mr. John A. Cooper, the editor, is to be congratulated upon the success his venture has met with, and also upon the enterprise which he has displayed in bringing this national weekly to its present excellent position. Canada should be able to support the live national publications which she possesses.

WARDEN'S PHOTOGRAPHS.

Warden Gallagher received a very nice letter last week from ex-Warden Hiram Keech, who is now in Stony Mountain, Man., complimenting him for the interest he is now taking to have the photographs of all our county wardens placed in the Council Chamber, and contributed his photo with pleasure. The scheme is working nicely, and by the last of this month the portraits are the line of photographs will be placed in their respective places. The Wardens still in office any who have not sent their photo to the County Clerk or to Mr. F. S. Richardson, the photographer at Napanee, to do so at once, in order that there may be no missing links in the chain of photographs. He says he will not be satisfied until every warden from 1863 to the present time has done his duty to aid in this historical and memorable enterprise.

BROWN—DEGROFF.

The marriage of Miss Lula B. Degroff, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Degroff, of Camden, to Mr. James R. Brown, also of Camden, was solemnized on Wednesday morning, Oct. 30th, at 10 o'clock, by the Rev. T. R. Allin, of Enterprise. As the bride stepped down the drawing room on the arm of her father Miss Alexa Routh sqh played the wedding march. The bride was attended by Miss Edna Craig, while Mr. Arthur Brown supported the groom. The house throughout was quietly and tastefully decorated, and the ceremony over the ceremony was performed, was exquisitely beautiful. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. About thirty guests were present, representing the immediate relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties. After a sumptuous dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Brown joined a shower of rice, and left on the train for points west. On their return they will reside on the old Brown homestead, Camden.

MONEY IN WHEY.

Toronto Star:—Until this year the latter has not utilized in the making of cheese has gone to waste, and incidentally has contributed largely to the offensive whey that emanates from cheese factories. Now, however, a few enterprising cheese men have procured the whey into a separator, extracted the fat, and have made better cheeses, which excelling better that supplied from fresh milk prices at the fall fairs from farm dairies, and certain cases, from creameries. One man writes to the Ontario Agricultural Department that he has realized $2,500 on this whey butter this year, and that in the last few years nearly $10,000 has gone into the pockets of his factory is distributed when they know whey better will add thousands of dollars every year to the dairy products of Ontario, he concludes, as this year's experiment will be the rule, and not the exception, in a year or two.

J. W. HALL.

HISTORICAL.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will be held on Friday evening, November 22nd, at 8 o'clock. The programme will be announced next week.

DESMOND TEA.

To everyone is extended a hearty welcome to the annual tea in the Desmond Methodist church, on the evening of Friday, Nov. 15th. Messrs. Rev. Dr. Carman, W. J. Post, M.P.P., and J. M. Denyes, B.A., are expected to address the meeting, which, we think, will be ably assisted in the musical part of the programme by the Wilton quartette and other local talent. Tea will be served at 7.30 p.m. Uriah Wilson, M.P., will occupy the chair. Admission, 25 cents.

Rummage Sale.

A Rummage Sale, under the auspices of the W.C.T.U., will be held on Friday and Saturday, 15th and 16th Nov. Place—the store lately occupied by Miss Penn, next door to J. F. Smith's grocery. A committee of ladies will be in attendance on Wednesday and Thursday of the same week, to receive contributions. Housekeepers are requested to have parcels ready for the collectors on those days. All citizens who have not been canvassed and who desire to help in the good cause are asked to hand their names at Mr. F. L. Hooper's drug store.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army will hold a grand social on Wednesday evening, 13th Nov., 7.30 p.m. A very special programme will be rendered by visiting officers from Toronto and Odessa. Cake and coffee refreshments will be served. The proceeds of the social will be devoted to the purchasing of fuel. We are anticipating an enjoyable time and we ask the kind help of all towards making it a success. We are pleased to announce that Colonel Wm. Booth has quite regained his health and is fighting on. Capt. Offford.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

The bill boards and fences are ablaze with scenes of many colors announcing the coming of Andrew McPhee's big eastern show, Downie's Uncle Tom's Cabin, which will give this great moral drama in the Bricco Opera House, Napanee, Thursday evening, 14th Nov. Every little boy and girl is looking forward to this event more than they have ever looked or longed for a circus, and it is safe to say that when the show arrives with its ponies, dogs, carriages, etc. they will be there to see it. The company numbers fifty people, 20 bands, genuine pack of Siberian bloodhounds, genuine donkeys, etc. Grand street parade given daily. Popular prices. Plan at Hawley's music store.

Special Meeting.

There will be a special meeting of the Napanee Ladies' Musical Club in the Town Hall, on Thursday, Nov. 14th, at 4 o'clock, when the Rev. Harper Gray, of Kingston, will deliver a lecture on "The appreciation of music," to the members of the club. Rev. Mr. Gray is giving a course of lectures to the Kingston Musical Club and we are certainly to be congratulated on securing Mr. Gray for two of these. The second lecture will be given on Nov. 2nd, when the subject will be: "Beethoven." Each lecture will be illustrated by musical numbers. Will members kindly be in their seats at 3.30? Students tickets will be issued for 50 cents to all between 14 and 18 years of age in families where one adult is already a member. Secty.

"HAMBLY VS. WAGAR.

In our last issue we published an item referring to this matter, entitled "Weighed in the Balance", having copied same from the "Kingston Whig." There was an error in the report and the position of affairs seems to be as follows:

The defendant moved to strike out paragraphs 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of the plaintiff's statement of claim alleging that same were not properly drawn or in the alternative for particulars of the paragraphs. The Master in Chambers refuse to strike out any of the paragraphs and ordered the defendant's claim for particulars except as to particulars of loss or damage claimed in the 6 8th paragraph. As to this paragraph the plaintiff is given leave to furnish particulars up to within a reasonable time of the trial. This is quite different from the "Whig" version of the result of the motion. The defendant has since appealed from the order of the Master in Chambers which looks as though he considers that the plaintiff Hambly had won out on the motion.

THE BEST WINDOW GLASS.

There is a great difference in window glass. Pilkington's (English) is of uniform thickness, and free from flaws. In all sizes, both single and double thick, at the Medical Hall.—Fred. L. Hooper.

CURLERS' MEETING.

A well attended meeting of the Napanee Curling Club was held in the rooms of the Historical Society on Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected for the year 1907-08:

Hon. Pres.—F. S. Richardson.
Pres.—Jas. S. Ham.
Vice Pres.—I. H. Wilbur.
Treas.—I. W. Robinson.
Secty.—E. G. H. Travers.
Executive Committee—W. A. Bellhouse, W. C. Smith, J. L. Boyes, Wm. Templeton, H. Daly.
Ice Committee—W. C. Smith, C. A. Maybee, H. Daly.
Reps. to League—J. S. Ham, R. G. H. Travers.

As soon as the membership list has been completed it will be printed and a copy handed to each member of the club, so that a selection of skips may be made, each holder of a card having a vote for the eight or ten skips to be chosen.

The prospects are encouraging for a large membership and good season's sport.

A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE!

Some time ago, owing to an erroneous report in circulation that a raise in the CAMPBELL HOUSE rates had been made on the farming community hereabouts, a correction appeared in these columns. Further enquiries have made it necessary to again refer to the matter. In this connection we have much pleasure in saying that not only does the rate remain $1.50 PER DAY, but A MEAL TO THE FARMERS AND LOCAL PATRONAGE EXCLUSIVELY (21.50 and $1.00 per day to the travelling public) in the face of a high market, has an expenditure of $5,000 is being made in improvements of a status heating plant, bathrooms, etc., etc., which will enhance very materially the well known comfort, service, comfort and quality of the Campbell House.

A continuance is ordered.

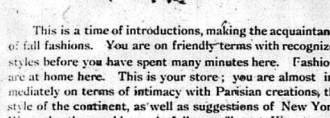
UNUSUAL THINGS ARE THE USUAL HERE



This is a time of introductions, making the acquaintance of fall fashions. You are on friendly terms with recognized styles before you have spent many minutes here. Fashions are at home here. This is your store; you are almost immediately on terms of intimacy with Parisian creations, the style of the continent, as well as suggestions of New York. We make the world wonderfully small, put Kingston in daily touch as you might say with all the creative fashion centres. To-day we make these remarks as particularly applicable to Dress Goods, as the store is bedecked with its autumn styles. It is equally true of all our merchandise.

We have had splendid weather lately; have been enjoying quite a cold snap.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Switzer left last Tuesday morning for Toronto to spend their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Jay Switzer and family leave to-day. The send off was grand. Rev. Mr. Allin made the presentation, and Dr. Carscallen read the address. Miss Gertie Carscallen and Miss Alleux Roseburgh presided at the organ, and gave some splendid music; Mr. Earl Bell and Claude Jackson, the mouth organ, and Mr. G. Fingland, the grand phone. At the close the Rev. Allin and Carscallen made some remarks. The goodbyes were touching—Mr. Yorke and family arrived last Thursday. We extend a warm welcome to them, and hope they will feel at home in our midst. ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. John McIntyre, Dagle, on Tuesday, Oct. 29th, when about forty of their friends and neighbors took possession of the house for a time.

The following address was read, and Mrs. and Miss McIntyre were presented with one dozen silver knives and forks, and one dozen silver teaspoons, and Mr. McIntyre with a beautiful smoker can. After lunch was served, all returned to their homes wishing Mr. and Miss McIntyre success and happiness in their new home:

To Mr., Mrs. and Miss McIntyre:

We, a few of your friends and neighbors have met with deep regret at your intended removal from our midst to another province. As neighbors, you have our commended esteem, admiration and respect, and we feel that we could not allow you to leave your community without showing in some tangible way our appreciation and regard. We ask you, therefore, to accept from us these parting gifts, which, we offer, not for their intrinsic value, but as a slight mark of our esteem, and we hope that in your distant home they may bring you pleasant memories of the years spent among your friends in Ontario.

You carry with you our best wishes for your welfare and happiness.

Signed on behalf of your friends,

MRS. H. KILLORAN,
MRS. H. BRADSHAW.

THE LATE MRS. McHENRY.

Descronto Tribune.

After an illness lasting a few days only Mrs. Daniel McHenry, a resident of Kingsford for over 40 years, passed peacefully away on Friday of last week. Death was due to old age. The funeral took place on Monday at St. Mary's Church, Marysville, a solemn Requiem mass being celebrated by Rev. Father Meagher assisted by Rev. Father McCarthy. The funeral was attended by a large number of the friends and relatives of the deceased, among those present being Edward Brennan, Daniel McCarten, James Farrell, Edward Farrell, Edward Farrell and William Finnigan.

Deceased's maiden name was Margaret Sexsmith, was born in Queen's County, Ireland, in 1822. Grown to womanhood she came to America in the year 1847, and settled in Ernestown, Lennox county. She was married to Daniel McHenry in 1843. Surviving them are four sons, John and Charles in Mexico, Thomas, in Port Colborne, and James in Marysville, and one daughter, Margaret and three daughters, Mrs. D. J. O'Connor, of Fredericksburgh, Mrs. Thos. Kelvin, of Albany, N.Y., and Mrs. P. McKane, of Chicago.

VERMONT LAD STOLE.

A boy named Robert Lorimer was on Tuesday afternoon taken into custody by Police Constable Wright on a charge of stealing $15.00 from Mr. Thos. McGuire, a farmer residing in Tyendinaga, near Shannonville and committed to the cells in the Police Court. Guire's place, and on Tuesday morning, when he got up, found that the money had been abstracted from his pocket, and he accused Lorimer of the theft. Lorimer had in his possession. Young Lorimer stated his home is at Hardwick, Vt., and that so far away he had travelled he has lived two years in a reformatory and escaped from both. He is an intelligent lad, apparently.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Worth Looking After.

To the Editor of Napanee Beaver:

In the early nineties, the question of use of stone drains for sewage was before the Town Council. Such use had been condemned by Dr. Bryce, then Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, as well as by the local board. I introduced a by-law prohibiting such use, but was unable to get it through the Council until it was considerably modified. As passed, the by-law made it illegal to connect with any drain or sewer without consent of the Council. At the same time I was empowered to negotiate with the property owners. This resulted in an agreement on their part to give to the town one-third of all money received in dues for water supplied for closet purposes, when such closets were connected with properly constructed sewers, made after the date of the agreement, which John street sewer was the only one then constructed. The Corporation's obligation to render evidence of construction and cost to the Company.

The limited working of this agreement: The estimated cost of a sewer on East street at that time was $1,000. The estimated revenue for closet purposes was $150.00, one-third of which, $50.00, coming to the town, would more than pay the interest upon the one-third cost, (property on each side of street paying two-thirds).

The Waterworks Co. first executed an agreement in which this payment was to continue only for 10 years, and refused to pay for the sewer, but subsequently agreed to do so, as mentioned.

At that time there was a property owners' petition for a sewer upon Caledon st., and had it have passed the Council there is no doubt it would have led to more construction under those favorable conditions. But there has never been any demand made for fulfilment of the agreement, and though I have frequently mentioned the matter in Council and elsewhere the matter, there has been no action. I have been told that the agreement could not be found, but the minutes will show the resolution, and I have no doubt the Water Works Co. would furnish a copy of the agreement. Now, when there is talk of more extensive sewer construction the matter should be straightened out. I have no reason to think the Water Works Company is not ready to fulfil its part of the agreement.

I am sir,
G. C. T. WARD.

OTTER CREEK DRAIN.

Report of F. F. Miller, Civil Engineer, re Otter Creek Drainage Works, in the Township of Richmond.

To the Reeve and Councillors of the Township of Richmond.

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to report to you in regard to the above works as follows:

At your request I examined the works and estimated as per my previous report asking for an assessment of $630.00. I then advertised and let the contract the work in two separate portions, one to extend from about all Wesley Hall's land both on the north and south side of the road to Edward Jordan's lot the sum of $144.00. The other was let to Theodore Windsor to clean out the creek for $280. As Windsor did not complete the cleaning of the contract I then engaged James Hall to finish it, and he has now fully complete the cleaning out of the creek, which he did.

I enclose receipts from the different parties concerned in the work and the amounts for cleaning out of the creek, to gether with the Contractor's bond to the Treasurer for amounts to make up that total sum. I also enclose an order on the Treasurer for $111.00 to Mr. Jordan.

The Otter Creek Drainage Works as I would now consider to be in an A No. 1 shape, and I do not believe that after it was first taken out it was in anything like as good condition as it is to-day. The drains are all clean and good depth and width, which is more than they have never in a condition to take off as much water as it is to-day. Before closing I wish to say that I found the Log Windsor a very efficient man as a foreman, and he certainly got a great deal of work done for the money expended. I found the following obstructions had been placed in the Creek since it was cleaned out: On Ira Bradshaw's place there is a water hole fence; on John Pringle's there is a water hole fence; on Gilbert Miller's hole fence; on Frank Richmond's there is a water hole fence; on Mrs. Jordan's place, several poles in alone the side of a bridge. These obstructions I have removed to conform to the By-law.

I enclose my account for the same, $56.45. Yours truly,

F. F. MILLER.

I have now on hand a full assortment of Mirrors, Pictures, Picture Mouldings and Picture Mouldings, etc. M. S. MADOLE.

LEARN TO EAT.

FEW PEOPLE IN NAPANEE REALLY KNOW HOW.

Slow eating will soive one-half the problems of ill health. Those who habit of ready with indigestion and weak stomach can with care and the use of Mi-oa-na stomach tablets restore their digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-oa-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good appetite will store that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-oa-na tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion, and the unpleasant feeling with which so many suffer after meals.

T. B. Wallace has so much confidence in Mi-oa-na that he has put into his store information and all stomach ills that it cures, and with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

AN INTERESTING BULLETIN.

We are in receipt of a copy of the "Bulletin of the Hospitals of the Insane," a journal devoted to the interests of Psychiatry in Ontario, printed by the Ontario Government.

The October number of which we speak is called "Rockwood Hospital Number," its editors being Edward Ryan, M.D., C. Barber, M.B., W. C. Herriman, M.B., W. T. Connell, M.D., and Chas. Sinnott, M.D., of Rockwood Hospital staff, Kingston.

The Bulletin contains seventy-two pages and, referring to a rapidly growing section of our population, the insane. It opens with the announcement that "the Provincial Government has recently added to the list of its institutions, which must be filled in making application for admission to a hospital for the insane, which must be acknowledged to be a great improvement upon the forms heretofore in general use in the asylums." The new form is then elaborated and advice to medical men as to home treatment, and a host of kindred subjects respecting hospital treatment, rewards, prevention of insanity, etc., discussed.

The Bulletin is neatly printed and couched in language easily understood by an ordinary reader, and indicates that our institutions for the insane are in capable hands, experts who will rest at nothing second to the best for our province and its unfortunate charges, and that our Provincial Government is aiding them in every way in their laudable and humanitarian efforts.

Mi-oa-na stomach tablets are a permanent cure for dyspepsia and stomach misery. Fifty cents a box if they do what is claimed for them; if not, you nothing if they fail. T. B. Wallace.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company.

"Well, there are no others," said she. "There's not a woman there—not as a servant, I mean. They do say—but perhaps it's false, sir."

"Let's have it for what it's worth," said I.

"Indeed, I'm ashamed to tell you, sir."

"Oh, see, I'm locking at the ceiling."

"They do say there is a lady there, sir, but except for her there's not a woman in the place. And Johann has to wait on the gentlemen."

"Poor Johann! He must be overworked. Yet I'm sure he could find half an hour to come and see you."

"It would depend on the time, sir, perhaps."

"Do you love him?" I asked.

"Not I, sir."

"And you wish to serve the king?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then tell him to meet you at the second milestone out of Zenda tomorrow forenoon at 10 o'clock. Say you'll be there and will walk home with him."

"Do you mean him harm, sir?"

"Not if he will do as I bid him. But I think I've told you enough, my pretty maid. Now that you do as I bid you. And, mind, no one is to know that the king has been here."

I spoke a little sternly, for there is seldom harm in infusing a little fear into a woman's liking for you, and I softened the effect by giving her a handsome present. Then we dined, and, wrapping myself about my face, with Fritz leading the way, we went downstairs to our horses again.

It was but half past 8 and hardly yet dark. The streets were full for such a quiet little place, and I could see that gossip was all agog. With the king on one side and the duke on the other, Zenda felt itself the center of all fashionable. We jogged gently through the town, but set our horses to a sharper pace when we reached the open country.

"You want to catch this fellow Johann?" asked Fritz.

"Aye, and I fancy I've baited the hook right. Our little Delilah will bring our Samson. It is not enough, Fritz, to have no women in a house, though brother Michael shows some wisdom there. If you want safety, you must have none within fifty miles."

"None nearer than Strelsau, for instance," said poor Fritz, with a lovelorn sigh.

We reached the avenue of the chestnuts and were soon at the house. As the hoofs of our horses sounded on the gravel Sapt rushed out to meet us.

"Thank God, you're safe!" he cried. "Have you seen anything of them?"

"Of whom?" I asked, dismounting.

He drew us aside that the grooms might not hear.

"Lad," he said to me, "you must not ride about here unless with half a dozen of us. We know of seventeen men a tall young fellow, Bernenstein by name?"

I knew him. He was a fine, strapping young man, almost of my height, and of light complexion.

"He lies in his room upstairs with a bullet through his arm."

"The deuce he does!"

"After dinner he strolled out alone and went a mile or so into the wood, and as he walked he thought he saw three men among the trees, and one leveled a gun at him. He hid no weapon, and he started at a run back toward the house, but one of them fired, and he was hit and had much ado to reach here before he fainted. By good luck they feared to pursue him nearer the house."

He paused and added:

"Lad, the bullet was meant for you."

"It is very likely," said I, "and it's first blood to brother Michael."

"I wonder which three it was," said Fritz.

"Well, Sapt," I said, "I went out to-night for no idle purpose, as you shall hear. But there's one thing in my mind."

"What's that?" he asked.

"Why, this," I answered—"that I shall ill requite the very great honors Rupert has done me if I depart from it leaving one of those Six alive."

And Sapt shook my hand on that.

CHAPTER XIII

IN the morning of the day after that on which I swore my oath against the Six I gave certain orders and then rested in greater contentment than I had known for many days. I was an early and work, though it cannot cure love, is yet a narcotic to it. So that Sapt, who grew feverish, marveled to see me sprawling in an armchair in the sunshine, listening to one of my friends who sang me some songs in a mellow voice and induced in me a pleasing melancholy. Thus was I engaged when young Rupert Hentzau, who feared neither man nor devil, rode across through the demesne, where every tree might hide a marksman for all he knew, and though it had been the path at Strelsau, cantered up to where I lay, bowing with burlesque deference and crowing private approval with me in order to deliver a message from the Duke of Strelsau. I made all withdraw, and then he said, seating himself by me:

"The king is in love, it seems."

"Even with Bife, my lord," said I, smiling.

"It is well," he rejoined. "Come, we are alone. Heavens!"

"I rose to a sitting posture.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"I was about to call one of my gentlemen to bring your horse, my lord. If you do not know how to address the king, my brother must find another manager."

"Why keep up the farce?" he asked, negligently dusting his boot with his glove.

"Because it is not finished yet, and meanwhile I'll choose my own name."

"Oh, so be it! Yet I spoke in love for you, for indeed you are a man after my own heart."

"Saving my poor honesty," said I, "maybe I am. But that I keep faith with men and honor with women, maybe I am, my lord."

He darted a glance at me, a glance of anger.

"Is your mother dead?" said I.

"Aye, she's dead."

"She may thank God," said I, and I heard him curse me softly. "Well, what's the message?" I continued.

I had touched him in the raw, for all the world knew he had broken his mother's heart, and his airy manner was gone for the moment.

"The duke offers you more than I would," he growled. "A halter for you, sire, was my suggestion. But he offers you safe conduct across the frontier and a million crowns."

"A handsome offer, my lord, if I am bound to one."

"You refuse?"

"Of course."

"I told Michael you would." And the villain, his temper restored, gave me the sunniest of smiles. "The fact is, between ourselves," he continued, "Michael doesn't understand a gentleman."

I began to laugh.

"And you?" I asked.

"I do," he said. "Well, well, the halter be it."

"I'm sorry you won't live to see it," I observed.

"Has his majesty done me the honor to fasten a particular quarrel on me?"

"I would you were a few years older, though."

"Oh, God gives years, but the devil gives increase," laughed he. "I can hold my own."

"How is your prisoner?" I asked.

"The king?"

"Your prisoner."

"Sir Rupert your wishes, sire. Well, he is alive."

He rose to his feet. I imitated him.

Then came the most audacious thing I have known in my life. My friends were some thirty yards away. Rupert called to a groom to bring him his horse and dismissed the fellow with a crown. The horse stood near. I stood still, suspecting nothing. Rupert made as though to mount, then he suddenly turned to me, his left hand resting on his belt by his right outstretched.

"Shake hands," he said.

I bowed, and did as he had foreseen—I put my hands behind me. Quicker than thought his left hand darted, cut at me and a small dagger flashed in the air. He struck me in the left shoulder. Had I not known of the ban on my be rt. With a cry I staggered back. Without touching the stirrup he leaped upon his horse and was off like an arrow, pursued by cries and revolver shots—the last as useless as the first—and I sank into my chair, bleeding profusely, as I watched the devil's brat disappear down the long avenue. My friends surrounded me, and then I fainted.

I suppose that I was put to bed and there lay unconscious or half conscious for many hours, for it was night when I awoke to my full mind and found Fritz beside me. I was weak and weary, but he bade me be of good cheer, saying that my wound would soon heal and that meanwhile all had gone well, for Johann, the keeper, had fallen into the snare we had laid for him and was even now in the house.

"And the queer thing is," pursued Fritz, "that I fancy he's not altogether sorry to find himself here. He seems to think that when Black Michael has brought off his coup, witnesses of how it was effected—saving, of course, the six themselves—will not be at a premium."

This idea argued a shrewdness in our captive which led me to build hopes on his assistance. I ordered him to be brought in at once. Sapt conducted him and set him in a chair by my bedside. He was sullen and afraid, but, to say truth, after young Rupert's exploit we also had our fears, and if he got as far as possible from Sapt's formidable six shooter Sapt kept him as far as he could from me. Moreover, we let no one in his hands were bound, but that I would not suffer.

I need not stay to recount the safeguards and rewards we promised the fellow—all of which were honorably observed and paid, for that he lives now in prosperity (though where I may not mention)—and we were the more free inasmuch as we soon learned that he was rather a weak man than a wicked and had acted throughout this matter more from fear of the duke and of his own brother Max than for any love of what was done. But we had persuaded all of his loyalty and, though not in their secret counsels, was yet, by his knowledge of their dispositions within the castle, able to lay bare before us the very heart of their devices. And here, in brief, is his story:

Below the level of the ground in the castle, approached by a flight of stone steps which abutted on the end of the drawbridge, were situate two small rooms, cut out of the rock itself. The outer of the two had no windows, but was always lighted with candles; the inner had one square window, which gave upon the moat. In this inner room there lay always, day and night, three of the Six, and the instructions of Duke Michael were that on any attack being made on the outer room the three were to defend the door of it so long as they could without risk to themselves. But so soon as the door should be in danger of being forced then Rupert Hentzau or Detchard (for one of these two was always there) should leave the others to hold it as long as they could and himself pass into the inner room and without more ado kill the king, who lay there, well treated, indeed, but closely watched, and with his arms confined in fine steel chains, which did not allow him to move his elbows more than three inches from his shoulder. Thus before the outer door were stormed the king would be dead. And the body? For his body would be evidence as damning as himself.

"Nay, sir," said Johann, "his highness has thought of that. While the two hold the outer room the one who has killed the king raises the bars in the square window (they turn on a hinge). The window now gives no light, for his mouth is choked by a great pipe of earthenware, and this pipe, which is large enough to let pass through it the body of a man, passes into the moat, coming to an end immediately above the surface of the water, so that there is no perceptible interval between water and pipe. The king being dead, his murderer swiftly ties a weight to the body and, dragging it to the window, raises it by a pulley (for test the weight should prove too great Detchard has provided one) till it is level with the mouth of the pipe. He inserts the feet in the pipe and pushes the body down. Silently, without splash or sound, it falls into the water and thence to the bottom of the moat, which is twenty feet deep hereabouts. This done, the murderer cries loudly, 'All's well!' and himself slides down the pipe; and the others, if they can and the attack is not too hot, run to the inner room and, seeking a moment's delay, bar the door and in their turn slide down. And though the king rises not from the bottom, they leave the pipe and round to the other side, where the orders are for men to wait them with ropes, to haul them out, and horses. And here, if things go well, the duke will join them and seek safety by riding; but if all goes well they will return to the castle and there find no enemies in a trap. That, sir, is the plan of his highness for the disposal of the king in case of need. But it is not to be used till the last, for, as we all know, he is not minded to kill the king unless he can, before or soon after, kill you also, sir. Now, sir, I have spoken the truth, as God is my witness, and I pray you to shield me from the vengeance of Duke Michael; for if, after he knows what I have done, I fall into his hands I shall pray for one thing out of all the world—speedy death, and that I shall not obtain from him!"

The fellow's story was rudely told, but our questions supplemented his narrative. What he had told us applied to an armed attack, but if suspicions were aroused and there came overwhelming force—such, for instance, as I, the king, could bring—the idea of resistance would be abandoned. The king would be quietly murdered and slid down the pipe. And—here comes an ingenious touch—one of the Six would take his place in the cell and on the entrance of the searchers loudly demand his release, and Black Michael, being summoned, would contess to hasty action, but he would say the man had escaped him by seeking the favor of a lady in the castle (this was Antoinette de Mauban), and he had confined him there, as he conceived he as Lord of Zenda had right to do. But he was now on receiving his apology content to let him go and so end the gossip which, to his highness' annoyance, had arisen concerning a prisoner in Zenda and had given his visitors the trouble of this hunter. The visitors, baffled, would retire, and Michael could at his leisure dispose of the body of the king.

Sapt, Fritz and I in my bed looked round on one another in horror and beldemeanor at the cruelty and cunning of the plan. Whether I went in peace to his war, openly at the head of a corps or secretly by a stealthy assault, the king would be dead before I could come near him. If Michael were stronger and overcame my party there would be an end, but if I were stronger I should be no way to punish him, no means of proving my guilt in him without proving my own guilt also. On the other hand, I should be left a king (ah, for a moment my pulse quickened), and it would be for the future to witness the final struggle between him and me. He seemed to have an triumph possible and ruin impossible. At the worst he would stand where he had stood before I crossed his path with but one man between him and the throne, and that man an impostor. At best there would be no theft to stand against him. I had begun to think that Black Michael was overfond of leaving the fighting to his friends, but now I acknowledged that the brains, if not the arms, of the conspiracy were his.

"Poor his king knew not his danger."

"I and my brother," answered Johann, "put up the pipe under the orders of my Lord of Detchard. He was on guard that day, and the king asked my lord what it meant. 'Faith,' he answered, with his airy laugh, 'it's a new improvement on the ladder of Jacob, whereby, as you have read, sire, men may climb from earth to heaven.' We thought it not meet that your majesty should go, in case, sire, you must go, by the common road. So he fixed the pipe in a pretty private passage, where the vulgar cannot stare at you or incommode your privacy. That, sire, is the meaning of that pipe.' And he laughed and bowed and prayed the king's leave to withdraw to his table, for the king was at supper. And the king, though he is a brave man, as are all of his house, grew red and then pale when he looked on the pipe and at the merry devil who mocked him. Ah, sir,"—and the fellow shuddered—"it is not easy to sleep quiet in the castle of Zenda, for all of them would as soon cut a man's throat as play a game at cards, and my Lord Rupert would choose it sooner for a pastime than any other."

The man ceased, and I bade Fritz take him away and have him carefully guarded, and, turning to him, I added:

"If any one asks you if there is a prisoner in Zenda you may answer 'yes,' but if any asks who the prisoner is, do not answer. For all the promises, will not save you if any man here knows from you the truth as to the prisoner in Zenda. I'll kill you like a dog if the thing be so much as breathed within the house."

Then when he was gone I looked at Sapt.

"It is a hard nut," said I.

"So hard," said he, shaking his grizzled head, "that, as I think, this time next year is like to find you still king of Eurtania" and he broke out into curses on Michael's cunning.

I lay back on my pillows.

"There seem to me," I observed, "to be two ways in which the king can come out of Zenda alive. One is by treachery in the king's household."

"You can leave that out," said Sapt. "I hope not," I rejoined, "because the other one about to mention is—by a miracle from heaven!"

CHAPTER XIV.

IT would have surprised the good people of Eurtania to know of the forgoing talk. For, according to the official reports, I had suffered a grievous and dangerous hurt from an accidental shot from my friend Rischenheim, yet my sport. I caused the bulletins to be in very serious character and created great public excitement, whereby three things occurred—first, I gravely offended the medical faculty of Strelsau by refusing to summon to my bedside any of them save a young man, a friend of Fritz's, whom we could trust; secondly, I aroused wond from Rischenheim's fiancé that my orders seemed to have no more weight than his and that the Princess Flavia was hearing for Rischenheim under his unwilling escort (news wherein I strove not be glad and grieved), and, thirdly, my friends the Duke of Strelsau, although too well informed to believe the account of the cause of my misfortune, yet persuaded by the reports and by my seeming inactivity that I was in truth incapable of action and that my life was in some danger. This I learned from the man Johann, whom I was compelled to trust and send back to Zenda, where, by the way, Rupert Hentzau had him soundly flogged for daring to enter the bounds of Zenda by staying out all night. This, Rupert, Johann deeply resented, and the duke's approval of it did more to bind the keeper to my side than all my promises.

On Flavia's arrival I cannot dwell. Her joy at finding me up and well instead of on my back and fighting with death makes a picture that even now I cannot look upon or still they refuse to do so it, and her reproaches that I had not trusted even her must excuse the means I took to quiet them. In truth, to have her with me in once more was like a taste of heaven to a damned soul, the sweeter for the knowledge that that joy was to follow, and I rejoiced in being able to waste two whole days with her, and when I had wasted two days the Duke of Strelsau arranged a hunting party.

The stroke was near now, for Sapt and I after anxious consultation had resolved that we must risk a blow, our resolution being clinched by Johann's news that the king grew pallid, pale and ill and that his health was breaking down under his rigorous confinement. Now, a man, be he king or no king, may as well die swiftly and as becomes a gentleman, from bullet or thrust, as rot his life out in a cellar. That thought made prompt action advisable in the interests of the king. From my own point of view it grew more and more necessary, for Strelsenz urged on me the need of a speedy marriage, and my own inclinations seconded him with such terrible insistence that I feared for my resolution. I do not believe that I should have done the deed I dreamed of, but I might have come to flight, and my flight would have ruined the cause.

It is perhaps as strange a thing as has ever been in the history of a country that the king's friend and the king's pretender in a time of profound outward peace soar a plaid, undisturbed country town, unbeknown of amity, should wage a desperate war for the person and life of the king. Yet such was the strange fact begun now between Zenda and Tarlenheim. When I look back on the time I seem to myself to have been half mad. Sapt has told me that I suffered no interference and listened to no remonstrance, and if ever a king of Eurtania ruled like a despot I was in those days the man. Look where I would, I saw nothing that made for power to me, and I took my life in my hand and carried it carelessly, as a man dangles an old glove. Yet I had my reward, given me, to keep me safe, to persuade me not to expose myself, but when they were here! I was not the only one among them, whether they knew the truth or not, a feeling that fate ruled the issue and that I was but its tool to play my game with Michael my own way.

Late next night I rose from table, where Flavia had sat by me, and conducted her to the door of her apartments. There I kissed her hand and bade her sleep sound and wake to happy days. Then I changed my clothes and went out. Sapt and Fritz were waiting for me with three men and the horses. Over his saddle Sapt carried a large coil of rope, and both were heavily armed. I had with me a short stout cudgel and a long knife. Making a circuit, we avoided the town and in an hour found ourselves slowly mounting the hill that led to the castle of Zenda. The night was dark and very stormy, gusts of wind and showers of rain caught us as we breasted the slope, and at the great trees massed and sighed. When we came to a thick clump about a quarter of a mile from the castle we made our three friends hide there with the horses. Sapt had a whistle, and they could rejoin us in a few moments if danger came, but up till now had met no one. I hoped that Michael was still off his guard, believing me to be safe in bed. However that might be, we gained the top of the hill without accident and found ourselves on the edge of the moat where it sweeps under the road, separating the old castle from it. A tree stood on the edge of the bank, and Sapt silently and diligently set to make fast the rope. I stripped off my boots, took a pull at a flask of brandy, loosened the knife in its sheath and took the cudgel between my teeth. Then I shook hands with my friends, not heeding a last look of entreaty from Fritz, and laid hold of the rope. I was going to have a look at Jacob's ladder.

BADLY RUN DOWN.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CAME TO THE RESCUE AFTER DOCTORS' TREATMENT FAILED.

The life of any constant traveller is always a hard one, but these wore some compel them to take long tiresome drives over rough roads, exposed to all conditions of weather, are in constant danger of losing their health. The extreme heat of summer or the piercing winds of winter tap their strength, the kidneys become deranged, rheumatism sets in. What is needed to withstand this hardship is rich red blood—the pure blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can make. Among those who have proved this never-failing friend. Concerning them Mr. George Bulger, of St. Ellen, Que., says: "I am a grain dealer and am obliged to make frequent trips, sometimes very tiresome. I started from one of these trips last summer very much fatigued. I was overheated and tried to cool myself and rest myself by lounging on the verandah till late at night. I caught cold and the next day I did not feel at all well. I had a headache, pains in my stomach and was very weak. I went to see a doctor but he said I would be all right in a day or so, so I started on another trip. But I not gone far before I felt very ill and had to return home and go to bed. I had chills, headache, pains in my stomach and kidneys. The doctor came to see me and he said I was overworked. He treated me for several months, but instead of improving, I continually grew worse. I worked away almost to a skeleton and really thought I was going to die. One day my wife returned from a village with a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She urged me to take them as she said they had been very highly recommended to her. I did so, and by the time I had taken a dozen boxes I had enough benefit to decide me to continue them and I took about a dozen more. They fully cured me and to-day I am able to do about as much work without feeling fatigued."

Fatigue on the least exertion is a sign that the blood is poor. Replace the bad blood with good blood and labor will be a pleasure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, red blood. That is why they cure anaemia, rheumatism, kidney trouble, indigestion, heart palpitation and the many wasting ills of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MEN'S SMOKING OR HOUSE JACKETS, $3.00 to $7.50 each.

MEN'S BLANKET ROBES, splendid styles and colors, and newest designs at $5.00, $7.50, $10.00, $12.50

Napanee stores enjoy a deservedly high reputation for superior value giving and people from all quarters of this County have long been aware that it pays to shop in Napanee stores and particularly at Robinson's. In fact many people from surrounding towns make the trip to Napanee, when they have any considerable buying to do. It pays. And not only in Women's wear is this great store the interesting point, but in Men's and Boys' wear as well.

Cardigan Jackets— Superior Values.

Our Cardigan Jackets came to us direct from one of the largest makers in England. We have won a reputation for value giving in this line that has pushed our sales up, up, up. We do not confine our stock to the cheaper grades, but we can give you as fine a quality of Jacket as you will find anywhere. Price range is from 75c to $5.00 each. Sizes are small men's, men's, large men's and extra large men's.

Christmas Handkerchiefs

Thousands to choose from, and at all prices. Initialed Excelda, Initialed Linen, Linen in fancy boxes, extra fine Cambrie in fancy boxes. When purchasing Handkerchiefs of any kind, here is where you will find the greatest choice and the best values.

Men's Fancy Knit Vests.

We have just received the most beautiful assortment of Men's Fancy Knit Vests we have ever seen. They come in the different sizes, all knit from extra fine wool. Colors are fancy reds, browns, greens, blacks and blues. Prices from $1.75 to $4.00 each.

A splendid gift for any man.

Men's Pyjamas.

Made from extra good quality of English Flannelette. Patterns are good. Sizes for small men, men, and large men. Prices, $1.00 and $1.50.

Dependable Clothing For Men.

Some makers, to save expense, use improper interlinings and stiffenings —slight the work where it cannot be readily seen. This class of manufacturers we do not deal with, for it is our policy to handle only such clothing as we can guarantee. Suits $5.00 to $17.50.

Flaxman Shirts for Men.

We carry a big and fine line of the "Flaxman" Shirt. Ask for them when ordering by mail. This shirt is made in London, England, from the stoutest and strongest cloths; the goods are absolutely fast colors, the patterns are good. They are lined with cotton over the shoulders and down the front, and there is an extra quarter yard of goods with each shirt to mend with or put in a new sleeve. We guarantee the satisfaction. Sizes range from 14 to 18. Price, $1.00 each.

Boys' Honest Clothing.

All our clothing is rigidly examined by an expert tailor, and any defects in cloth or workmanship bar it from stock. Our prices are invariably the lowest consistent with quality. If a garment is not all wool we tell you so. It is sold for what it is.

Fine Stylish Custom Tailoring

Our Merchant Tailoring Department is thoroughly organized under first class management, with a most skilled cutter, and the best of skilled workmen. The most particular and fastidious man can have made to his order exactly what he wants. Materials for the exclusive as well as the most conservative man.

Just now there are some special opportunities. We are adjusting stocks and will move certain lines at considerably less than usual prices.

MRS. ROBERT WHYTE.

The subject of my sketch, Julia Ann McCoe, relict of the late Robert Whyte, was born at Champlain in New York state April, 1841, was married to her late husband on the 25th of March, 1861, then a resident of Lacolle, Quebec. After their marriage they resided in Montreal until 1867, when with her husband she removed to Riverside, Richmond, where she lived up to a few months of her death, having then gone to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Jas. McFarlane, Fellows. Her husband predeceased her twenty-seven years last January. Eight children were born to them, of whom four died in infancy, and four, one son, Robert, of St. Louis, Mo., and three daughters, Mrs. W. A. Martin, Gilead, Mrs. G. S. Gunn, Bayside, Hastings Co., and Mrs. James McFarlane, jr., of Fellows, are left to mourn the loss of a devoted, loving and faithful mother. Mrs. Whyte, on the death of her husband, was left with four small children fully dependent upon her, to battle against the stream of time, and the writer well remembers how faithfully and untiringly she strove for the welfare of those whom God had committed to her individual care. Her whole soul was in the welfare of her children, and by her untiring efforts she succeeded in placing them all in good positions, and finally had the unspeakable satisfaction of seeing them all most comfortably situated in homes of their own. She was a kind, obliging neighbor, and a most reliable friend in sickness. She will be greatly missed by those who held her most dearly in this respect. She was in her usual good health up to a few hours of her death, which was attended with intense suffering, due to paralysis. Her end was perfect peace. The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. A. McClelland, Odessa, at her daughter's, Mrs. James McFarlane, Fellows. Amid sorrowing friends the remains were deposited in Morven vault. The pall-bearers were from her old neighborhood at Riverside, viz., Messrs. Robt. Shannon, H. G. Birrell, Wm. Norris, Henry Rooks, R. McCuaig and Manly Jones.

CONQUERING A SEA.

Little Holland, with its-5,000,000 people living safely behind their wave-washed dykes, is about to make a new conquest from its old enemy, the ocean, vide Technical World Magazine for November. Already Dutch engineers have begun the tremendous task which will result in turning the Zuyder Zee into 1,400 square miles of dry land. Where of old the great Dutch war-fleets gathered, where now four thousand fishermen sink their nets, there will rise happy villages, broad pastures, poplar-bordered roads and sleepy canals—new farms and homes for 500,000 Dutchmen. The task is tremendous and will cost $76,000,000. In return the government expects to secure annual rentals of more than $5,000,000 from those who occupy and till the hard won ground.

The Zuyder Zee has occupied a most prominent place in Dutch history. On its shores are the ancient towns of Medemblik, Hoorn, Harderwyck, Norden and Enkhuizen, under whose walls the Dutch fleets used to lie at anchor in the days when Holland disputed with England the supremacy of the seas. It seems perfectly appropriate, now that Holland has turned from the ways of war to the paths of peace, that she should win in a great fight with the sea—a fight that has continued throughout hundreds of years—attaining victory only by ceaseless vigilance and fierce endeavor. And yet one cannot but experience a feeling of regret that those ancient cities which though actions rose and fell made good the circles of their battered ramparts, defying alike the power of the sea and the might of Spain, should become quiet inland towns, far removed from the roar of the breakers abaisnt the dykes.

"I didn't know the Bartons kept a donkey. How long have they had one?"

"Oh, ever since I have been staying with them!"

A Scottish architect was in Palestine when news reached him of an addition to his family circle. He provided himself with some water from the Jordan for the christening of the infant and returned to Scotland. On the Sunday appointed for the ceremony he went to church and sought out the sexton, in order to hand over the precious water to his care. He pulled the flask from his pocket, but the sexton held up a warning hand and came nearer, to whisper: "No the noo, sir," he said; "no the noo. Maybe after the kirk's oot!"

A MIXED MENU

A Story Illustrating an Ingenious Plan for Keeping a Servant.

By Charlotte W. Eastmans.

It was a charming little sitting room in which Mrs. Mason sat sewing dainty stitches. Before her stood the servant girl who, with a stolid stare, announced that she had found a place down town.

"But, Mary, you surely would not leave me without help," Mrs. Mason answered.

"I got a place where I get t'ree dollar."

"I would give you $3, but you agreed to work for me for $2.50 if I would teach you to talk and do the work."

"I got anoder place down town. I say I go next week."

Entreaty and persuasion were alike in vain. It all ended with, "I go next week."

One year from this time Mrs. Mason was a wiser if not a better woman, and when Lena announced, "I got another place down town," she merely answered, "Very well," for she knew the third girl that she had trained for the woman down town.

When Mr. Mason came home to dinner that night, he saw at once that some shadow had clouded the domestic heaven, but when his wife had poured out her tale of woe she proceeded to lay before him plans for her future campaign. She had had fully caught her idea, he laughed long and loud.

"You're a mighty smart little woman, Maria, but if you try that game you'll fall down," he announced when she asked for his opinion of her plans.

"I'll not fall down any harder than I have in my other plans, and I believe I can do it."

"All right, I'll back you," he promised encouragingly.

Accused of her husband's co-operation, Mrs. Mason very willingly agreed to take Lena's cousin, Christina, who had just arrived from the fatherland. In the week which intervened before the advent of the new domestic one might have supposed Mrs. Mason to be a blue stocking of the deepest dye, for she carried a pencil stuck in her hair and stopped to jot down burning thoughts on whatever was most convenient to rest her notebook upon. The baby's back or the bottom of the dish-pan were alike available. When the new Christina appeared, fresh and rosy and clean, she started at her task with vivor. Her former experience might be the best method of instruction, and, taking up one article after another, she explained the names distinctly and encouraged Christina to repeat it until she was sure of it.

The first performance in the domestic act was to fry potatoes for luncheon.

"This, Christina," said Mrs. Mason as she held up the spider, "is a frying pan, and these are eggs, and this is the potatoes."

After this the bread and the meat, the crackers and the raisins, the coffee and the lemons, changed places, and 30 of the most useful words in the kitchen and the dining room were in a confusion that had no order except in the fertile brain of Mrs. Mason. But she had her list well memorized, and her mistakes were few. Mr. Mason gave her enthusiastic support, and, though he feared to give a cook to Christina without first consulting his wife and his appealing look at the table when he held up the cracker jar to Christina and asked for more raisins was very amusing, he gave his wife unstinted admiration for the glib manner in which she could order a six-

Suspecting Christina worked hard at her part of the game, evidently desirous of fitting herself as soon as possible for the "t'ree dollar place" down town. She jabbered in her native tongue gladly with her friends, and her English, that chance might call into use, was intruded on the ground with which Mrs. Mason had tampered. The excitement of her experiment added quite a little interest to the usually monotonous work of training a green girl, and Mrs. Mason taught her many mysteries in salads and soups that she had heretofore looked on as strictly private knowledge. Christina had reached that stage in her development when Mrs. Mason could give an order for dinner and go out for an afternoon with some assurance that a palatable, well served dinner would await her return. She knew that the time was near at hand for the inevitable announcement, and when Christina was in little more shyly than some of the former, girls. "My cousin, she got a place where I see her every day; the woman, she say she glad to get a girl what you make; she have your girl anoder time." Mrs. Mason answered cheerily:

"All right, Christina, you can go right along. "I'll get along without a girl for awhile, but Mr. Mason is going to bring company home to-night, and I want a very nice dinner."

Christina smiled at so willing an acquiescence to her plans and asked, "What I get for dinner?"

"We'll have some of that nice oatmeal cream, a cabbage fixed cake, some souped eggs, a chicken omelet, and you may get some of the best oyster crackers from the store. Make some coffee soup, Christina, and make the freezer full. I think we'll have soda pie with it."

"All right, I do it," answered Christina willingly. And Mrs. Mason smiled as she thought of Mary down town. "Now, madam, you're welcome to the fruits of my labor."

She felt the least bit guilty, the memory of the many hours of care and thought that she had given to the training of two girls came to appease her conscience.

"Perhaps I could see the other acts," she said to Mr. Mason. "I expect to be in the fifth myself, but I feel I shall miss the third and fourth."

Christina reported bright and early at Mrs. Bender's, eager to prove herself worthy of her advance. Circumstances compelled Mrs. Bender to leave her entirely to her own devices the first day, but on the morning of the second she went to the haste into the kitchen.

"Christina," she said, "get breakfast as quickly as possible. Mr. Bender wants to make that early train. We generally want toast, but we will get along without it this morning, and we like it rare," she said, pointing to the beefsteak.

"Rare!" Christina exclaimed.

"Yes, rare. You understand what that is, don't you?"

"Rare—"

"Well, we always take it rare and our coffee strong."

"You take coffee for breakfast?"

"Always. And we would like it as soon as possible, Christina."

Mrs. Bender sailed out of the kitchen and confidentially told Mr. Bender that Christina might be an exceedingly stupid or else she had a peculiar manner.

"She is in a constant state of surprise," she added, "and, I declare, I smell bread toasting. I told her not to toast it this morning."

In an incredibly short time the breakfast bell rang, and when Mr. Bender family sat down to the table the look of surprise was transferred from Christina's face to theirs for on the platter lay a fine steak, fresh from the refrigerator, and in place of the pot of steaming coffee sat a pot of her of ire cold lemonade. Mrs. Bender looked with exceeding energy, and when astonished Christina appeared they each made a frantic effort to convince the other that she was responsible for the mistake. Mr. Bender grew angry, and Christina resorted to tears, and while Mr. Bender listened to their confusing explanations he made his breakfast on toast and lemonade.

Matters grew worse rapidly, and in spite of repeated and patient explanations Christina's dicay were in a state of hopeless confusion, but neither she nor Mrs. Bender ever thought of the little woman on the hill as the author of all their troubles. At the end of two weeks Mrs. Bender took a street car for Walnut hill and, seeking out Mrs. Mason, asked her if she would not be willing to take Christina back. Mrs. Mason artfully hesitated a moment and then consented.

"I am so relieved," Mrs. Bender said, "for I keep her in tears half of the time, and she seems so anxious to please me. I can't understand how any one can be as stupid as she is."

So Christina came back, and for four years she did faithful service in Mrs. Mason's kitchen, and for the first time in her life that ingenious little woman had not live in constant fear of "another place down town."

NEWS NOTES.

A Nebraska man who attempted to live by eating nothing but peanuts became insane in four days and died in a week.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt has resigned the Registrarship of West Toronto, to be a candidate for the mayoralty of Toronto.

Wm. P. McMahon, barrister, Belleville, died on Monday, after a two weeks' illness of pneumonia and heart trouble.

William Bates was sentenced at Woodstock to three years in penitentiary for stealing one dollar. He is regarded as incorrigible.

The Medicine Hat Council has decided to mortgage the waterworks and gas plants in preference to selling debentures at this time of tight money.

Mr. Mackenzie King announces that he has adjusted all the Japanese claims arising out of the riots at Vancouver, and the total amount to be paid is $10,775.

An epidemic of itch has broken out among the school children of London, Ont. Many cases are reported where children are confined to their homes, and the doctors state that they are finding new cases every day. The disease is believed by the doctors to have been brought here from Manitoba.

Fred. H. Abell, professor of modern languages in the West High School, Rochester, N.Y., escaped from his confinement some time after midnight on Thursday, and was found dead near the Highland Park reservoir early this morning. The body was in a sitting posture by the fence, with an open razor by the fence post. Prof. Abell had been frozen to death during the snow and sleet storm. He was dressed only in his night clothes. Prof. Abell was suffering from temporary aberration of the mind caused by the death of his only child.

After winning the great run in Montreal last Saturday, Hugh Graham, proprietor of the Montreal Star's rowing boat, the great Canadian Indian runner, saying that at the end of five years if he kept temperate, and ranged himself on the side of clean sport, he would present him with a cheque for two thousand dollars. Longboat wrote the following reply: "Dear Mr. Graham—You are very kind. I know how you feel; you want Canada's name kept good. I feel the same. I will do my best. Five years from to-day I will send you a little bill for two thousand dollars, and will buy a new little wigwam for my best girl.—Yours gratefully, Thomas Longboat."

WHO USES HYOMEI?

THE BEST PEOPLE IN NAPANEE, SAYS T. A. WALLACE. GUARANTEED TO CURE CATARRHAL TROUBLES.

No other remedy or treatment for catarrh has ever been as popular or made so many remarkable cures as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, says T. B. Wallace, who is the local agent. The best way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the money to any dissatisfied customer, was the best proof that it did all that is claimed for it, and the fact that not one bottle in a hundred was returned is positive proof of its satisfaction, and left it to the purchasers to be the judge.

Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives and children, it was absolutely cured catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing the sales rapidly grew and to-day there is no other remedy in T. B. Wallace's stock that has such a large and staple sale.

The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poisons.

Try Hyomei to-day on T. B. Wallace's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby keeping men and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Eastern mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually is of much poorer and inferior quality.

The grocer complains if there is any defect in the quality of our flour, or chopped potato for an article he can get at a cheaper price as good, but he will not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product. Any sack of which is not guaranteed.

Chicken Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade. A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal; also Hard and Soft Wood always on hand at the lowest price.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

Gently I lowered myself into the water. Though the night was cold, the day had been warm and bright and the water was not cold. I struck out and began to swim under the great walls which frowned above me. I could see only three yards ahead. I had then good hopes of escape, even as I crept along close under the damp, moss grown masonry. There were lights from the new part of the castle on the other side, and now and again I heard laughter and merry shouts. I fancied I recognized Prince Rupert Hentzau's ringing tones and pictured him flushed with wine.

Recalling my thoughts to the business in hand, I reached a corner. If Johann's description were right, I must be near the window now. Very slowly I moved, and out of the darkness there loomed a shape. It was the pipe, curving from the window to the water. About two feet of its surface was displayed. It was as big round as two men. I was about to approach it when I saw something moving on the pipe and stood still. The nose of a boat protruded beyond the pipe on the other side, and, leaning forward, I heard whispered shuffle, as of a man shifting his post. Who was the man who guarded Michael's farmehold? Was he enemy or friend?

Of course you can get your size in Stanfield's Underwear.

he as asleep? I felt if my knife were ready and trod water. As I did so I found bottom under my feet. The foundations of the castle extended some fifteen inches, making a ledge, and I stood on it, out of water from my armpits upward. Then I crouched and peered through the darkness under the pipe, where, curving, it left a space.

There was a man in the boat. A rifle lay by him. I saw the gleam of the barrel. Here was the sentinel! He sat very still. I listened. He breathed heavily, regularly, monotonously. By heaven, he slept! Kneeling on the shelf, I drew forward under the pipe till my face was within two feet of his. He was a big man, I saw. It was Max Holf, the brother of Johann. My hand made to my belt, and I drew out my knife. Of all the deeds of my life I love the least to think of this, and shudder as I write that any man or a traitor I will not ask. I said to myself, "It is war, and the king's life is at stake." And I raised myself from beneath the pipe and stood up by the boat, which lay moored by the ledge. Holding my breath, I marked the spot and raised my arm. The great fellow stirred. He opened his eyes—wide, wider. He grasped in terror at my face and clutched at his rifle. I struck home. And I heard the chorus of a love song from the opposite bank.

Leaving him where he lay, a bud-ded mass, I turned to "Jacob's Ladder." My time was short. This fellow's turn of wakening might be soon and eternal. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you.

Water is music when a fountain plays.

It's the simplest thing in the world to use Hy-o-mei and cure catarrh. Breathe the medication through the little inhaler in every outfit, and you will get relief at once. Money back if it fails. T. B. Wallace.

Few Here Know This.

When an eminent authority announced in the Scranton (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, everyday drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims. This was only a few months ago. To-day nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies are announcing it and the splendid results achieved. It is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter. This is not eradicated, either in the urine, or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of kidney and urinary troubles and backache. He also warns people against buying any but the paper against the discriminate use of many patent medicines.

FAREWELL LETTER.

Editor of Beaver:

Dear Sir—Will you permit me to say a few words of farewell to my many dear friends in these columns through the Beaver, a very convenient way, by your permission, of saying farewell to the many friends, many of whom I could not visit. I am thankful for their kind invitations and will never forget the many warm welcomes I have received from many. I thank them more than sixty years ago. I think I can say more than sixty years ago. I think I can say three times months spent in Napanee, Selby, Odessa and back to the Counties of Frontenac and Addington were the most pleasant of my life. I will call this visiting from place to place, with all the constant excitement and interest in every town visited. I was invited upon to sing solos—in many places by the way. Mrs. Coleman Napanee, kindly acceded request in over fifteen different churches, and very few halls, in addition to singing, several different times in three different churches on Sunday, and being driven over twenty miles on a Sabbath, to accommodate those who were neither present, either fourteenness nor sickness of any kind. I will not say that I was homesick but I will say that there is nothing in me but all to the glories of God, and the good of mankind in all humanity.

Now I will say something that will appear a little interest to a lad of the younger portion of our community, but to very few of us of passing forty years ago. I visited the spot where some eighty or more years ago the old red school stood, standing in the fourth concession of Camden, where I entered school seventy-two years ago. I found the old stepping stone, all now that is left, embedded in the sod where we used to step from that to into the school house, remembering well my last visit to the old school with my late father-in-law, Amos B. C. and spelling Ab., Eb., dog, cat and the whole alphabet over and over after three many years, some of the books of long ago, which I hold so dear to-day, laid aside from my father's teaching in music at home, my uncle, Robert Clancy, as solo singing master of some considerable repute at that early day, also that time was an excellent teacher, well known in Richmond and all the country round, Napanee, Kingston. Also some years after, Prof. Eldridge, Napanee, and Prof. Percival, a fine singer; also Prof. Hyrsh, who was well known in Napanee, and Prof. Jacob Newman, Bath, and many others and singers, all are gone but William Somerville, Napanee, who is still adopting his up-to-date instilling progressive eastern farming, J. W. Walker cannot fail when he is settled on his fine farm at the Saskatchewan Valley.—Alert to the ever-increasing demand for queens, George Winter is taking a practical course in telegraphy under Charles Lake. —Mr. and Mrs. Snider, of Wilton, spent Monday at Uncle Hallaney's.—Miss Margaret Hook arrived at W. J. Finlay's on Tuesday and will divide her time here and at Mrs. Mercer Hartman's.—The drawings of Wilson Howen were pronounced the best in fifty schools inspected.

MARLBANK.

G. W. Woodhouse spent Sunday at his home at Tweed.—Miss Jean Armstrong, who is attending St. Agnes' Ladies' College, at Belleville, is spending a few days with her parents here.—John Toppings, a brother of Mrs. Delbert Cook here, and a former resident of Marlbank, was killed in Montana, while performing his duties as brakeman on the C. HELP YOUR BABY.

No mother can expect her little one to escape all the minor ailments of childhood, but she can be reasonably sure that her child will be healthy if she gives it an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. And she can feel absolutely safe in giving this medicine, as she has the guarantee of a government analyst that it contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. Cria Cressman, New Hamburg, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles in connection with the greatest success. I always feel safe when, I have a box of Tablets in the house." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HAIR GOODS

PROF. DORENWEND

OF TORONTO.

IS COMING

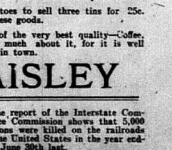
He will be at the Paisley House, Napanee On Monday, Nov. 18th

THIS WINTER VISIT OF 1907

I am prepared to show a larger variety of New York, London and Paris styles than ever offered to the public before. I shall have Ladies and Gentlemen's Wigs Toupees, Bangs, Wavy and Plain Fronts, Switches of all long hair in every length and shade, etc.

Ladies, my goods are recognized as the standard of perfection, and their use protects the head and produces a younger expression to the face.

Gentlemen, are you bald? I invite you to my showroom to demonstrate the complete success of my Art Coverings in Wigs and Toupees, worn on over 8,000 heads. They are light in weight, strong and most natural in appearance, and a protection to the head against draughts, cold, catarrh, neuralgia, etc., and give a younger and handsomer appearance to the face. Please remember day and date.



Paisley House, Napanee, Monday, 18th Nov., 1907.

MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Oranges, nice and bright; Valencia Oranges, good size; fresh Lemons and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—Coffee, of course, that goes without me saying one word about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

JOHN PAISLEY

In the case of Mr. Frank Arnold against Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn the court refused to make an order requiring Mr. Arnold to furnish further particulars of his account for $7,500.

A TRIP TO INDIA.

Mr. T. Naylor has secured the Herald Square Opera Co. for Tuesday evening next, 19th Nov., to give their oriental musical comedy, "A Trip to India, to Deseronto. It is undoubtedly the best of the many musical comedies and light operas produced by this popular organization. There are many artists well known in high class theatricals in the cast of this musical comedy, which by the way has been highly praised at Ogdensburg and Ottawa, where the company appeared a few nights ago. Among the principals, Martin, Fuche was formerly the principal tenor in Sousa's "El Capitan"; Anna Headd as Fifi, the Persian Girl, was the feature of "The Belle of New York"; Frederica Keck, late understudy of Madam Butterfly in the New York production; George Williams, who first appeared as Koko in "Mikado," and Happy Jack Dewey, comical laugh producer in many New York successes. Prices, 25, 50, 75 cts.

ITCHING, BURNING, SKIN DISEASES CURED FOR THIRTY-FIVE CENTS. — Dr. Agnew's Ointment leaves no trace of the cures Pimple, Boil, Blood Tetter, Eczema, Barber's Itch, Ulcers, Blotches and all eruptions of the skin. It is wonderful in its quieting and acts like magic in the cure of all baby humors. 35c. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—6.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Napanee Woman's Aid Society of the Kingston General Hospital will be held in the Board room of the Library, Wednesday, Nov. 20th, at 4.30. All the ladies please make an effort to be present. Reports for the year will be given, and officers for the ensuing year elected.

COLLEGIATE SPORTS.

The Collegiate sports were pulled off at the driving park on Tuesday afternoon. The track was wet and in consequence a number of the events were cancelled. The winners were:

Sr. 100 yards dash—Joe. McNeill, Bruce Jemmett.

Jr. 100 yards dash—Beverly Simpson, Limbert Graham.

Sr. pole vaulting—I. McNeill, E. Anderson, R. Jemmett.

Sr. running high jump—J. McNeill, B. Jemmett.

Girls' 50 yard dash—Zella Parks, Stella Loughlen, Muriel Paul.

DIED IN EARLY YOUTH.

Walter A. Russell, son of the late Walter Russell, died on Saturday morning, 9th Nov., at the residence of his aunt, Miss Sarah Allen, Mill st., aged 23 years. Deceased was born in Colorado, and after receiving a splendid education, took up the vocation of dry goods clerk which he pursued for five years in a large store in New York City. About a year ago his health began to fail and he came to Napanee for treatment. All that kind and loving hands and the best medical skill could do for him was of no avail, and his spirit fled to the great beyond on Saturday morning. One brother, James, of Toronto, is left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving brother. The funeral, which took place on Monday afternoon to the Eastern vault, was largely attended, showing the high esteem in which the young man was held by his many friends in Napanee.

CHURCH RE-OPENING.

The Methodist church at Mcetown will be reopened on Sunday, 24th Nov., services to be conducted by Rev. R. H. J. Strike, Deseronto. On Monday evening, 25th inst., a grand entertainment will be given by the choir and foreign talent, including Miss Edna Ashley, soprano soloist and whistler, Napanee; Miss Mae Limbert, soprano soloist, Newburgh; Miss Georgie Warner, Colebrook; and Wilton Male Quartette. Addresses will also be given by Rev. Dr. Strike, the Chairman, Mr. M. S. Madole, and others. Admission 25 cts.

"THE PLAY OF CURTAIN CALLS."

The next entertainment attraction at the Bijou Opera House on Tuesday, 19th Nov., bears the above title, viz: "The Shadow Behind the Throne," provided by its authors, and second, "The Play of Curtain Calls," produced upon it in Greater New York in recognition of the unusual number of compliments it received in the form peculiarly indicated. The press notices also to appreciate and illustrate toward the novel advance commission paid it in being permitted to enjoy a part that appeals to its intelligence. Great care and attention of attractive possibilities and probabilities, by giving it at once a patriotic, romantic and heroic story laid among strange oriental surroundings, an original and powerful plot, in which almost every human passion plays a conspicuous part, and an abiding lesson of patriotism and heroic devotion to love, duty and country. Vigorous speech, virile action, genuine comedy, beauty, grace, gorgeous costumes, glorious scenes and electrifying climaxes complete the picture. Prices — 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c. Plan at Hawley's.

Have You Been Misled?

Some time ago, owing to an erroneous report in circulation that a raise in the CAMPBELL HOUSE rates had been made on the farming community hereabouts, a correction appeared in these columns. Further stories have made it necessary to again enter a denial. In this connection we have much pleasure in saying that not only does the rate remain $1.00 PER DAY—25c A MEAL TO THE FARMERS AND LOCAL PATRONAGE EXCLUSIVELY ($1.50 and $2.00 per day to the travelling public) in the face of a high market, but an expenditure of $5,000 is being made in improvements of a steam heating plant, telephones, etc., etc., which will enhance very materially the well known conveniences, comfort and quality of this commodious hostelry. A courteous welcome is extended. THE CAMPBELL HOUSE. H. Taylor. 49b

CORRECTION.

Bath, Nov. 12th, 1907.

Dear Sir,—Would like you to correct a statement in Beaver of Nov. 8th. The work done at Bath by "Made-in-Canada" Fair held at Kingston, was not done by myself alone. Mrs. H. S. Needham was the convener and to her should fall a full share of the praise.

HISTORICAL.

There will be no public meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society this month, owing to the inability of Mr. C. C. James to address us on the November 22d. The Board of Governors have endeavored to secure a lecturer but have been unsuccessful. The December meeting will be addressed by Prof. Adam Shortt, who has taken as a subject "The first visits of Europeans to the neighborhood of Kingston and the Bay of Quinte." The date of the meeting will be announced later.

MASONIC VISITATION.

A special Communication of Union Lodge No. 9, A.F. & A.M., was held on Friday evening, the 8th inst., when R. W. Bro. B. N. Johnston, D.D.G.M. of the 14th Masonic District, made his official visit to the Lodge. Large attendance of the brethren from Union Lodge, and neighboring lodges turned out, notwithstanding the very inclement weather, to welcome the distinguished brother. A banquet was held in the Hall at the close of the meeting, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

WONDERLAND.

A most successful dancing was held last Wednesday evening for the beautiful etchings supplied by Mr. A. E. Paul. Mr. H. E. Rockwell, of John st., member of the T.C.C., was declared the winner of the committee of gentlemen, Messrs. Hannah, Scrimshaw, Paul and Metcalfe. The lucky number was 460 ! The other numbers drawn were 324 ! 548 ! 880 ! 427 ! 266 ! 98 ! The illustrated song, "Just one word of Friendship", was most successfully sung by Mr. H. T. Bristol, the well known local baritone. The audience gave the clever artist their hearty applause and demanded his reappearance before the screen. A friend and patron of Wonderland gave the manager a bouquet to present to this young and able vocalist.

A Great Growth.

The recent rapid development of the Lawrason & Co. Cut Rate Drug Store is a striking demonstration of the power of good values, the best quality, and persistent advertising. Lawrason & Co. this season, in addition to the greatest, largest and choicest stock they have ever carried, are offering such unparalleled values as are arousing widespread interest and bringing hundreds of new customers to their store. For nearly three years they have been doing business on their new method, being the pioneers of "cut prices" in Napanee, and have saved the people many dollars in the drug line. They have built up a reputation for honorable and fair dealing that has made them many new friends. Their store is full to overflowing with fresh pure drugs at prices never before quoted in Napanee, and this season they have made unusually large purchases in Xmas goods at prices that "spot cash" alone will bring. It will pay all who wish to save money on Drugs, Patents, Proprietors, etc., to give this store a visit. The people have come to know and appreciate the advantage of buying drugs and drug store goods at Lawrason & Co.'s Cut Rate Drug Store.

From his farm Judge Blank was in the habit of supplying the preachers of all the churches with flour, corn, hay, and vegetables free of cost. He also kept the country supplied with venison from the herd of deer which he kept for many years. He built a big smokehouse in the rear of his grounds. One night, unseen himself, he saw a man emerge from the smokehouse with a side of pork on his shoulder. He recognized the intruder, but said nothing. A week afterward the fellow approached him saying: "Judge, I understand you had some meat stolen from your smokehouse?" The old judge raised his hand deprecatingly and said: "Sh! No one on earth knows anything about that but you and me."

There is a young man in Boston who can actually trace his family back two generations. His one failing is a desire to be thought a descendant of one of "the old families," and his studio—he says he is an artist—contains a number of heirlooms. One thing in which he takes particular pride is a Continental uniform, complete in every detail, with flint lock and powder horn. He was showing this to a young lady the other day. "My great-grandfather wore this suit when he gave his life to his country during the brave days of the Revolution!" he said. The young lady inspected the uniform carefully, but, could find neither bullet hole nor rusher cut. She turned to him with a charming smile, "Oh! Was the poor old gentleman drowned?" she asked.

Rich Black Silks

AUTUMN SHOWING OF SILKS

The products of the best known silk manufacturers of the world are represented — SILKS from such makers as C. J. Bonnet & Co. and Antoine Guinet & Co., of Lyons.

The values we offer would have been counted exceptional months ago, before the cost of raw silk advanced so much.

In many instances the silks are to be had at prices that would not cover the cost of production at the present state of the raw silk market.

We Are Offering

"GUINET'S" TAFFETAS 20 inches wide, at 75c, 80c and $1.00.

"GUINET'S" MESSALINE 20½ inches wide, at 75c and $1.00.

IMPORTED LOUISIENES 24 inches wide, at 60c, 75c and $1.00.

BRITISH TAMOLINES 20 inches wide, at 50c and 60c.

"C. J. BONNET'S" TAFFETA—21¼ inches wide, at 75c and $1.00.

"BONNET'S" PEAU - DE - SOIE — 21½ inches wide — $1.00 to $1.50.

SPECIAL DRESS SILK Beautiful Rich Peau-de-Soie, 21½ inches wide, made to sell at $1.00 and well worth it; we offer it at 75c per yard.

HAVE YOUR COAT LINED with the celebrated "Skinner" Satin. It is guaranteed for two seasons' all new colors, also Black and White in stock. Samples sent anywhere.

Mrs. W. S. Raymond, Barrett, Kansas, returned home, after spending the past two months with relatives in Watertown, N.Y.

WANTED

EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN NAPANEE

to call at our store for the greatest strength creator and health restorer which we have ever sold—Vinol. It is not a patent medicine, but the most valuable cod liver preparation made by an extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers without a drop of oil to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work, and tonic iron which is a needful constituent for the blood added.

We do not believe there is a person in this vicinity who cannot be benefited by Vinol at this season of the year. Vinol is delicious to the taste, and it is recognized as the greatest strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women and children, nursing mothers, and after a severe sickness.

Vinol is unequalled for hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles. Creates an appetite and makes those who are too thin, fat, rosy and healthy.

We have had so much experience with Vinol and seen so many wonderful results from its use that we offer to return money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim—for it. T. B. Wallace, Napanee, Ont.

GOOD BUTTER.

If you want good creamery or dairy butter try H. W. KELLY'S grocery. Also Redpath's granulated Sugar, the best. 44.00 per hundred.

TAX SALE.

A sale of lands for taxes will be held at the Court House, Napanee, on Tuesday next, 26th Nov., and the following day, if necessary, beginning at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The lands to be sold are in the Towips of Anglesea, Effingham, Kaladar and Sheffield.

MRS. JOHN GOLLINGER.

On Wednesday, Oct. 23d, Mrs. John Gollinger died at her home in Selby. Mrs. Gollinger, whose maiden name was Jane Martha Storrings, was the daughter of John and Martha Storrings. She had not been strong for some time, but apparently seemed to be gaining in health when a sudden change came on Wednesday morning, and although the best medical skill was procured she passed away that afternoon. Amiable and quiet in disposition, but always cheerful, she was much beloved by all who knew her. Early in life she united with the Methodist church, and lived a consistent and earnest Christian life. The funeral sermon was preached in the Selby Methodist church, by her pastor, Rev. C. L. Thompson, after which her casket was placed in the Newburgh vault. Her husband and friends mourn their loss. But they are comforted by the assurance that she has gone to be forever with the Lord.

TRIPPLE WEDDING.

The happy event of a tripple wedding took place at Cataraqui parsonage on Wednesday morning, 6th Nov., at ten o'clock by Rev. Bridwell. The contracting parties were Mr. Walter Hegadorn of Odessa, to Miss Matel Smith of Sharpton; Mr. Archie Hegadorn, of Odessa, to Miss Laig Ohlman, of North Fredericksburgh, and Mr. George Ohlman of North Fredericksburgh, to Miss Mertie Hegadorn, of Odessa. The happy couples were driven to Kingston, in rubber-tire cabs drawn by white horses, where they took the 2 o'clock boat for Watertown and Syracuse, N.Y.

* MARSH—EMBURY.

A quiet wedding took place Monday morning, 18th Nov., when Miss Ella Marsh was united in marriage to Edward Embury, at St. Patrick's Church, by Rev. Father O'Connor. The bride was assisted by her sister, and Mr. Spencer, brother-in-law of the bride, acted as best man. After the ceremony the happy couple left on the east bound train, where they will spend a few days in the Metropolis. The bride was one of Napanee's popular young ladies, having been connected with the staff of The Robinson Co., Ltd., for the last few years. The employees took the opportunity of showing their esteem for the bride, by calling on her in a body and presenting her with a handsome silver tea-pot. Among the many other presents was a handsome rug presented by The Robinson Co., Ltd. Thos. J. Marsh, brother of the bride, and who is proprietor of the Marsh Iron Works, of New York City, came to attend his sister's wedding, and returned to New York on Tuesday.

A PICTON ROMANCE.

Picton, Nov. 15th—the marriage, on Monday evening, at the home of Ward Wellbanks and E. R. Wood, marine surveyor, both sons of the late Marcus Wood, senator of New York, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. Pope, was the climax to a very interesting romance, that reads like a chapter from the most romantic novel. "Mary" and "Eddie" were playmates together and the friendship of early days so strengthened that in due time the young couple became engaged. Miss Mary now has given her hand box and seat to a New York boarding school. The separation was a long one, neither of the two lovers seeing each other till a few days ago. During the interval of years Mr. Wood was married and widowed—but remained true to his first love, and Miss Mary never married and never became a widow, and now she's a blushing bride—as the bride of her original sweetheart.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, Nov. 18th, 1907.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng in the chair.

Members present—Councillors Simpson, Williams, Graham, Denison, Kimmerly and Reeve Lowry.

Minutes of last session were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

From Fred. J. Vanalstyne, representing the Napanee Fire Brigade, asking for their yearly salary. Laid on the table till later in the evening.

From John Chatterson, offering to attend fires and draw water at night calls only, for the sum of $50.00 per year. Laid on the table till later in the evening.

From Dr. Ward, asking payment for services rendered Miss Delgene, some time ago. Laid on the table till later in the evening.

By grant of $250.00 to the Napanee Public Library, and that a cheque be drawn payable to A. D. Crookery, Secretary. On motion the request was granted.

From Henry Sewry, Brantford, offering to furnish the town with a sewer pipe for street purposes. On motion was ordered filed.

From M. A. Hiron, representing the Home for Incurable Children, asking for a contribution. On motion was ordered filed.

Mr. Davis, engineer, Guelph, appeared before the Council in reference to a sewerage system for the town. It was thought the town was in a much better condition than other places for sewerage disposal, having a good body of water near at hand. He was surprised to know that the town was not supplied with water from somewhere for domestic purposes, instead of from wells. The probable cost of a proper sewerage system would be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Mr. Madole appeared before the Council in reference to Hay Bay ferry. The ferry cost about $375.00. There was still an amount of about $150.00 due on the ferry yet. He thought the Council should contribute $100.00 at least, to relieve certain obligations.

Mr. W. T. Gibbard was also present, and endorsed Mr. Madole's remarks, and was surprised to know that the Council had contributed nothing. It was a public enterprise, and he was one who had contributed towards its maintenance. The $100.00 he thought should be donated. Mr. F. W. Smith, W. A. Bellhouse and H. H. Hunter also spoke in very favorable terms. Mr. Smith was informed that the citizens of Picton subscribed annually the sum of $500.00 towards keeping up the ferry between Glenora and Prince Edward County.

Moved by Coun. Kimmerly, seconded by Reeve Lowry, that the sum of $100.00 be granted towards the Hay Bay ferry. Carried. Coun. Denison reported that Wm. Appleby wanted to go to the House of Providence. On motion it was left in his hands with power to act. On motion he was requested to give a statement of all pensioners on his list at next meeting of Council.

On motion the clerk was instructed to write to the Napanee Waterworks Co., asking them to furnish the town with a copy of an agreement re waterworks, which was drawn up in 1887.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1895, by Henry Holt & Company

"The devil, but it's Sark!" cried a ringing voice.

It was young Rupert. A moment later shots rang out. Our people had met them. I started forward at a run, Sapt and Fritz following me.

"Thrust, thrust!" cried Rupert again, and a loud groan following told that he himself was not beheaded.

"I'm done, Rupert!" cried a voice. "They're three to one. Save yourself!"

I ran on, holding my cudgel in my hand. Suddenly a horse came toward me. A man was on it, leaning over the shoulder.

"Are you cooked, too, Krafstein?" he cried.

There was no answer.

I sprang to the horse's head. It was Rupert Hentzau.

"At last!" I cried.

For we seemed to have him. He had only his sword in his hand. My men were close upon him. Sapt and Fritz were running up. I had outstripped them, but if they got close enough to fire he must die or surrender.

"At last!" I cried.

"It's the play actor!" cried he, slashing at my cudgel. He cut it clean in two, and, judging discretion better than death, I ducked my head and (I hope to tell) scampered for my life. The devil was in Rupert Hentzau, for he put spurs to his horse, and I, turning to look, saw him ride full gallop to the edge of the moat and leap in, while the shots of our party fell thick round him. His bait. With one gleam of moonlight we should have riddled him with balls, but in the darkness he fell to the corner of the castle and vanished from our sight.

"The dence take him!" grinned Sapt. "It's a pity," said I, "that he's a villain. Whom have we got?"

We had Lauengram and Krafstein. They lay dead and dead, and, concealment being no longer possible, we flung them, with Max, into the moat and, tying together in a compact body, rode off down the hill. And in our midst went the bodies of four gallant gentlemen. Thus we traveled home, heavy at heart for the death of our friends, sore uneasy concerning the king and cut to the quick that young Rupert had played yet another winning hand with us.

"It's the play actor!" cried he.

For my own part I was vexed and angry that I had killed no man in open fight, but only stabbed a knave in his sleep. And I did not love to hear Rupert call me a play actor.

CHAPTER XV.

RURITANIA is not in England or the quarrel between Duke Michael and myself could not have gone on with the remarkable incidents which marked it, without more public notice being directed to it. Duels were frequent among all the upper classes, and private quarrels between great men kept the old habit of spreading to their friends and dependents. Nevertheless, after the affray which I have just related such reports began to circulate that I felt it necessary to be on my guard.

The death of the gentlemen involved could not be hidden from their relatives. I issued a stern order declaring that I should attach to myself personally all license (the chancellor drew up the document for me, and very well he did it), and forbidding it save in the gravest cases. I sent a public and stately apology to Michael, and he returned a defensive and courteous reply to me, for our one point of union was—and it underlay all our differences and induced an unwilling harmony between our actions—that we could neither of us afford to throw our cards on the table. He, as well as I, was a "play actor," and, hating one another, we combined to dupe public opinion. Unfortunately, however, the necessity for concealment involved the necessity of delay. The king might die in his prison or even be spirited off somewhere else. It could not be helped. For a little while I was compelled to observe a truce, and my only consolation was that Flavia most warmly approved of my edict against dueling, and when I expressed delight at having won her favor prayed me, if her favor were any motive to me, to prohibit the practice altogether.

"Wait till we are married," said I, smiling.

Not the least peculiar result of the truce and of the secrecy which dictated it was that the town of Zenda became in the daytime, I would not have trusted far to its protection by night—a sort of neutral zone, where both parties could safely go, and I, riding down one day with Flavia and Sapt, had an encounter with an acquaintance which presented a ludicrous side, but was at the same time embarrassing. As I rode along I met a dignified looking person driving in a two horsed carriage. He stopped his horses, got out and approached me, bowing low. I recognized the head of the Strelsau police.

"Your majesty's ordinance as to dueling is receiving our best attention," he assured me.

If the best attention involved his presence in Zenda, I resolved at once to dispense with it.

"Is that what brings you to Zenda, prefect?" I asked.

"Why, yes, sire. I am here because I desired to oblige the British ambassador."

"What's the British ambassador doing dans cette galere?" said I carelessly.

"A young countryman of his, sire—a man of some position—is missing. His friends have not heard from him for two months, and there is reason to believe that he was last seen in Zenda."

Flavia was paying little attention. I dared not look at Sapt.

"What reason?"

"A friend of his in Paris, a certain M. Feversham, has given us information which makes it possible that he came here, and the officials of the railway recollect his name on some luggage."

"What was his name?"

"Hassendyl, sire," he answered, and I saw that the name meant nothing to him. But, glancing at Flavia, he lowered his voice as he went on: "It is thought that he may have followed a lady here. Has your majesty heard of a certain Mme. de Mauban?"

"Why, yes," said I, my eyes involuntarily traveling toward the castle. "She arrived in Ruritania about the same time as Mr. Hassendyl."

I caught the prefect's glance. He was regarding me with inquiry writ large on his face.

"Sapt," said I, "I must speak a word to the prefect. Will you ride on a few paces with the princess?" And I added to the prefect, "Come, sir, what do you mean?"

He drew close to me, and I bent in the saddle.

"If he were in love with the lady?" he whispered. "Nothing has been heard of him for two months. And this time it was the eye of the prefect which traveled toward the castle.

"Tss, the lady is there," I said quietly. "But I don't suppose Mr. Rassendyl—is that the name?—is—"

"The duke," he whispered, "how not like rivals, sire."

"You're right there," said I, with all gloomiest that merely you hint at a very grave charge."

He spread his hands out in apology. I whispered to his ear:

"This is a grave matter. Go back to Strelsau."

"But, sire, if I have a clew here?"

"Go back to Strelsau," I repeated. "Tell the ambassador that you have a clew, but that you must be left alone for a week or two. Meanwhile I'll charge myself with looking into the matter."

"The ambassador is very pressing, sire."

"You must quiet him. Come, sir; you see that if your suspicions are correct it is an affair in which we must move with caution. We can have no scandal. Mind you return tonight."

He promised to obey me, and I rode on to rejoin my companions, a little easier in my mind. Inquiries after me must be stopped at all hazards for a week or two, and this clever official had come surprisingly near the truth. His impression might be useful some day, but if he acted on it now it might mean the worst to the king. Heartily did I curse George Featherly for not holding his tongue.

"Well," asked Flavia, "have you finished your business?"

"Most satisfactorily," said I. "Come, shall we turn round? We are almost trenching on my brother's territory."

We were, in fact, at the extreme end of the town, just where the hill begins to mount toward the castle. We cast our eyes up, admiring the massive beauty of the old walls, and we saw a cortege winding slowly down the hill. On it came.

"Let us go back," said Sapt.

"I should like to stay," said Flavia, and I reined my horse beside hers.

We could distinguish the approaching party now. There came first two mounted servants in black uniforms, relieved only by a silver badge. These were followed by a car drawn by four horses. On it, under a heavy pall, lay a coffin. Behind it rode a man in plain black clothes, carrying his hat in his hand. Sapt uncovered, and we stood waiting, Flavia keeping by me and laying her hand on my arm.

"It is one of the gentlemen killed in the quarrel, I suspect," she said.

I beckoned to a groom.

"Ride and ask whom they escort," I ordered.

He rode up to the servants, and I saw him pass on to the gentleman who rode behind.

"It's Rupert of Hentzau," whispered Sapt.

Rupert it was, and directly after ward, waving to the procession to stand still, Rupert trotted up to me. He was in a frock coat, tightly buttoned, and trousers. He wore an aspect of sadness, and he bowed with profound respect. Yet suddenly he smiled, and I smiled, too, for did Sapt's hand lay in his left breast pocket, and Rupert and I both guessed what lay in the hand inside the pocket.

"Your majesty asks whom we escort," said Rupert. "It is my dear friend Albert of Lauengram."

"Sir," said I, "no one regrets the unfortunate affair more than I. My ordinance, which I mean to have obeyed, is witness to it."

"Poor fellow!" said Flavia softly, and I saw Rupert's eyes flash at her, whereat I grew red, for if I had my way Rupert Hentzau should not have defiled her by so much as a glance. Yet he did it and dared to let admiration be seen in his look.

"Your majesty's words are gracious," he said. "I grieve for my friend, yet, sire, others must soon lie as he lies now."

"It is a thing we all do well to remember, my lord," I rejoined.

"Even kings, sire," said Rupert in a moralizing tone, and old Sapt swore softly by my side.

"It is true," said I. "How fares my brother, my lord?"

"He is better, sire."

"I am rejoiced."

"He hopes soon to leave for Strelsau, when his health is secured."

"He is only convalescent, then?"

"There remain one or two small troubles," answered the insolent fellow in the mildest tone in the world.

"Express my earnest hope," said Flavia, "that they may soon cease to trouble him."

"Your royal highness' wish is himself my own," said Rupert, with a bold glance that brought a blush to Flavia's cheek.

I bowed, and Rupert, bowing lower, backed his horse and signed to his party to proceed. With a sudden impulse I rode after him. He turned swiftly, fearing that even in the presence of the dead and before a lady's eyes I meant mischief.

"You fought as a brave man the other night," I said. "Come, you are young, sir. If you will deliver your prisoner alive to me you shall come to no hurt."

He looked at me with a mocking smile, but suddenly he rode nearer to me.

"I'm unarmed," he said, "and our old Sapt there could pick me off in a minute."

"I'm not afraid," said I.

"No, curse you!" he answered. "Look here, I have made a proposal from the duke once."

"I'll hear nothing from Black Michael," said I.

"Then hear one from me." He lowered his voice to a whisper. "Attack the castle boldly. Let Sapt and Tarlenheim lead."

"Go on," said I.

"Arrange the time with me."

"I have such confidence in you, my lord!"

"Fool! I'm talking business now. Sapt there and Fritz will fall; Black Michael will fall—"

"What!"

"Black Michael will fall, like the dog he is; the princess, as you call him, will go by Jacob's ladder—ah, you know that? Two men will be left—I, Rupert Hentzau, and you, the king of Ruritania."

He paused, and then in a voice that quivered with eagerness added:

"Isn't that a hand to play?—a throne and you princess! And for me, say a competence and your majesty's gratitude."

"Get out of my reach!" said I, and yet in a moment I began to laugh for the very audacity of it.

"I would you had come against your master" I asked.

He swore at Michael and said to me in an almost confidential and apparently friendly tone:

"He gets in my way, you know. He's a jealous brute! Faith, I nearly stuck a knife into him last night. He came most cursedly mal apropos."

"Rupert's was well under control now. I was learning something.

"A lady?" I asked negligently.

"Aye, and a beauty," he nodded. "But you've seen her."

"I? Was it at a tea party, when some of your friends got on the wrong side of the table?"

"What can you expect of fools like Detchard and De Gautet? I wish I'd been there."

"And the duke interferes?"

"Well," said Rupert meditatively, "that's hardly a fair way of putting it, perhaps. I want to interfere—"

"And she prefers the duke?"

"Aye, the silly creature! Ah, well, you think always by play," and, with a bow, he pricked his horse and trotted after the body of his friend.

I went back to Flavia and Sapt, pondering on the strangeness of the man. Wicked men I have known in plenty, but Rupert Hentzau remains unique in my experience. And if there be one other anywhere let him be caught and hanged out of hand. So say I.

"He's very handsome, isn't he?" said Flavia.

Well, of course, she didn't know him as I did, yet I was put out, for I thought his bold glances would have made her angry. But my dear Flavia was a woman, and so—she was not put out. On the contrary, she thought young Rupert was very handsome—as, beyond question, the ruffian was.

"And how sad he looked at his friend's death!" she said.

"That's another reason to be sad at his own," observed Sapt, with a grim smile.

As for me, I grew sulky. Unreasonable it was, perhaps, for what better business had I to look at her with eyes than had even Rupert? And sulky I remained till, as evening fell and we rode up to Tarlenheim, Sapt having fallen behind in case any one should be following us, Flavia, riding close beside me, said softly, with a little half ashamed laugh:

"Unless you smile, Rudolf, I cry. Why are you angry?"

"It was something that fellow said to me," said I, but I was smiling as we reached the doors and dismounted.

There I served Sapt and me a note. It was unaddressed.

"Is it for me?" I asked.

"Yes, sire; a boy brought it."

I tore it open:

"Beaten carrion this for me. I warned you once. In the name of God and if you are a man, rescue me from this den of murderers!"

I handed it to Sapt, but all that the tough old rout said in reply to this piteous appeal was:

"Whose fault brought her there?"

Nevertheless, not being faultless myself, I took leave to pity Antonietta de Mauban.

CHAPTER XVI.

AS I had ridden publicly in Zenda and had talked with Rupert Hentzau, of course all pretense of illness was at an end. I marked the effect on the garrison of Zenda. Its officers had been abroad, and any of my men who went near the castle reported that the outward vigilance preached there. Touching as I was by Mme. de Mauban's appeal, I accused as powerless to befriend her as I have proved to help the king. Michael bade me defiance, and, although he, too, had been seen outside the walls, with more disregard for appearances than he had hitherto shown, he did not take the trouble to send any excuse for his failure to wait on the king.

Time ran on in inactivity when every moment was pressed by fate. Day only was I faced, with the new danger which the stir about my own disappearance brought on me, but great pressure had been put on Strelsau to continued absence from the city. They had been greater but for the knowledge that I was there with Sapt, and for this reason I suffered her to stay, though I hated to have her where danger was and though every day of our present sweet intercourse strained my endurance almost to breaking. As a final blow nothing would content my subjects, Strelsau and the chancellor, who came out from Strelsau to make an urgent representation to me, save that I should appoint a day for the public solemnization of my betrothal. a ceremony which in Ruritania is well nigh as binding and great a thing as the marriage itself. And this, with Flavia sitting by me, I was forced to do, setting a date a fortnight ahead and naming the cathedral of Zenda as the place. And this formal act, being published far and wide, caused a flutter of joy throughout the kingdom that was the talk of all tongues, so that I reckoned there were but two men who desired it—I mean Black Michael and myself—and but one who did not know of it—that one the man whose name is the king of Ruritania.

In truth, I heard something of the way the news was received in the castle, for after an interval of three days the man Johann, greedy for more money, though fearful for his life, again found means to visit me. He had been waiting on the duke when the tidings came. Black Michael's face had grown blacker still, and helpful sworn savagery. Nor was he better pleased when Rupert took oath that I meant to do as I said and, turning to Mme. de Mauban, bade her write to say she was free. Michael's hand stole toward his sword, said Johann, but not a bit did Rupert care, for he rallied the duke on having made a better king than had reigned for years past in Ruritania. "And," said he, with a meaning bow to his exasperated master, "the devil sends the princess a freer man than heaven had started out for her. By my soul, he does!" Then Michael harshly bade him hold his tongue and leave them, but Rupert must needs tell the lady Antonietta, which he did as though he loved her, while Michael glared at him.

LEARN TO EAT.

FEW PEOPLE IN NAPANEE REALLY KNOW HOW.

Slow eating will solve one-half the problem of dyspepsia. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach will find that a meal slowly eaten with the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na tablet before meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion, and the unpleasant full feeling with which so many suffer after meals.

T. B. Wallace has so much confidence in the power of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion and all stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent box or can and the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

William Jennings Bryan has issued a statement saying that he will support the Democratic nomination for President if it is offered him, but will not fight for it.

There has been placed in Christ Church, Tyendinaga Reserve, a memorial of the thoughtfulness of the late Dr. Oronhyatekha for his beloved tribe of Mohawks. When in Jerusalem some years ago he purchased a handsome cross of olive wood, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, the whole being an example of the finest kind of workmanship. It is a fitting gift which will be appreciated by the parishioners.

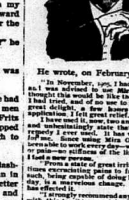
K'arvelous case of Leo Carrigan which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured. Since childhood, Leo Carrigan has been tortured with the burning agony and itching torture of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines but all to no avail.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain were so great that he was nervous, life was a burden. He would get no bed he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1905, I had another attack, as I was advised to use Mira Ointment. I thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and of no use to me, but, to my great delight, a few hours after the first application I felt relief.

"I have used it now, two and a-half months, and have nothing to state that it is not the only thing I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. I can sleep every night without irritation or pain—no stiffness of the limbs or soreness. I feel a new man.

"From a state of great irritation and soreness extending pains to freedom from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has done it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. —6 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 18

BOVRIL

Contains the life-sustaining elements of

B E E F

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

That is where BOVRIL differs from beef extracts.

BOVRIL does contain the nourishment and life-sustaining elements of beef as well as its rich flavor.

BOVRIL gives strength and nourishment to the inward. With it as help you can make left-over scraps into delicious consommes, bouillons and soups with very little trouble.

BOVRIL is the true economist in the home kitchen.

HOLIDAY ENTERTAINMENTS.

Are you going to give a party for your children, or for your friends of your own age during the coming Christmas holidays? Do you want some ideas which no one has had a chance to try before? Get the December number of the New Idea Woman's Magazine and read "Mrs. Santa Claus at Home," and "Christmas Frolics for the Youngsters." Send your friends one of the original invitations illustrated in an article on this subject and make the affair complete. We publish the most novel and music for a charming Christmas carol, which the children can learn, as well as four programs for amateur musical entertainments. "Good Housekeeping" is full of good recipes, not only for the dainty things such as Christmas cakes, sweetmeats and puddings, but the method of cooking steak and fish on a wooden plank—a method not known to many housewives—is also discussed. "Marketing for Small Families" will help all those who have to make the best of a small income.

There is quite a colony of Napanee people under one roof in Winnipeg, or if they are not under one roof, they can be easily reached by the Napanee visitor in the strange land. It is not far from the station either, and the Manor House is the name of the friendly hotel that shelters them. First there is the Proprietor, Edward McEntyr, who years ago came from these parts, and who is surrounded by six stalwart sons. Then there is Mack Cooper, well known as "Mack" in this locality. Paisley House some time ago, with Thomas Moore and Dannie Whelan, the three last named being fellow employees of Mr. B. It is safe to say that any one who hails from Hastings County or Napanee in particular, will be made at home should he ever blow into the Manor House, Winnipeg.

Advices from Clifton Springs are to the effect that Hon. A. B. Aylesworth is progressing favorably, and that his health is much improved.

We give 10 per cent. off yeast, soda, blue, boot and stove polish, comfort soap, Diamond Dyes, etc.

10 to 35 per cent. off on pure cinnamon, cloves, ginger, mustard, allspice, cubebs, starches, cocoanut, cocoas, matches, leather color, tapioca, sago, barley, soaps, etc.

Some of our competitors whose business conscience permitted him to sell coal oil at 25 cents, roasting only 14½ cents, until we advertised it at 15 cents, now says "you will always find my prices below any others advertised." Do you?

The reading public know why coal oil was sold at, and below cost in Napanee. The motive was not generosity, nor to refund their illegal profits, but to force us to join the combine, and restore former prices. Sales will be used with crape, hooks, etc., enough said. All our prices are always right.

BRING IN YOUR WIFE

Any man that is fortunate enough to have a wife will do well to bring her along when ready to select his Fall and Winter Suit.

We Extend to Her a Personal Invitation

A woman's eyes see and appreciate the quality of fabrics, the accentuated point—we call style—the excellent tailoring, the artistic touch and care we give details and the cut.

Men know whether they like the general style and feel of the fabric when they put on a suit, and after they have worn it—the tailoring and look of the suit. But a woman will know at a glance just what you are getting, how it becomes you and how well it is worth the price—no matter what grade of suit you buy.

This has been the busiest season we have ever had in our Tailoring Department. There is only one explanation for it—we make stylish clothes and sell them on their merits.

..SUITS..

$15.00, $16.00, $17.00, $18.00, $20.00, $22.00, $24.00, $26.00.

Men's Winter Underwear

Now-a-days men are just as particular in choosing their warm underwear for Winter months as they are in purchasing a suit of clothes.

With proper regard for words that do not exaggerate, we claim an excellent showing—the best line of Men's Underwear in town. We've every that's good, from all cotton to choice all wools. Every textile is represented in all weights and sizes.

The following "Tiger Brand" makes are sold exclusively by us. These garments are properly sized, well made and give excellent satisfaction:

50c Cotton Fleece, sizes 32 to 44.
75c Wool Fleece, sizes 34 to 44.
75c All-wool Knit in all sizes.
$1.00 extra heavy All-wool, guaranteed unshrinkable.
Penman's make, 75c to $1.50.

Woolsley and Ceetee, finest Australian All-wool, $2.25 and $2.50 per garment; guaranteed unshrinkable.

Sunday, Nov. 24th: Hawley, 10.30 a.m. St. Thomas, Morven, 3 p.m. St. Alban's, Odessa, 7 p.m.

WHERE TO GO.

When in need of a first-class Hair Cut and Shave, call at W. CUMMINGS', Bar ber Shop, opposite the Bay View House, Bath. 47ap

A NICE PRESENT.

The Ladies' Aid of Trinity church have in press a handsome book of nearly two hundred leaved recipes, which will be offered to the public soon. No more suitable Christmas present could be procured for an absent friend.

WESTERN METHODIST CHURCH.

On Sunday morning next, at 10.30, special Sunday school music will be rendered, including a quartette led by Mr. Fisher, and report of Sunday School convention.

Evening—Sermon by pastor on "Temperance." Special music by quartette.

PARLOR MEETING W.C.T.U.

There will be a parlor meeting of the W.C.T.U. at the residence of Mrs. C. H. Wartman, Richard st., on Tuesday, Nov. 26th, at 3 p.m. The report of the delegates to the W.C.T.U. Provincial convention will be given. All the ladies of the town are cordially invited.

SALVATION ARMY.

A lantern service and lecture entitled "Catterina," a thrilling story of a drunkard and his blind child, illustrated by fifty beautifully colored stereopticon views, will be given by Capt. H. Hurd, on Thursday evening, Nov. 28th, at the S. A. barracks. This is a splendid service, well worth hearing. Come and spend an enjoyable evening with the Salvation Army.

CASTORIA. Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

CANADIAN PICTORIAL.

The National Illustrated Magazine. Exquisitely printed on fine coated paper. Pictures of well-known people, of current events, of things beautiful and curious. About one thousand square inches of pictures in each issue. Appeals to Canadians as the great illustrated papers of London appeal to the English people. Non-political. Absolutely no axe to grind. Its aim solely to please and to inform. Must be seen to be appreciated. Ten cents a copy. One dollar a year. The 'Pictorial' Publishing Co., 142 St. Peter St., Montreal.

"MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM."

When a play is capable of provoking an almost constant ripple of laughter, which at frequent and unexpected intervals breaks out into uncontrollable guffaws that make the very rafters ring, there is but one verdict for the reporter or dramatic adviso to render, and that one is self-evident. Such a play is in its own peculiar field is great. That is just what "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" will do at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Tuesday, Nov. 26th. It is one of the cleverest farces that has been seen since the days of Charles Hoyt and assesses a plot that appeals to one's sense of the ridiculous, and lines that sparkle with wit and humor. The company is one of the most evenly balanced and uniformly clever that has been seen in a farce comedy in a long time.

WONDERLAND.

A very successful drawing was held last Wednesday evening for the eight-day clock. The winning No. K 838 was held by Mrs. S. Dryden, Pearl st. The other numbered draws were 9660, 787 K, 421 K, 860 K, 952 L, 933 L, 107 K, 1080 K, which were perfectly satisfied with the decision of the com.mittee, P. J. Normile, J. A. Ferguson, Ray Gierson and Hugh Fitzpatrick. The illustrated song, "Alice, where art thou going," and the motion pictures were very much appreciated by those present. Wonderland is more than keeping up to the high standard and reputation as the best family theatre. The pictures to be shown to-night and to-morrow are the educational picture, "The Paper Factory," and the amusing picture, "Baby's First Outing." Special matinee for children and ladies Saturday afternoon.

I extend a cordial invitation to anyone suffering with catarrh to call and see Hy-o-mei. The complete outfit costs but $1.00, and I will refund the money if Hy-o-mei does not cure. T. B. Wallace.

Albert and Willie Whiteman have gone to Point Ann, where they have obtained employment for the winter.

THE LATE C. A. CORNELL.

A well known and popular Indian, Charles Arthur Cornell, died Nov. 5th, after a short illness, aged fifty-six years. Deceased always lived in Napanee, with the exception of a residence of about three years in Buffalo, N.Y., and Emporium, Pa. Deceased was next April to his native town, and stood for everything that would advance its interests and welfare. For a number of years he was engaged as a commercial traveller, respected by his employer and customers. He was a kind and indulgent husband and father, and leaves besides his bereaved wife, two children, Mrs. Benj. F. Day and Mr. Arthur Cornell, and a sister, Mrs. Addison Parker, of Kingston. Mr. Cornell was a member of the Church of England and a staunch Conservative. The funeral service was held in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, and was largely attended.

—People are generally surprised when they advertise for money lost, and recover it. Scarcely anyone has more money than he requires, and the temptation may be great to keep the bank notes picked up. There are however more honest people in the community than one would suspect. One day last week Master Geo. O'Neill, South River Road, picked up a ten dollar bill on she street. He saw it advertised in The Beaver, and brought it promptly to this office.

Birrell attended the Kingston market Saturday.

NOW IS THE TIME.

We notice in the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal an earnest appeal from the Publishers requesting subscribers to renew earlier than usual this season. It must be a great problem to handle the thousands upon thousands of subscriptions pouring into that great paper every day during December and January and old subscribers, and new subscribers too, should remit their subscriptions now in order to prevent any hitch-up delay later on. The Family Herald and Weekly Star never was as popular as it is to-day and is beyond doubt the biggest dollar's worth to be had. The Beaver and Family Herald for $1.75.

On behalf of the Corporation of the County of Lennox and Addington.

W. H. WILSON, L. L. GALLAGHER,
County Clerk. Warden.

Dominion of Canada,
Province of Ontario,
County of Lennox and Addington,

TO WIT:

In the matter of expenditures of moneys in connection with the County Road System of the County of Lennox and Addington.

I, Irvine Parks, of the Town of Napanee, in the County of Lennox and Addington, Esquire, do solemnly declare that I am Treasurer of the Municipal Corporation of the County of Lennox and Addington, and as such have carefully examined the statement of amounts of moneys paid out during the year 1907 in connection with the County Road System of said County, as set out in the letter attached hereto and marked as exhibit "A" to this my declaration addressed to "The Honourable, The Minister of Public Works, Toronto," and said statement of account is correct, and

And I do further solemnly declare that the statement of amount [illegible] said Exhibit "A") of moneys paid out by the said County to the Municipalities of the Townships of Amherst Island, Denbigh, Abinger and Ashby, Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham, the Town of Napanee and the incorporated Villages of Bath and Newburgh, during the year 1906 for the purpose of said improvement in said Municipalities is correct.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893.

Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Make New Blood.

THAT IS WHAT DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS DO — THAT IS WHY THEY CURE SO MANY DISEASES.

When persons have not enough blood, or when their blood is weak and watery, the doctors name the trouble anæmia. Bloodlessness is the direct cause of such diseases, and such diseases, such as indigestion, palpitation of the heart, debility, decline, neuralgia, nervousness, rheumatism and consumption. The surest signs of poor blood are paleness, bluish lips, cold hands and feet, general weakness, low spirits and headaches and backaches. If anæmia is not checked in time it will probably develop into consumption. There is one certain cure for anæmia—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which fills the veins and bring new life, new energy and good health to the bloodless people. In proof of this Miss Mabel Clendenning, Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "For two years I suffered from anæmia. I was weak, thin, had no appetite; I sometimes had distressing headaches and felt low spirited. My heart would palpitate violently; I could do no work around the house; I became very pale and my nerves got unstrung. The efforts of two good doctors failed to help me, I was in such a pitiful state. One day a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did so. Soon I saw the pills were helping me and by the time I had taken nine boxes I was completely cured. I had a good appetite; gained in weight, I hadn't an ache or pain, could sleep well and I am as far better now than I ever was. I cannot speak too highly of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for Miss Clendenning they have done for thousands—they will do for you. But you must get the genuine with the full name—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. If your dealer has not got the genuine pills you can get them at 50 cents a box or $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A SUCCESSFUL SOCIETY.

The Napanee Woman's Aid Society of the Kingston General Hospital held its annual meeting on Monday, 18th Nov. The large number present showed that the interest taken in the work by the ladies had not abated. Mrs. R. A. Leonard, the esteemed President, presided. The reports for the year were most satisfactory, showing with membership fees, donations of canned fruits, jellies, eggs, etc., also large supply of linen and the proceeds from the booth in the Slade-in-Canada sale, the large sum of $324.37.

The ladies feel very thankful to the public for generously responding whenever called upon. The above result was attained without any one person having contributed a large amount, and shows what can be done by united effort in helping a good cause.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. C. D. Wartman.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. F. F. Miller.
2d Vice Pres.—Mrs. M. S. Madole.
3d Vice Pres.—Dr. Symington.
Recording Secty.—Mrs. H. Cairns.
Cor. Secty.—Mrs. F. D. Miller.
Treasurer—Mrs. G. C. T. Ward.
Buyers—Mrs. J. R. Young, Mrs. J. R. Dafoe.

As the membership fee is the small sum of fifty cents a year, it is hoped many more will join the society of which it is usefulness in its motive, and not bound by the creed of any one church.

The Prisoner of Zenda

This was the lighter side of the fellow's nerves, but more serious came behind, and it was plain that if they pressed at Tarlenheim it pressed none the less fiercely at Zenda. For the Duke was very sick. Johann had seen him, and he was wasted and hardly able to stand. "There could be no hope of taking another for him now." So alarmed were they that they had sent for a physician from Strasser, and the physician, having been introduced into the king's cell, had come forth pale and trembling and urgently prayed the duke to let him go back and meddle no more in the affair. But the duke would not, and held him there a prisoner, telling him his life was safe if the king lived while the duke desired and died when the duke desired—not otherwise. And, persuaded by the physician, they had allowed Mme. de Mauban to visit the king and give him such attendance as his state needed and as only a woman can give. Yet the life hung in the balance, and I was yet strong and whole and free. Wherefore great gloom reigned at Zenda, and, save when they quarrelled, to which they were very prone, they hardly spoke. But the deeper the depression of the rest, young Rupert were about Satan's work with a smile in his eye and a song on his lip, and laughed "Et le lorrer" (old Johann) because the duke always set Detchard to guard the king when Mme. de Mauban was in the cell—which precaution was, indeed, not unwise in such careful brother. Thus Johann told his tale and acted his cowards. Yet he had sought us to allow him to stay with us in Tarlenheim, and not venture his head again in the lion's den, but only had need of him there, and, although I refused to constrain him, I prevailed on him by increased rewards to go back and to carry tidings to Mme. de Mauban that I was working for her and that, if she could, she should speak one word of comfort to the king, for, while suspense is bad for the sick, yet despair is worse still, and it might be that the king by dying of mere hopelessness, for I could learn of no definite disease that afflicted him.

"And Jow do they guard the king now?" I asked, remembering that two of the Six were dead and Max Holf also.

"Detchard and Berkonin watch by night, Rupert Hentzau and Gautet by day, sir," he answered.

"Only two at a time?"

"Aye, sir, but the others rest in a room just above and are within sound of a cry or a whistle."

"A room just above? I didn't know of that. Is there any communication between it and the room where they watch?"

"No, sir. You must go down a few stairs and through the door by the drawbridge, and so to where the king is lodged."

"And that door is locked?"

"Only the four lords have keys, sir. I drew nearer to him.

"And have they keys of the grating?" I asked in a low whisper.

"I think, sir, only Detchard and Rupert."

"Where does the duke lodge?"

"In the chateau on the first floor. His apartments are on the right as you go toward the drawbridge."

"And Mme. de Mauban?"

"Just opposite on the left. But her door is locked after she has entered."

"To keep her in?"

"Doubtless, sir."

"And the duke, I suppose, has the key?"

"Yes. And the drawbridge is drawn back at night, and of that, too, the duke holds the key, so that it cannot be run across the moat without application to him."

"And where do you sleep?"

"In the entrance hall of the chateau, with five servants."

"Armed?"

"They have pikes, sir, but no firearms. The duke will not trust them with firearms."

Then at last I took the matter boldly in my hands. I had failed once at Jacob's ladder; I should not fail again there. I must make the attack from the other side.

"I have promised you twenty thousand crowns," said I. "You shall have fifty thousand if you will do what I ask of you tomorrow night. But, first, do those servants know who your prisoner is?"

"No, sir. They believe him to be some private enemy of the duke's."

"And they would not doubt that I am the king?"

"How should they?" he asked.

"Look to this, then. Tomorrow at 2 in the morning exactly fling open the front door of the chateau. Don't fail by an instant."

"Shall you be there, sir?"

"Ask no questions. Do what I tell you. Say the hall is close or what you will. That is all I ask of you."

"And may I escape by the door, sir, when I have opened it?"

"Yes, quick as your legs will carry you. One thing more. Have this note to madame—oh, it's in French; you can't read it—and charge her, for the sake of all our lives, not to fail in what it orders."

The man was trembling, but I had to trust to what he had of courage and to what he had of honesty. I dared not wait, for I feared that the king would die.

When the fellow was gone, I called Sapt and Fritz to me and unfolded the plan that I had formed. Sapt shook his head over it.

"Why can't you wait?" he asked.

"The king may die."

"Michael will be forced to act before that."

"Then," said I, "the king may live."

"Well, and if he does?"

"For a fortnight?" I asked simply.

And Sapt bit his mustache.

Suddenly Fritz von Tarlenheim laid his hand on my shoulder.

"Let us go and make the attempt," said he.

"I mean you to go—don't be afraid," said I.

FOR THE OVERWORKED—What are the causes of despondency and melancholy? A disordered liver is one cause and a prime one. A disordered liver means a disordered stomach, and a disordered stomach means disturbance of the nervous system. This brings the whole body into subjection and the victim feels sick all over. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a recognized remedy in this state and relief will follow their use.

"How do you define the phrase 'as black as your hat'?" a father asked his son, as the latter had just used the expression.

"Well," replied the youth, "I should define it as darkness that might be felt."

* * *

SOMETHING MORE THAN A PURGATIVE.—To purge is the only effect of many pills now on the market. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are more than a purgative. They strengthen the stomach where other pills weaken it. They cleanse the blood by regulating the liver and kidneys. They are a tonic as well as a laxative, pill compounds depress. Nothing of an injurious nature, used for merely laxative purposes enters into their composition.

WHO USES HYOMEI?

THE BEST PEOPLE IN NAPANEE, SAYS T. B. WALLACE. GUARANTEES IN CATARRHAL TROUBLES.

No other remedy of treatment for catarrh has ever been as popular or made so many remarkable cures in Napanee as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, says T. B. Wallace, who is the local agent. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the money unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof when it was introduced that it possessed unusual curative powers. T. B. Wallace took all the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction, and left it to the purchasers to be the judge.

Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and druggists and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cured catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew and to-day there is no other remedy in T. B. Wallace's stock that has such a large and staple sale.

The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poisons.

Try Hyomei to-day or T. B. Wallace's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and buy nothing your home will, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase with the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the flour or feed merchant sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Chicken Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty. Ask for the best feed milk known to the trade. A full stock of the best Ashtreville Coal always in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

How do you know you do not need

Bu-Ju

The Gentle kidney Pill

If there is pain in the back and through the hips, you need Bu-Ju. If the hands and ankles are swollen, you need Bu-Ju. If there are headache or neuralgia, you need Bu-Ju. If you are nervous and do not sleep well at night, you need Bu-Ju. If there is constant desire to urinate, you need Bu-Ju. If the urine is reddish, cloudy, milky, hot and scalding, you need Bu-Ju. Especially if you are tortured with Inflammatory or Muscular Rheumatism, Sciatics, Lumbago, you certainly do need Bu-Ju.

If you have any of the above symptoms, don't hesitate; don't delay. Take Bu-Ju, and cure yourself.

S. Taylor St., Toronto.

I am anxious that all should know the relief and benefit I have derived from Bu-Ju. The effect has been marvellous. I had suffered severely for years with pain in the back, especially on rising. Mornings and I am pleased to say that the pain has completely disappeared. Before using Bu-Ju, I had tried every remedy I heard of for Kidney Trouble, without even receiving relief. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to take Bu-Ju.

CHAS. E. LOVEY.

It costs only 35c. a day to take Bu-Ju, and your money refunded if they fail to cure. Sold by all druggists, or sent on receipt of price.

RECIPE MIXED OFTEN.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion; one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority in a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the list was published in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it swear by it, especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

The druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

ARDEN.

A home wedding was solemnized at 3 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 12th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Hoffman, when their daughter, Cora Arwilda, was united in marriage to James Arthur Lee, a prosperous young farmer of the Township of Kennebec. The bride was attended by (Revve of the Township of Kennebec), given by the bride away. She was becomingly adorned in a rich gown of pearl gray crelane, with ribbon and applique trimmings. The bridesmaid, Miss Almeda, sister of the bride, wore a suit of pearl grey voile, trimmed similarly to the bride's. The groom was ably assisted by Mr. Fletcher Huffman, Harrowsmith, late of Mountain Grove. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. T. Allan, Ottawa, assisted by the resident Methodist minister, Rev. H. Sockett. Miss Nora Crozier, Portsmouth, played Mendelssohn's wedding march. After the wedding ceremony the contracting parties, relatives and guests sat down to a sumptuous supper, after which addresses appropriate to the occasion were given by Revs. Allan and Sockett, Messrs. T. Hawley and J. Barker, representing the Municipal Council, and Messrs. C. Hoffman, G. E. Thornton and T. H. Hall. The remainder of the evening was spent in a social manner, the guests not dispersing until the wee sma' hours of the morning. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold swastika stick pin set with pearls, and to the groom a pair of solid gold cuff links. The happy young recipients of numerous useful and valuable presents, going to the high esteem in which they are held. Those from a distance were Miss Edith Hartin, Enterprise; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. BABY SMILES.

One mother happily expressed her opinion of Baby's Own Tablets when she said "there's a smile in every dose." In homes where the Tablets are used there are no cross, fretful, sickly children. The Tablets make children well and keep them well. They cure indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, teething troubles and all the other derangements of childhood. They can be given with absolute safety to the new born child, for the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that the Tablets do not contain one particle of opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Is'n such a guarantee worth something to you, mother? The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 25 cents a box.

The healthy glow disappearing from the cheek and moaning and restlessness at night are sure symptoms of worms in children. Do not fail to get a bottle of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; it is an effectual medicine.

A. Wartman.—Mr. Faber Covert left here on Thursday for Medina, N.Y.—Mr. P. C. Purvis spent Sunday in Kingston, the guest of Dr. C. Nash.

YARKER.

There is no straw available in the country for bedding purposes for stock, and as a result many have gathered up the fallen leaves and stored them away. Many farmers state their intention to dry up their milch cows, after their supply of butter is packed, and this will assuredly cause a shortage of butter, and prices will be high this winter.

The Benjamin Manufacturing Co.'s electric light plant is in operation again. Another light has been placed near the R. R. to light the steps coming from the station and church.

The opinion of many is that the United States people are behind us in good moral living, but we hope to see the same sentiment that is prevailing there in regard to doing away with the license system, reach us here in Canada. There is no agitation of the matter for temperance oratory, but a deep set determination on the part of the people to do away with the country of the license system. It is the drinkers who are doing it.

Mrs. M. Tobin, Kingston, spent a few days at P. Manion's.

James Manion is seriously ill; also Carl McDonald.

Owing to the re-opening of the Moscow Methodist church, there will be no regular service here next Sunday, 24th inst.

The Methodist Sabbath School Christmas tree entertainment will be held this year on Christmas night, instead of on Christmas eve, as formerly held.

Hart Bros., well drillers, are sinking a well adjacent to the Barrett hotel.

The adherents of the H. M. church here will erect a shed for the convenience of those having rigs attending their services.

The social held at the parsonage here was a decided success, and everyone there had a real good time.

Byron Holden has a gasoline engine sand and circular saw in operation, doing work in his new line of business.

Gladys Vosper has returned to new hars, and A. W. Benjamin is building one on Water st., for his parents.

John Fytus is cutting stone here for the steps to be placed in front of the bank.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are purely to prove by actual test a penny's cost—the great value of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by T. B. Wallace.

MARLBANK.

The members of the Methodist church here intend giving a social and concert in the church, on Friday, Nov. 29th. Refreshments will be served, and Rev. J. K. Henry will give an address.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith spent Sunday at Mrs. Hinch's, near Stoco.—The assembly given in Baker's Hall on Thursday evening, by the young people of Marlbank, was a decided success, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

CENTREVILLE LAKE ROAD.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wagar and daughter Edna, Tamworth, and Miss Lelah Dunning, Enterprise, spent Sunday at Mr. Alfred Cousins'.—Miss Florence McGill spent Sunday with Miss Minnie Milligan. —Miss Mattie Vansest is home from Napanee Model School this week, attending the funeral of her grandfather, Mr. Dorland Hawley.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lockwood and daughter Lizzie, and Jas. COULDN'T WEAR BOOTS

If you suffered with a bad foot, so bad that you could not wear anything to touch it, and then some one sent you a small sample box of Zam-Buk, half of which cured you, in about 12 months' suffering, what would you say? Why, exactly what Mr. Ernest Justice Jeanlouis, of Yankleek Hill, said, when finishing her letter, viz.:

THANK YOU A THOUSAND TIMES.

There are crowds of others in the Dominion who can pass through life as us, and they are all anxious that you should know about Zam-Buk, the Marvellous Healer. Don't pass this experience on from time to time for the help of other sufferers.

Zam-Buk is the great Miracle-Worker. Heals where all else fails. All skin troubles, such as Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Pimples, Running Sores, Chapped Hands, Scalp Irritations, Cuts, Bruises, Poisoned Wounds, etc., yield to Zam-Buk.

For Piles, Rheumatism, etc., it cannot be equalled. All druggists sell at 50 cents a box, or from The Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, post free, 3 boxes for $1.25. Send for a free sample box, enclosing 1c. to pay postage.

CENTREVILLE.

Our school concert, Nov. 12th, was a decided success. Mr. Jas. Reid, M.P.P., was chairman. The children were admirably trained and fully justified themselves. The dialogues caused much amusement. The major part of the programme was excellent. Rev. Allin, Enterprise, gave a short address.—Bert White, Consecon, preached in the Methodist church here on Sunday to a interesting audience.—A number from this place attended the funeral of the late Mr. Orrin Fairbairn, Tamworth.—Mrs. Chas. MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Oranges, nice and bright; Valencia Oranges, good size; fresh Lemons and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—Coffee, of course, that goes without me saying much about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Next Sunday morning the pastor hopes to speak on a subject of immediate congregational interest. A full attendance is requested.

CHORAL CLUB.

A meeting will be held Monday evening in the Public Library to elect officers and settle affairs for the coming season. Will all the ladies and gentlemen who are interested in this Club and intend to join, kindly attend promptly at eight o'clock.

SEND CORRESPONDENCE EARLY.

The columns of The Beaver are crowded every week, and our correspondents and others who wish their contributions to appear, the same week, should send it in on Wednesday if possible. Owing to the uncertainty of the 4.35 train on Wednesday afternoon, copy arriving by that mail has often to be left over until the following week. Our forms are closed at 6 o'clock each Thursday afternoon.

HAVE YOU PAID THE BEAVER?

Two weeks ago we sent a statement of account to all subscribers to The Beaver whose subscription had expired, or who are in arrears. We sent these out as our business men notify their patrons because it is "business", and because we are in need of the money. The price of everything has been almost doubled during the past few years, but The Beaver, it should have been raised likewise, but it still remains at $1.00 a year, notwithstanding the increased cost of production. If you have not already sent in your dollar, kindly do so at once, and make everybody happy all around. 47c

APPLICATION TO GOVERNMENT.

Re road expenditure. Warden Gallagher convened a committee composed of the treasurer, Mr. Parks; the clerk, Mr. Wilson; the chairman of roads, Mr. Anderson; the chairman of finances, Mr. Edgar, and the two road superintendents, Messrs. T. V. Anderson and John Milling, on Tuesday of last week, and went into the expenditure on county roads including machinery and two new steel bridges at Hillhaven and Selby, and found actual expenditure to be $20,795.35. One-third of this amount is borne by the government, the balance by each municipality in proportion to their equalized assessment. Any information by the ratepayers will be gladly furnished by any of the committee and the council hopes in due time to present the minutes of the year 1907.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.

Mr. D. B. Taylor has retired from the management of the Tweed News, after efficiently conducting it as editor and manager for the past eight years. He will remove to Woodstock to assist in the management of two larger publications, the Sentinel-Review, and Rod and Gun and Motor sports in Canada, both of which are the property of Mr. J. Taylor. Mr. Taylor has proved himself an energetic and capable newspaper man, and the great advance the Tweed News has made during the past years, is sufficient evidence of his worth. We wish him success in his larger sphere. Mr. Frederick Brown, a Hamilton newspaper man, will have charge of the News in future, for Mr. W. J. Taylor.

Have You Been Misled?

Some time ago, owing to an erroneous report in circulation that a raise in the CAMPBELL HOUSE rates had been made on the farming community hereabouts, a correction appeared in these columns. Further stories have made it necessary to again enter a denial. In this connection we have much pleasure in saying that not only does the rate remain $1.00 PER DAY—50c A MEAL TO THE FARMERS—AND LOCAL PATRONAGE EXCLUSIVELY ($1.50 and $2.00 per day to the travelling public), in the face of a high market, but an expenditure of $5,000 is being made in improvements of a steam heating plant, telephones, etc., which will enhance very materially the well known convenience, comfort and quality of this commodious hostelry. A courteous welcome is offered. THE CAMPBELL HOUSE. H. Taylor. 48b

ANOTHER SUCCESS

Was the silver medal contest in the Western Methodist church on Tuesday evening, and those who did not attend missed a great treat. Those who were there declared it to be the most enjoyable of any such entertainments given yet. The well filled school room spoke eloquently of the popularity of the contests held in the W. M. church and under the auspices of the League. Miss Chrysler may well be proud of the way in which the contestants acquitted themselves.

Following are the selections and by whom given:

1 The Bridal Wine Cup—Myrtle Bell.
2 The Old Man's Story—Lavina Change.
3 A Voice from the Poor House—Pearl Spencer.
4 How he Signed the Pledge—Keitha Chatterson.
5 Good Night Papa—Rena Dinner.
6 A Terrible Charge—Grace Martin.

Constantant No. 5 succeeded in winning the medal offered by the Royal Templars, and presented by Mr. A. E. Paul. Judges were E. J. Pollard, Will Harrison, E. J. Walters, Mr. Reid made a very pleasing chairman. The musical part was exceptionally good. Remember the Gold Medal contest in January.

The lecture is open to club members ONLY, but any member may bring a non-resident as a guest, on payment of 25 cts. Secy.

NAPANEE'S MODEL SCHOOL.

Mail and Empire, 14th Nov.—Mr. T. G. Carnahan (Lennox) was at the Parliament Building yesterday. He stated that the people of the Town of Napanee were anxious in favor of the retention of the County Model school located there. Four additional Provincial Normal Schools are being built to supersede the County Model schools. Some of the latter institutions will, however, have to be retained and Napanee is anxious that the school there be one of this class.

Mr. W. J. Paul, M. P. P., Napanee, was in Toronto last Monday to see the Minister of Education about retaining the Model School at Napanee, which serves the united counties of Lennox and Addington. "In my county of Addington alone there were forty teachers employed on special permits last year, so great has been the scarcity of teachers," said Mr. Paul. "There is, however, strong reason for retaining the Model schools, and I believe they will not all be abolished anyway for a couple of years."

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At a regular convocation of Mount Sinai Chapter, O.R.A.C., on Wednesday night, the following officers were elected:

Ex. Comp.—G. F. Rutter, I.P.Z.
" " —H. Walters, Z.
" " —D. A. Valleau, H.
" " —Wood, T.
" " —E. J. Walters, Scribe E.
Ri " " —Jas. Shannon, Scribe N.
" " —Jas. Walters, Treas.
" " —Jas. W. Thompson, P.S.
" " —A. Alexander,
" " —Wm. Gray, Auditors.
—Brice Allen, Janitor.

At the close of the Chapter adjournment was made to the Royal Arch Hall, where a banquet was given in honor of the distinguished visitor, Rt. Ex. Companion H. S. Merrills, of Picton, Grand Superintendent Prince Edward District No. 11, on his official visit. Between the various toasts Napanee orchestra furnished excellent music.

"REGULAR PRACTITIONER — NO RESULT."—Mrs. Amos C. Chestnut, of Whitby, was for months a chronic invalid, but the South American Rheumatic Cure changed the song from "Woeful" to "joy." She says: "I suffered untold misery from rheumatism. Doctors and medicine did me no good — two bottles of South American Rheumatic Cure cured me—relief two hours after the first dose." For sale by T. B. Wallace.—50.

MARKS BROS.

Marks' Pictures and Vaudeville Show will hold the boards at the Bijou Opera House for nights next week, Nov. 28th, 29th and 30th, with matinees on Saturday afternoon at 2.30.

The Prescott Messenger says of the show:

"The pictures are good and in fact the best that have ever been shown here thus far. If any one picture could be given precedence over the other it would be that the "Train Robbery" was the best on the list. This is realistic in every sense of the word. The illustrated songs are "up-to-the-minute," the soloist being Mr. Chas. Ross. He has a very pleasing voice, and his singing delighted each and every audience. The Marks Bros., have in the La Varda, (William and Beatrice) a sketch team, which would do credit to the highest priced vaudeville company travelling the country to-day. They are clever in every respect, and there is not one dull moment during the course of their act. Their jokes, singing and dancing were the features, while Mr. LaVarda' banjo manipulations are interesting. Large crowds were in attendance each evening."

Remember the show next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and matinee. Popular prices.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

INSIDIOUS DECEPTIVE! RELENTLESS! has fooled many and ended many a life. Don't attempt the ride of its ravages—and not until South American Kidney Cure—can we hold a doubt its power to turn back the tide. Then a gleam of sunshine and despair for the victim of this dread form of kidney disease. For sale by all dealers. 34tf

CAMDEN EAST.

The season is over for deer hunting, and Messrs. L. H. Stoner, S. J. Williams and J. W. Stewart have returned from the north with the finest showing of deer that ever came into the Village of Camden East. They report very fair weather the first week, but the second week there was something doing. Water was very high in lake and streams. Some hunting parties report deer quite scarce.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Napanee, 26th Nov., 1907.

Council met on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Members all present but Mr. Lane; Warden presiding.

Minutes of last day of August session were read and approved.

The Warden stated that he had convened a committee to make out a report for the Government for County Roads. It was as complete as they were able to make it, and he was sure it would prove satisfactory to the ratepayers and the Government. The Government had acknowledged receipt of the statement of expenditure, and he fancied the Government's share of the expense would be forthcoming at once. The work in all the divisions was well done.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Council of Ernesttown, claiming that Floating Bay Bridge is now three hundred feet in width. Also that it is used by the citizens of other municipalities. In view of this the County is asked to assume the same.

Accompanying this was an order from the County Judge, fixing Monday, 23d Dec., at the town hall, Odessa, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the hearing of the application of the Township of Ernesttown, for an order declaring the above named bridge to be a county bridge, to be assumed, maintained and be kept in repair by the County.

Moved by Mr. Aylesworth, seconded by Mr. McGill, that the matter be referred to the committee on County Property, with power to act, and report at this session.

From County of Halton, asking this Council to memorialize the Government to increase the grant to improvements on public highways, from one-third to one-half the amount of expenditure. Order-ed signed by the Warden and Clerk, and forwarded to Government.

From Inspector of R. C. separate schools, stating that the special grant, $117.00 to Sheffield, and $6.00 to Thurlow, the County will have to grant as requisitioned. Referred to Education and Printing Committee.

The Treasurer stated that the County had exhausted its overdraft.

From E. P. Sheppard, Secretary Bath Public School, asking for grant of $100, to supplement a similar amount granted by the Government. Referred to Education Committee.

From Chas. Welbanks, Clerk Village of Newburgh, giving statement of money expended in that division, $58.74. Filed with Treasurer.

From Robinson, Municipality of Bath, statement work done on County road, $141.60. Filed with Treasurer.

From Committee reappointed to report to Government amount expended on County roads for year 1907, and road superintendents' pay sheets. This report was published in The Beaver last week. Reports received and ordered printed in the minutes.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were referred to the various committees, where not ordered paid at once:

J. R. Dafoe, $49.00; Boyle & Son, court house, $58.00; Boyle & Son, jail, $19.50; Boyle & Son, gaol, $48.51; Boyle & Son, jail, $10.38; F. L. Hooper, registry office, $5.10; F. L. Hooper, court house, $3.68; Chas. Stevens, jailer's residence, $35.00; Chas. Stevens, registry office, $35.00; Napanee Gas Co., registry office, $15.85; Napanee Gas Co., court house, $9.10; Napanee Waterworks, $24.73, paid; Victoria Industrial School, Manson Abrams, $16.25, paid; Bell Telephone Co., $1.50, paid; Geo. Bowson, $3.00, ordered that 12.00 be paid; Robt. Light, $41.75; Der Ward, $12.00; Rock Drill Co., $11.50; Canada Smart Co., $22.00, paid; Sawyer-Massey Co., $209.88.

Mr. Wagar reported that he had settled Wesley Kelly's account for damages on the County road for $5.00, and presented the receipt. Accepted, and an order given Mr. Wagar for same.

C. W. Bowen, $4.25, paid; W. J. Jewell, $8.78; E. R. McCabe, $25.00, paid; Town of Napanee, two years' rent hydrant, $100.00, paid; Arthur Davidson, $7.00, damage to buggy, paid.

Mr. Edgar presented receipt for $5.00, to settle W. W. Adams' account for damages to buggy.

Council adjourned till 10 a.m., to-morrow.

WEDNESDAY—SECOND DAY.

Council met as per adjournment. The Warden presiding. Members all present but Mr. Lane.

Minutes of yesterday's session were read and confirmed.

Reeve Lowry reported that he was requested by the Warden to accompany the Government Road Engineer, Mr. McLeod, to view the improvements on the County roads, under the late Act. That he spent two days in travel, taking in Richmond, Shedfield, Camden, Ernesttown and parts of North Fredericksburgh, and Mr. McLean reported the work well done. Adopted.

ACCOUNTS.

F. E. VanLaven, $35.00; T. S. Henry, $14.09; Rathbun Co., $10.00, paid.

A communication from Registrar Gibson, respecting abstract index for Township of Sheffield, was filed.

From County Clerk of Hastings, inviting the Council to be present at the opening of a new house of refuge at Belleville, on 6th Dec.

The matter of a County home of refuge was discussed.

Mr. Aylesworth stated that since the last session of Council, a site had been decided, he had changed his mind somewhat. He now thought that such an institution should be provided for the old and infirm in the part the municipalities that look after their unfortunate ones, placed there by the municipalities, and those they undertook to provide for, and that conditions should be the same as they were not doing their duty. He thought the time had arrived when the matter should be taken in hand by the County.

At the request of the Council, Mr. Aylesworth was asked to prepare a resolution respecting the matter at the afternoon session. Upon motion of the Council that a home of refuge is desirable and necessary.

Moved by Mr. Hume, seconded by Mr. Hicks, that Messrs. Anderson, Edgar and the Warden be a committee to prepare a summary of the expenditure on County roads, in each municipality in 1907, distinguishing the same under the different headings of the summary of 1906. Carried.

Mr. W. R. Pringle was heard as to his account of $4.50, for thirty loads of gravel used on County roads last year.

On motion account was ordered paid, and to be charged to Richmond road account.

Council adjourned till 1.30 p.m.

(Balance of report next week.)

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidney person get weak, then these organs always fail. In time the stomach, not curable but the Heart or Kidneys. That is simply a symptom. The disease known as Dyspepsia overthrows the nervous system, then these nerves build the stomach. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is Stomach-and-Nerve. Let me see how quickly help will come. CHURCH RE-OPENING.

The re-opening services of the Moscow Methodist church were largely attended, both morning and evening. Rev. A. J. Stirling, Deseronto, assisted by our own pastor, Rev. E. Farnsworth, conducted both services, in the most able manner, and the choir, assisted by neighborhood talent, rendered some very choice selections from all were very pleasingly rendered, every member receiving a hearty encore. Those who assisted in the programme of this high-class entertainment were, Miss Lizzie Wartman, of Newburgh; Miss Chrysler and Miss E. Ashley, of Napanee; Miss Georgia Warner, of Colebrook; the male quartette of Wilton, which consisted of Messrs. C. Wartman, A. Miller, A. Shibley and J. Asselstine. The choir under the leadership of Mr. J. Patterson, rendered every opening chorus in a most pleasing way. The debt of $1,200.00, was entirely cleared, and the Moscow people are very grateful for any generous outside assistance.

Among those present from a distance were; Mr. and Mrs. F. Vallew, Cataraqui; Mr. and Mrs. S. Sprouls, Odessa; Mrs. Z. VanLaven, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. A. Aylesworth, Deseronto; Mr. and Mrs. R. Asselstine, Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and Miss P. Switzer, of Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Simmons, of Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Shibley, of Wilton; Miss Otta Sills, Odessa; Miss Hermine Connolly, Miss Bertie Shibley, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Gibbard, Mr. Mafole, Miss L. Mafole, Miss Cline, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. H. Cline, and Dr. Mabee, of Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wartman and Miss Wartman, Wesley; Mr. H. Martin and Miss Ivy Martin, Wesley; Mr. Finkle, Strathcona; Miss B. Clancy, Wesley; Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe, North Fredericksburgh; Mr. Gibbard, Miss Ada and Myrtle Guess, Murvale; Mr. and Mrs. Asselstine, Miss Asselstine, Miss Hattie Wagar, Enterprise; Mr. Lace and Mr. Hlark, Enterprise; Miss Campbell, Harthan; Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Enterprise; Miss Gretta Asselstine, Wilton; Miss Bertie Metzler, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. J.) Hambly, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barss, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. E. Amey, Deseronto; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dunn, Yarker, and many others from the adjoining circuits.

A couple came by train, and the gentleman, in the excitement, being youthful, handed in their railway ticket instead of tickets for the concert. It's likely the conductor had the pleasure of punching concert tickets.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jas. Evans took place on Wednesday morning, and was largely attended. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved young husband and his only daughter, ten days old, as well as to all the rest of the family in this hour of sorrow. Mrs. Evans was widely known and loved, esteemed for her genial manner and beautiful Christian life, and the sudden death has cast a gloom over the whole neighborhood.

GET WHAT YOU WANT.

THE "JUST, AS GOOD KIND" NEVER PAYS.

If there is one thing more than another that should aggravate a self-respecting person it is to be told that the article they ask for at their druggist's is not to be had, but that they have something "just as good or better." The principle attempts at substitution is either the fault of the storekeeper to sell something on which he makes more money, or he hasn't the goods asked for, and tries to make a sale of something in its place.

Every reader of this paper should be on their guard against the fraud of the modern cod liver oil preparation, that it is for sale in Napanee at our store and that it can always be had when asked for.

Scott's Emulsion is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil preparations in because it is made by a chemical process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal virtues of the oil, building elements of cod liver oil, and hypophosphites.

As a body builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, thin people, after fevers, sickness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unequalled.

No one wants an old fashioned cod liver oil preparation or emulsion. Either once tasting delicious Vinol. Try it. If it fails to benefit I will return your money. T. B. Wallace, druggist, Napanee, Ont.

Historical.

The Lennox and Addington Historical Society has been fortunate in receiving from Mrs. T. W. Casey the following historical papers, records, documents, manuscripts, letters and books. These are all loaned for the archives of the Society and they constitute a very valuable addition. The late T. W. Casey, Esquire, was well posted in local history and probably no citizen of the County has taken the same interest in the preservation of County history:

NEWBURGH.

The annual thank-offering service of the Camden and Newburgh Auxiliary of the Presbyterian W. F. M. S. was held in the Presbyterian church here, on Friday evening last. Mrs. (Rev.) Gandier, President of the Auxiliary, presided and conducted the opening services. After the roll-call by the Secretary, Mrs. Joseph Longmore, Mrs. A. Dickson, of Camden East, Vice-President, read a leaflet, "Anonymous worth while"" after which the Treasurer, Mrs. T. A. Dunwoody, presented her report, showing voluntary offerings of members of $18.50. The feature of the evening was an address by Mrs. (Rev.) Bland, of Tweed, President of the Kingston Presbyterial W. F. M. S. Mrs. Bland's address was a very practical presentation of the year's multiplied reasons for thanksgiving, and the obligations of all the women of the church to actively interest themselves in the uplifting of their less-favored sisters in heathen lands through missionary effort. The speaker also presented a number of problems that confront the missionary in carrying out her work, showing how necessary it is to have an intelligent interest in the work of those who represent us in foreign fields. The whole address was delivered with earnestness and a fluency that left a deep impression upon the large audience. The thank-offering amounted to $44.83, when increased to over $51.00, which with two life-membership, Mrs. Joseph Longmore, and Mrs. R. Fee, of Camden East, brings the total to more than $100.00, a very handsome sum. Mrs. Longmore made the dedicatory prayer over the offering, and the texts of scripture accompanying the offering were read by Mrs. R. Lewis, of Camden East.

Sincere regret was felt by many friends here upon the news of the untimely death at her home in Moscow of Mrs. Jas. Evans. Mrs. Evans was formerly Miss Beatrice Kennedy, and a pupil at the High School here.

Mr. John Sharpe, of Oshawa, spent a couple of days in town, and reports that he may locate here again.

Mr. Percy Madden is home, after a season as purser on the steamer Hiawatha. He will remain until the new year.

Miss E. Soby, of Napanee, spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Bertie Nesbit, who entertained a number of her friends on Saturday evening in honor of her guest.

Miss Jean Gibson, of Napanee, was also a guest of Miss Pearl Patterson on Saturday evening.

A movement is on foot towards the establishment of a skating and hockey rink here this winter, and it is hoped the same will succeed. A gentleman from outside, who has had experience in this line, has been interested, and a meeting will likely be called to consider the proposition. There is an excellent site for a spacious rink on the island, and there is also abundant material in town for a hockey team which should hold its own with all comers. Show a good thing along and let's have a rink and some winter sport.

Rev. Mr. Chant gave a most interesting and instructive exposition of the Biblical story of Ruth at Epworth League on Monday night. Next Monday evening "Lessons from an old love story." The young people were given some very wholesome advice.

Mrs. (Dr.) Mearham went to Toronto on Tuesday for a few days, accompanied by her granddaughter, Fleda Dewyea, as far as Hinsley, where she will visit old school friends.

Mr. J. W. Yeomans, and Miss A. Brisco, two of our municipal lovers took in the concert at Moscow on Monday night, at which Miss Limbert, from this place, was one of the soloists.

A very unfortunate accident occurred in the village on Monday evening. As Mrs. C. H. Finkle and daughter Helen were starting for Camden East at the call of the telephone to the bedside of Mrs. Finkle's sister, Mrs. McCarthy, the horse stumbled in a hole at the south end of the long bridge, and the wheel of the carriage following into the hole jolted the carriage sufficiently to throw Mrs. Finkle out with the reins in her hands. The horse became frightened and dashed away around the corner towards Camden East. Mrs. Finkle thus found herself in a terrible predicament. Mr. Finkle was notified and immediately followed in pursuit. Mrs. Finkle was found lying unconscious in the road, a mile and a half from the village, opposite the residence of Mr. O'Hara, into which she was tenderly carried. Dr. Beeman was immediately summoned and restoratives applied, but the injured woman did not regain consciousness until Tuesday morning. She received some bruises about the face, but no one else lies in great suffering, both from bruises received and a severe nervous shock. The extent and seriousness of her injuries can hardly yet be determined. Expressions of deep regret and sympathy in this unfortunate occurrence are universal in the village, and the deepest concern is felt in the absence of the accident. It is earnestly hoped that no permanent ill results may accrue. It is supposed that Mrs. Finkle fainted in the carriage and fell to the roadside, as her last recollection is of an interior dog jump out, though she cannot remember carrying this out in effect. Miss Finkle fortunately escaped with a slightly bruised shoulder. The horse was caught near Yarker, the carriage being intact.

20 ECZEMA ZAM BUK

Mr. W. H. Lesson, of Wychwood, Ont., says: "For 20 years I suffered from Eczema. My body and legs were covered with sores which broke and scratching terribly. My legs down to the knee were like one mass of sores. These discharged and were very unpleasant apart from the pain. I had tried all kinds of remedies, ointments and embrocations and came to the conclusion that I should have to go through the remainder of my life with it. Then I was recommended to use ZAM-BUK. I began to see an improvement after the first application. This did me much good and I obtained a full supply of the balm. From then on it was a revelation to me as to ZAM-BUK'S power. It took away the smarting and reduced the inflammation at once, and I felt relief directly I applied it. It took several boxes of ZAM-BUK to effect a cure, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured. I have no hesitation in recommending ZAM-BUK AS WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."

All Skin Diseases yield to Zam-Buk

Heals Cuts, Burns and Bruises rapidly and is "Nature's First Aid."
Also cures Piles, Rheumatism and Sciatica.
Refuse harmful substitutes; insist on ZAM-BUK'S being used. If it is "well-rubbed-in" 50c a box at all druggists and stores.

The Largest Jack Manufacturer in the World Writes about

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Atlantic Monthly has recently celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. But that other venerable Boston magazine, THE LIVING AGE (Littell's) is older still. It is in its sixty-fourth year, and its fifteen numbers complete its fifteenth quarterly volume. This is a record unsurpassed by any American magazine except the North American Review, and that has been by turns a quarterly, monthly and a semi-monthly, while THE LIVING AGE has kept up its regular weekly issue without a break, while other periodicals have come and gone. It has maintained also its original high standard. Reprinting unabridged, as it does, from week to week, the most important and interesting articles from thirty or forty English reviews and magazines, it is able to present a more brilliant array of contributors than any single magazine American or British.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more nor less. If your one weak heart nerve is "off duty," you actually diseased. It is almost always a little tiny little nerve that lets it all go wrong. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—is the one that must have, in order to keep healthy action, more nourishment, more strength. Without that the heart must weaken, fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

The really reliable way, as a specific, is Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. It goes right to the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating, breathless distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative prescription is also directed to those weak and wasting nerve centers that fail in digestion; it often may be the stomach that fails. If you would have strong Hearts, rich blood, perfect digestion, then Dr. Shoop's Restorative, as needed, will help you.

"Aye, but do you stay here and take care of the princess?"

A gleam came into old Sapt's eye.

"We should have Michael one way or the other then," he chuckled, "whereas if you go and are killed with the king what will become of those of us who are left?"

"They will serve Queen Flavia," said I, "and I would to God I could be one of them."

A pause followed. Old Sapt broke it by saying sadly, yet with an unmeant drollery that set Fritz and me laughing:

"Why didn't old Rudolf III. marry your—great-grandmother, was it?"

"Come," said I; "it is the king we are thinking about."

"It is true," said Fritz.

Moreover, I went on, "I have been an impostor for the profit of another, but I will not be one for my own, and if the king is not alive and on his throne before the day of betrothal comes I will tell the truth, come what may."

"You shall go, lad," said Sapt.

Here is the plan I had made: A strong party under Sapt's command was to steal up to the door of the chateau. If discovered prematurely, they were to kill anyone who found them with their swords, for I wanted no noise of firing. If all went well, they would be at the door when Johann opened it. They were to rush in and secure the servants if their mere presence and the use of the king's name were not enough. At the same moment—and on this hinged the plan—a woman's cry was to ring out loud and shrill from Antinette de Mauban's chamber. Again and again she was to cry: "Help, help! Michael, help!" and then to utter the name of young Rupert Hentzau. Then, as we hoped, Michael, in fury, would rush out of his apartments opposite and fall alive into the hands of Sapt. Still the cries would go on. My men would let down the drawbridge, and it would be strange if Rupert, hearing his name thus taken in vain, did not descend from where he slept and seek to cross. De Gautet might or might not come with him. That must be left to chance.

And when Rupert set his foot on the drawbridge? There was my part, for I was minded for another swim in the moat; and, lest I should catch a chill, I had resolved to take with me a small wooden ladder on which I could rest my arms in the water—and my feet when I left it. I would rear it against the wall just by the bridge, and when the bridge was across I would stealthily creep on to it—and then if Rupert or De Gautet crossed in safety it would be my misfortune, not my fault. They dead, two men only would remain, and for them we must trust to the confusion we had created and to a sudden rush. We should have the keys of the door that led to the all important rooms. Perhaps they would rush out. If they stood by their orders, then the king's life hung on the swiftness with which we could force the outer door, and I thanked God that not Rupert Hentzau watched, but Detchard. For though Detchard was a cool man, relentless and no coward, he had neither the dash nor the recklessness of Rupert. Moreover, if, by any one of them, really loved Black Michael, and it might be that he would leave Bersonin to guard the king and rush across the bridge to take part in the affray on the other side.

So I planned—desperately. And that our enemy might be the better lulled to security I gave orders that our residence should be brilliantly lighted from top to bottom, as though we were engaged in revelry, and should so be kept all night, with music playing and people moving to and fro. Strakenz would be there, and he was to conceal our departure, if he could, from Flavia. And if we came not again by the morning he was to march, openly and in force, to the castle and demand the person of the king. If Black Michael were not there, as I did not think he would be, the marshal would take Flavia with him, as swiftly as he could, to Strelsau and there proclaim Black Michael's penchery and the probable death of the king and rally all that there was honest and true round the banner of the princess. And, to say truth, this was what I thought most likely to happen.

For I had great doubts whether either the king or Black Michael or I had more than a day to live. Well, if Black Michael died, and if I, the play actor, slew Rupert Hentzau with my own hand and then died myself, it might be that fate would deal as lightly with Rudolfa as could be hoped, notwithstanding that it demanded the life of the king—and to her dealing thus with me I was in no temper to make objection.

It was late when we rose from conference, and I betook me to the princess' apartments. She was pensive that evening, yet when I left her she flung her arms about me and grew for an instant bashfully radiant as she slipped a ring on my finger. I was wearing the king's ring, but I had also on my little finger a plain band of gold engraved, with the motto of our family, "Nil Quse Fect." This I took off and put on her finger and signed to her to let me go. And she, understanding, stood away and watched me with dimmed eyes.

"Wear that ring even though you wear another when you are queen," I said.

"Whatever else I wear, this I will wear till I die and after," said she as she kissed the ring.

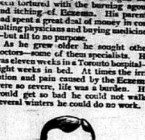
L'arrivee case of Leo Corrigan which shows that skin diseases have long considered hopeless, if taken in time, can be cured by Zam-Buk. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1901, I had another attack, and was ordered to use Zam-Buk ointment, such as had favored my previous voyages in the most, but fortune was this time against me. Still, I reckoned that by keeping close under the wall and in the shadow I could escape detection from the windows of the chateau that looked out on the scene of my efforts. If they searched the moat, indeed, my scheme must fail, but I did not think they would. They had made Jacob's ladder secure against attack. Johann had himself helped to fix it closely to the masonry on the underside so that it could never be moved from below any more than from above. As an assault with explosives or a long battering with picks alone could displace it, and the noise involved in either of these operations put them out of the question. What harm, then, could a man do in the moat? I reckoned that Black Michael, putting this query to himself, would answer confidently, "None," while even if Johann meant treachery he did not know my scheme and would doubtless expect to see me at the head of my friends before the front entrance to the chateau. There, I said to Sapt, was the real danger.

"And there," I added, "you shall be. Doesn't that content you?"

But it did not. Dearly would he have liked to come with me had I not utterly refused to take him. One man might escape notice. To double the party more than doubled the risk, and when he ventured to hint once again that my life was too valuable I, knowing the secret thought he clung to, sternly bade him be silent, assuring him that unless the king lived through the night I would not live through it either.

At 12 o'clock Sapt's command left the chateau of Tarlenheim and struck off to the right, riding by unfrequented roads and avoiding the town of Zenda. If all went well, they would be in front of Zenda by a quarter to 2. Leaving their horses half a mile off, they were to steal up to the entrance and hold themselves in readiness for the opening of the door. If the door were not opened by 2 they were to send Fritz von Tarlenheim round to the back of the castle. I myself, I must bite them if I were alive, and we would contrive a way to storm the castle if not. If I were dead—then they were to return with all speed to Tarlenheim, report the matter and march in force on Strelsau, for if I were there I should be dead, and I knew that the king would not be alive five minutes after I had ceased to breathe.

I must now leave Sapt and his friends and relate how I myself proceeded on this eventful night. I went out on the good horse which had carried me on the night of the coronation back from the shooting lodge to Strelsau. I carried a revolver in the saddle and my sword. I was covered with a large cloak, and under this I wore a warm, tight fitting woolen jersey, a pair of knickerbockers, thick stockings and light canvas shoes. I had rubbed myself thoroughly with oil, and I carried a large flask of whisky. The night was warm, but I might probably be immersed a long while, and it was necessary to take every precaution against cold, for cold not only saps a man's courage if he has to die, but impairs his energy if others have to die and finally gives him rheumatics if it be God's will that he lives. Also I tied round my body a length of thin but stout cord, and I did not forget my ladder. I, starting after Sapt, took a shorter route, skirting the town to the left, and found myself in the outskirts of the forest at about half-past 12.

I tied my horse up in a thick clump of trees, leaving the revolver in its pocket in the saddle. It would be no use to me—and, ladder in hand, made my way to the edge of the moat. Here I unwound my rope from about my waist, bound it securely round the trunk of a tree on the bank and let myself down. The castle clock struck a quarter to 1 as I felt the water under me and began to swim round the keep, pushing the ladder before me and dragging the castle wall. Thus voyaging I came to my old friend, Jacob's ladder, and felt the edge of masonry under me. I crouched down in the shadow of the great pipe—I tried to stir it, but it was quite immovable—and waited. I remember that my predominant feeling was neither anxiety for the king nor longing for Flavia, but an intense desire to smoke, and this the craving, of course, I could not gratify.

The drawbridge was still in its place, I saw its airy, light framework above me, some ten yards to my right, as I crouched with my back against the wall of the king's cell. I made out a window two yards my side of it and nearly on the same level. That, if Johann spoke true, must belong to the duke's apartments, and on the other side, in about the same relative position, must be Mme. de Mauban's window. Women are careless, forgetful creatures. I prayed that she might not forget that she was to be the victim of a brutal attempt at any o'clock precisely. I was rather amused at the part I had assigned to my young friend Rupert Hentzau, but I owned him a stroke, for, even as I sat, my shoulder ached where he had, with an audacity that seemed half to hide his treachery, struck at me in sight of all my friends on the terrace at Tarlenheim.

Suddenly the duke's window grew bright. The shutters were not closed, and the interior became partially visible to me as I continued raised myself till I stood on tiptoe. Thus placed, my range of sight embraced a yard or more inside the window sill, and a profilus of light did not reach me. The window was flung open, and some one looked out. I marked the outline of Mauban's graceful figure, and, though her face was in shadow, the fine outline of her head was revealed against the light behind. I longed to cry softly, "Remember!" but I dared not, and happily, for a moment later a man came up and stood by her. He tried to put his arm round her waist, but with a swift motion she spread survey and leaned against the shutter, her profile toward me. I made out who the newcomer was. It was young Rupert. A low laugh from him made me sure, as he leaned forward, stretching out his hand toward her.

"Gently, gently!" I murmured. "You're too soon, my boy!"

His head was close to hers. I supose he whispered to her, for I saw her point to the moat, and I heard her say in slow and dating tones:

"I had rather throw myself out of this window!"

He came close up to the window and looked out.

"It looks cold," said he. "Come, Antoinette, are you serious?"

She made no answer, so far as I heard, and he, smiting his hand petulantly on the window sill, went on in the voice of some spoiled child:

"Hang Black Michael! Isn't the princess enough for him? Is he to have everything? What the devil do you see in Black Michael?"

"If I told him what you say"— she began.

"Well, tell him," said Rupert carelessly, and, catching her off her guard, he sprang forward and kissed her, laughing, and crying, "There's something to tell him!"

If I had kept my revolver with me I should have been very sorely tempted. Being spared the temptation, I merely added this new score to his account.

"Enough, faith," said Rupert, "it's little he cares. He's mad about the princess, you know. He talks of nothing but cutting the play actor's throat."

Didn't he, indeed!

"And if I do it for him, what do you think he'll promised me?"

The unhappy woman raised her hands above her head, in prayer or in despair.

"But I detest waiting," said Rupert, and I saw that he was about to lay his hand on her again when there was a noise of a door in the room opening, and a harsh voice cried:

"What are you doing here, sir?"

Rupert turned his back to the window, bowed low and said in his loud, merry tones:

"Apologizing for your absence, sir. Could I leave the lady alone?"

The newcomer must be Black Michael. I saw him sweep as he advanced toward the window. He caught young Rupert by the ear.

"The point would hold more than the lump," said he, with a significant emphasis.

"Does your Highness threaten me?" said Rupert.

"A threat is more wearing than more mute and from me."

"Ha!" observed Rupert, "Rudolf Rassendyll used much threatening, and yet lives."

"Am I to fancy because my servants laugh?" asked Michael sternly.

"Your highness has run no risk of laughing," sneered Rupert.

It was better for me than that he shirked danger as plain as ever I have heard a man told. Black Michael had self control. I dare say he scowled—it was a great regret to me that I could not see their faces better—but his voice was even and calm as he answered:

"Then, sir, why do you not quit my court, Rupert, Count Hentzau and Tarlenheim at their posts?"

WATCH YOUR TONGUE.

IF FURRED AND COATED, IT IS A WARNING OF TROUBLE TO COME.

When it is the morning after the night before, you do not have to look at your tongue to know that the stomach is upset, the head is aching with a dull rhythm, and that all the world looks black and dreary.

It may have been lobster Newburgh Welsh rarebit or some other tasty dish that looked much better at night than the morning after. There is no need to look at the tongue thermometer then for symptoms of trouble. You naturally go to your box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and with one of the little relievers bring joy and gladness to the physical system.

The real time to watch the tongue is all of the time. It is coated with a white fur, or possibly with dark trimmings, even though the stomach does not tell you by the acute pains of indigestion that it needs help, yet the coating shows that you are getting into a bad way and that there is need of Mi-o-na.

Mi-o-na is so positive, so sure, so reliable in its curative action upon the stomach that T. B. Wallace, the local agent, gives an absolute guarantee with every 50-cent box he sells to refund the money unless the remedy gives absolute and complete satisfaction.

Huge and Verdi.

Verdi laboured long before he persuaded Victor Hugo, who was vexed that the tragic beauties of his "Le Roi D'Amuse" had been turned into operatic effects, to attend a performance of "Rigoletto." He succeeded at length, and Hugo sat in the box with the composer and listened to the opera. But not a word did he speak. Verdi's impatience got the better of him, and he asked:

"Well, what say you—about the quartet, for instance?"

"I know no more why you should not be permitted to speak simultaneously," replied the poet, "and I will write something more beautiful than your quartet."

Early Dentistry.

The art of dentistry was practiced among the Egyptians and Etruscans, and there are evidences in mummies and skulls that in very ancient times teeth were filled and efforts were made to supply the place of natural by artificial teeth. The first writer on the treatment of diseased teeth was Galen. The science was introduced into America by John Greenwood, who established himself in New York in 1788. Washington and again in 1795 he carved in ivory an entire set of teeth for General Washington.

Chronic.

"Opposition, opposition; nothing but opposition!"

"What's the matter, dear?"

"My parents objected when I wanted to marry him, and now he kicks because I want a divorce."

Nature and Man.

Huxley was once talking to Sir William Gull about the healing power of nature. "Stuff and Gull," Nine times out of ten nature does not want to cure the man. She wants to put him in his coffin."—London Telegraph.

His Explanation.

"Henry," whispered Mrs Smithers, straightening up in bed, "what's that noise in the library?"

"Must be history repeating itself," muttered Henry drowsily. "Go to sleep!"

Not at All Easy.

"Oh, it's easy! Easy as taking candy from a baby!"

"Easy, eh? Ever try to take candy from a baby?"

He that is proud eats up himself.—Shakespeare.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Two country women, mother and daughter, were at the circus for the first time. At last they came to the hippopotamus and stood for several minutes rooted in silent wonder. Then the mother turned to her daughter and said, slowly and solemnly, "My! Ain't—he—plain!"

Telephone mistakes may have their serious sides. A man who wanted to communicate with another named Jones looked in the directory and called up a number. Presently came through the receiver a soft feminine "Hallos!" and he asked: "Who is that?" "This is Mrs. Jones." "Have you any idea where your husband is?" He could not understand why she gave a sharp reply until he looked in the book again and discovered that he had called up the residence of a widow.

A traiter's soft and a doctor's son
Combined that the respective vocations
Their parents required advertising for their further emolument.
Accordingly they went forth with a paper paint and brush and decorated with commercial legends every fence and fence within a radius of two miles. That night the doctor's son returned home for the parental endorsement of his energy. He displayed the advertisement: "Brand new trousers from Brown and brand new babies from Dr. Jones."

An excited looking man called at a newspaper office the other day and informed in determined tones that he wished to see the editor. He was confronted with that long-suffering gentleman.

"Look here," he began, blustering. "Am I want to talk to you, I—"

"Very good," replied the editor, calmly; "pray come inside."

He led him along a passage and down a stair to the printing department, where a big machine was thundering along printing copies of the paper at 20,000 an hour, and the noise was simply deafening.

"Now, sir," he bawled into his visitor's ear, "what have you got to say?"

The interview was extremely brief.

NOTICE.

You Want Clothes to Suit You.

That's What We Sell You---

---Ready To Put On

Well, it is certainly difficult to decide what to do when every clothing store in town has "the best at the lowest price," and all "give satisfaction," "money back," save you a third to a half, etc., etc.

Now, there is only one way to settle this perplexing question rightly, and that is to investigate.

If you'll do this we are right sure that we will sell you an overcoat.

Every store says Overcoats at $7.50, $9, $10, $12 to $10.

Every store, perhaps, has overcoats at these figures — but what do these prices mean until you see the coats at the prices?

We're safe in saying we can show you some of the best values and handsomest overcoats the town affords.

We believe that you can do better here than elsewhere. We would like you to investigate. That is your privilege always.

Good reliable suits, overcoats, reefers, etc., for boys in all sizes, made from all-wool tweeds and properly trimmed; in fact the kind of clothes that will do the boys good hard service, and that's what they give them.

Come to us for all kinds of Boys' Clothing.

"A DUTCHMAN'S HONEYMOON."

A Dutchman's Honeymoon" is as beneficial to the ticket purchaser as a spring tonic to the languid, only you don't have to try it as long before you feel the effects. It clears the head, starts you thinking and puts you at peace with your whole family from your mother-in-law, A bright, clean, snappy entertainment, inoculating the system with an abundance of laugh microbes, which are most infectious. The complications which arise from the Dutchman's marriage and his wife's discovery that the ceremony was performed by an athletic leatured of a minister, and the endeavors of Mrs. Busch, to stop the honeymoon, give ample scope for screamingly funny situations, clever dialogues and good singing and dancing. Bisco Opera House, Tuesday, Dec. 3rd.

WONDERLAND.

At the usual drawing last Wednesday evening 5,000 lbs. coal, purchased from VanLuven Bros., was given away. The lucky coupon 202 N was held by Mrs. Fred. Hair. The committee presiding were Messrs. Harry Smith, J. N. Osborne, F. W. Vandusen, James Wilson. The other numbers drawn were 121 N, 146 N, 81 L, 244 N, 23 N, 77 L. We are very sorry to lose one of our most respected citizens, Mr. A. E. Wilson, late proprietor of Wonderland, the business having been handed over to Mr. Guy Chapman. Under the new management Wonderland hopes to keep up the high reputation it has enjoyed as a family theatre, and in the future will make every effort to conduct a place of amusement, where all gentlemen, ladies and children may come to spend a pleasant and profitable half hour. 100 lbs. flour, purchased from J. G. Oliver, to be given away next Wednesday evening. Special drawings, Friday for a gold locket, and Saturday matinee for 500 lbs. coal.

When your stomach won't let you eat a hearty meal without pain or distress, get the help of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Money back if they fail. T. B. Wallace.

THE MAN ON THE BOX.

When Harold McGrath wrote his novel, "The Man on the Box," it is not at all probable that he expected it to be dramatized. The book was not long out before Miss Grace L. Furniss was quick to appreciate its dramatic possibilities, and long before the public had ceased talking about the book it was placed upon the stage and quickly developed into the most popular comedy drama that had been offered to New York theatre goers for a long time. It attracted unusual attention at the Madison Square Theatre for a period of almost one year. Walter N. Lawrence will present this play at the Grand Opera House in Kingston on Tuesday, Dec. 3d, with Jameson Lee Finney at the head of the organization. Mr. Finney takes rank with the best comedians now composing before American theatregoers. His association with a long list of standard comedies for the past ten years has been the means of advancing his fortunes to unusual proportions. Mr. Lawrence has surrounded Mr. Finney with a high class company. The chief female player is Miss Elsie Leslie, of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" fame.

OLD FOLKS CONCERT.

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church scored a great success on Tuesday night, their sale, supper and concert in the town hall being the event of the season. The supper was an excellent one, the ladies being justly celebrated for the spread they serve annually. The old folks' concert in the evening proved very popular, and the crowd was so large that many had to go away, standing room being at a premium. Principal Fitch presided, and added greatly to the pleasure of the audience by his witty sallies of the parties in the various numbers. The costumes were truly lurk-in-ia, but pleased with great taste, and at much expense and time. Where all looked and performed their parts so well, it would be invidious to mention anyone specially. The musical numbers were appropriate and rendered with all the old-time acceptance. The only fault that may be suggested was the lack of room. The concert might better have been given in the Opera House, where the performers would have had more room, and the large audience been more comfortable. The ladies will net about $200 to the effort.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

AUSTRALIANS WAKE CANADIAN — HEADACHE CURE.

When the family of Mr. A. O. Norton, the lack manufacturer of Boston, and owner of the King coupe suite in this province, were traveling in Europe last year they met a party of people from Australia, several of whom were suffering during their travels from severe headaches. It appears that Mr. Norton and his family also carry a supply of Zutoo Tablets, the well known Canadian headache cure, and that Mrs. Norton distributed some of these tablets among the Australians. She is in receipt of letters from people in Australia asking where they can get a supply of the tablets which they found so effectual in curing their headaches and at the same time so harmless. We might add that these are the same Zutoo Tablets advertised in our columns.

THE NAPANEE LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB.

An excellent concert under the above auspices will be given in the Town Hall, Napanee, on evening next, December 3d, at 8 o'clock, by the following well known Belleville artists, Miss Stark, contralto; Miss Higgs, violinist, and Mr. Camelon, baritone, assisted by Mrs. Burritt, our own favorite soprano. This concert, which is open to the general public, is under the management of Mrs. Hawley and Mrs. Lockridge, and it is hoped that the efforts of these ladies will be rewarded by a large attendance. Members will PLEASE present their tickets at the door. General admission is 25 cts. The annual concert of the Club will take place in the opera hall, Thursday evening, January 9th, 1908. For this event the ladies have secured Madame Le Grand Reed, the eminent Canadian soprano; Mr. Arthur Blight, baritone, who so delighted a Napanee audience last May, and a violinist also from Toronto. Watch for further particulars each week.

Recapitulation of County Road Expenditure in each Municipality and how spent, for the year 1906

Mr. Editor,—As a servant of the people of Lennox and Addington, being pressed by one of the most influential rate-payers to give a statement of the County money expended in 1906 on the roads designated as County Roads, I venture to say the following is almost absolutely correct as I find it from the pay sheets and the Auditors' report. I have divided it into twelve different headings, which I am sure will please and also be instructive.

L. L. GALLAGHER, Warden.

Saskatoon, Sask.

The most rapidly growing city west of Winnipeg, although the youngest. In 1905 its assessment was $750,000; in 1906, $2,500,000; in 1907, $6,000,000. Its population is about 6,000.

A city of great possibilities. The hub of the hard wheat belt, surrounded as it is for many miles by the richest prairie wheat country in the world, with railways radiating in every direction, located on three independent transcontinental lines of railway—the C.P.R., the C.N.R. and the G.T.R., with other through lines and branch lines now building, makes Saskatoon the most valuable point in the two new provinces for wholesale, manufacturing and distributing depots.

The magnificent South Saskatchewan River runs through the centre of the city. A splendid new steel, concrete traffic bridge built by the Government has just been completed at a cost of $120,000. And three magnificent railway bridges span the river at this point. The nine commodious churches and three magnificent schools tell emphatically that the spiritual and intellectual needs of the people are keeping pace with the material development of this wonderful little city.

The enterprising editor of the Daily Phoenix has published a harvest number with magnificent cuts of the churches, schools, hotels, stores, residences, etc., that would do credit to any of our large city papers in Ontario or Quebec. This number also furnishes us with fine prints of the City Council, Board of Trade, and Public School Board. Short sketches of some of the business men, are also given. We give the following as a sample of the push and enterprise of the men who are pushing this city to the front so rapidly.

A GOOD STORY.

A story worth telling is that of the growth of the merchandising business of J. F. Cairns. On Dec. 11th, 1902, Mr. Cairns opened for business in Saskatoon, in the building now occupied by Stephenson Bros., the Second avenue jewellers, which was then on First Avenue. He had a bakery department in the rear, and to look after it one man was employed. The rest Mr. Cairns handled himself. The floor space was 400 square feet. Business grew, and in 1904 a larger store was built, on the southeast corner of Second avenue and Twenty-first street, since moved to Twentieth street and Third avenue. Here he had a floor space of 2,500 feet. Still business kept on growing, and in 1906 a fine solid brick building was put up, which was occupied in October of the same year. One year later, October, 1907, a large brick addition was opened, until at the present time the Cairns store has a selling floor space of 17,500 square feet. In addition to this is a brick stock room, where there is kept a reserve supply about sufficient to restock the entire store. There is, too, a basement that runs under the entire building, and also a trackage warehouse, 50 by 100 feet. Fifty-three people comprise the staff and five delivery outfits are constantly on the road, with reserve horses always at the stables.

The store is well handled, each department having a distinct head. On the main floor, with entrance to Second avenue, dry goods have the centre, with gents' furnishings and shoes on one side, and hardware on the other.

In the new wing, which faces on Twenty-first street, groceries and provisions have the ground floor.

The dressmaking department is immediately above, at the front of the grocery wing, well lighted and with a trying-on room adjoining.

The remainder of the upper floor of the new wing is devoted to ladies' wear. This department is particularly well appointed, well stocked and well handled. There are no counters. On the centre floor at this season, prominence is given to an especially fine range of furs and winter garments for the inspection of critical feminine eyes. The walls are lined with oak cases, the doors of which roll on easy bearings. In these, free from dust and handling, yet open to view by means of glass fronts, is seen all sorts of wearing apparel for women. The department is one that has acquired wide fame.

GREAT BENEFIT TO FARMERS.

It is the unanimous opinion of successful up-to-date farmers that the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, is of more practical benefit to them than any purely agricultural journal. In addition to its splendid agricultural section it is also a weekly newspaper and magazine that a family can well afford to be without. At the small price of one dollar a year it is the marvel of the newspaper world. Any person wanting the best dollar's worth they ever got, should give the Family Herald and Weekly Star a trial for 1908. The enormous demand for it at this season of the year makes it necessary to remit early to ensure getting the paper promptly.

BEAVER LAKE.

Mrs. J. Wood visited at her son's, Mr. Elias Wood, Tamworth, one day last week. We are glad to see her so smart, as she is 87 years of age, and can walk to most any of the neighbors.—Miss Hannah Johnston has gone to Toronto, where she has secured a situation as book-keeper.—A. Kellar spent Sunday evening with friends in Tamworth.—Mr. and Mrs. D. Reid and daughter Violet, spent Monday evening at S. G. Storms'.—Little Velma McDonald visited her little cousin, Roy Kirkpatrick, Marlbank, for a few days last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Gasper Lewis and little daughter Hazel spent a few days last week at S. G. Storrings'.—Misses Mazie and Minnie Close spent Sunday at home. —We are glad to hear our old teacher has decided not to stay next year.—Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Storring spent Saturday and Sunday visiting friends at Hunt.—Miss O. Huco called at Mr. Hartin's, one evening last week.—We were very sorry to bid our neighbors, N. Hinchey and family, who have sold their farm here to Arbo to live. Great preparations are being made for our school concert, which will be given on the 19th of December. The Methodist Sunday School of Tamworth are practising for their Christmas tree, which will be held on Xmas. eve.

Often what appear to be the most trivial occurrences of life prove to be the most momentous. Many are disposed to regard a cold as a slight thing, deserving of little consideration, and this neglect often results in most serious ailments entailing years of suffering. Drive out colds and coughs with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the recognized remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

TIS A MARVELLOUS THING—When the cures effected by Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are considered, the speedy and permanent relief it has brought to the suffering wherever it has been used, it must be regarded as a marvellous thing that so potent a medicine should result from the six simple ingredients which enter into its composition. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its healing virtues.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating. Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

ACHE

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

What Does Your Mirror Say?

Does it cheerfully report an abundance of beautiful, well kept hair or does it regretfully tell the story of hair neglect?

Your mirror may be anxious to please, but if you permit your friends to see dull, brittle and lustreless hair, with especially dandruff and falling hair, your mirror will have to reflect the same condition.

All of these unfortunate EFFECTS can be overcome by destroying their CAUSE with

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

The Original Remedy that "Kills the Dandruff Germ."

Dandruff, with its consequent hair injury and hair loss, is now known to be a highly contagious germ disease. It is caused by an invisible growth of vegetable character that finds lodgement in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. This growth disturbs the functions of the sebaceous glands, causing excessive oiliness or extreme dryness of the hair. It also sets up an inflammatory process that extends down the follicle to the papilla, where the adhesions are loosened and the hair slips out. The value of Newbro's Herpicide in such cases is quite extraordinary. Its intelligent use will correct every condition of chronic baldness and thus permit the hair to resume its natural luster and abundance.

EASY TO MIX THIS.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder disorder, arrangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good pharmacy. He says mixed the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affliction with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing and healing important organs, and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which causes sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

HAVE YOU PAID THE BEAVER?

Two weeks ago we sent a statement of account to all subscribers to The Beaver whose subscription had expired, or who are in arrears. We sent them out as other business men notify their patrons when it is a "business", and because we are in need of the money. The price of everything has been almost doubled during the past few years, but The Beaver's It should have been raised likewise, but it will not be, for the present year, notwithstanding the increased cost of production. If you have not received it in your dollar, kindly do so at once, and make everybody happy all around. 47c

The whole stock amounts to about $25,000, which has been purchased under the best conditions possible. My regular customers know what it is, and will not hesitate to take advantage of the large reductions.

To those who do not know what the stock is like, I can only say that this store has a reputation for keeping reliable goods at right prices for many years, and my experience of over forty years in the General Store business in this County should be sufficient to convince them that it will be to their interest to patronize this sale, and of the honesty of it

Everything will be carried out as set forth in this advertisement.

All FARM PRODUCE marketable, will be taken at cash prices.

This sale is being made in contemplation of radical changes to be made in the business.

M. RYAN,
NEWBURGH.
